The prayse of Elias, Eliseus, Ezechias and Esay.

A THen stode vp * Elyah ye Prophet as a fyre, and hys word brēt like a cresset. He brought an hunger vpon them, and in hys zeale he made them few in number. For thei might not away with the commaundementes of ye Lorde. Thorowe the word of the Lord he shut ye heauen. And three tymes brought he the fyre down. Thus became Elias honorable in hys wonderous dedes. Who may make hys bost to be like him? *One ye was dead raysed he vp from death: and in ye word of the hyest he brought hym out of the graue againe. He cast down kinges & destroyed them, and ye honorable from their seate. Vpon ye mount Sina he heard ye punishment, and vpon Horeb ye iudgement of ye vengeaunce. He prophecied recōpencing vnto kynges, *ordayned Prophetes after hym. He was taken vp in ye storme of fier, in a charet of horses of the Lorde. He was ordeyned in ye re prouinges in tyme,

The. l. Chapter.

Of Simon the sonne of Onias.

A Simon the sonn of Onias the high Priest, which in hys lyfe set vp ye house agayne, and in his dayes made fast the teple. The heyght of the temple also was founded of hym, the double building, and the hye walles of ye temple. In hys dayes the wels of water flowed out, and wer exceading full as the Sea. He toke care for hys people, and delivered them from destruction. He kept hys citie, and made it strong, that it shuld not be besieged. He dwelt in honour and worship among hys people, and enlarged the entraunce of the house and the court. He gaue lyght as the morning starre in ye middest of the cloudes, and as the Moone B when it it full. He shined as the Sunn in the temple of God. He is as bryght as the raynebow in the fayre cloudes and florisheth as the flowres and roses in ye spring of the yere, and as lilies by ye riuers of water: Lyke as the braunches vpon ye mout Libanus in the tyme of Somer: as a fyre and incense that is kindled. Lyke as an whole ornament of pure golde, set wyth all maner of precious stones: & as an Olyue tree, that is fruitfull, & as a Cipresse tree, which groweth vpon hye.

When he put on the garment of honor and was clothed with al beuty: when he went to the holy aulter, to garnish the couering of the Sanctuary: when he toke the portions out of the Priestes hand, he hymselfe stode by the hearth of the aulter, and hys brethren rounde about in order. As ye braunches of the Cedree tree vppon the mount Libanus, so stode they rounde about hym. And as the braunches of the olyue tree, so stode al the sonnes of Aaron C in their glory, and ye oblations of the lord in their handes before all the cogregatio of Israell. And that he might sufficiently performe his seruice vpon the aultar, and garnish the offring of the hiest God, he stretched out hys hande, and toke of the drynke offring, and poured in of the wine so he poured vpo the bottom of the aultar a good smell vnto the hyest Prynce.

Then began the sonnes of Aaron to crye, and to blow with trompets, and to make a great noyse, for a remembraunce and prayse vnto the Lord. Then were all the people afrayd, & fel down to the earth vpon their faces, to worship the LORD their God, and to geue thankes to the almightie God. They song goodly and with their voyces, so that there was a pleasaut noyse in the great house of the Lord. And the people in their prayer, besoughte the Lord the hyest, that he woulde be mercyfull tyll the honor of the Lorde were performed, thus ended they their ministration and seruice. The went he downe, and stretched out hys handes ouer the whole multitude of ye people of Israell, that they should geue prayse & thankes out of their lyppes vnto ye Lord, and to reioyce in hys name. He bega yet once also to pray, that he myght openly shew ye thanksgeuing before ye hyest, namely thus: O geue prayse and thankes (ye al) vnto ye Lord our God which hath euer done noble & great thinges: which hath increased oure dayes fro our mothers wombe, and dealt with vs according to hys mercy: yt he wyl geue vs the ioyfulnesse of heart, and peace for our tyme in Israell. Which faythfully kepeth his mercy for vs euermore, and alway delivereth vs in due season. There be two maner of people, yt I abhorre fro my hart: as for ye third, who I hate, it is no people. They yt sit vpon the mountain of Samaria, ye Philestines, and the folish people yt D dwell in Sichimis. I Jesus the sonne of Sirach Eleazarus, of Jerusale, haue tokened vp these informations and documentes of wysdom and vnderstanding in thys boke, and poured out the wisdom of my heart. Blessed is he yt exerciseth hymselfe therin: & whoso taketh such to hearte shalbe wise for euer. If he do these things he shal be strong in al. For the light of the Lord leadeth hym.

The li. Chapter.

A prayer of Jesus the sonne of Sirach.

I Wyll thanke thee O Lorde and A kyng, and prayse thee O God, my Sauiour. I wil yelde praise vnto thy name: for yu art my defender and helper, and hast preserued my body from destruction, from ye snare of traytourous tonges, and from ye lyppes yt are occupyed wt lyes. Thou hast ben my helper, from such as stode vp against me, and hast deliuered me after ye multitude of thy mercy, and for thy holy names sake. Thou hast deliuered me from ye roryng of the, yt prepared themselues to deuoure me, oute of the handes of suche as sought after my lyfe: from the multitude of them that troubled me, and went about to set fyre vppon me on euery syde, so yt I am not brent in ye myddes of the fyre. From the depe of hell, from an vncleane tong, from lying wor-des, from the wicked kyng, and from an unrighteous tong. My soule shall prayse the lord unto death, for my lyfe drew nigh B unto y hell downwarde. They compassed me rounde about on every syde, and ther was no man to helpe me. I loked aboute me, if there wer any man that would suc-coure me: but there was none. Then thought I upon thy mercy, O Lord, and upō thyne actes that thou hast done ever of olde: namely, that thou deliverest suche as put their trust in thee, and ryddest thē out of the handes of the heathē. Thus lift I up my prayer from the earth, and prayed for deliveraunce from death. I called upon the Lord the father of my lord, that he would not leave me without helpe, in the day of my trouble, and in the tyme of y proude: I wyll prayse thy name continually, yelding honor and thankes unto it: and so my prayer was heard. Thou sa-uedst me from destructiō, and deliveredst me from the unrighteous tyme. Therfore wyll I acknowlege & prayse thee, & mag-C nifie the name of the Lord. When I was yet but young, or ever I went astray, I desired wisdom openly in my prayer. I came therfore before the temple, & sought her unto the last. Then florished she unto me as a grape y is sone rype. My hart reioyced in her, then went my fote the right way: yea, from my youth up, sought I after her. I bowed down mine eare and re-ceaued her. I founde me much wysdome: and prospered greatly in her. Therefore wil I ascribe the glory unto him that geueth me wisdom: for I am aduised to do therafter. I wyll be gelous to cleaue unto the thing y is good, so shall I not be confounded. My soule hath wrestled w her, and I haue ben diligent to be occupied in her. I lift up myne hands on hye, the was my soule lyghtened thorow wisdom, that I knowleged my folishnesse, I ordred my soule after her: she and I were one heart from the beginning, and I founde her in cleannesse. And therfore shal I not be forsaken.

D My heart longed after her, and I gat a good treasure. Thorow her the Lorde hath geuen me a new tong, wherwith I Esa, 55, a, will prayse him. *O come unto me ye un-learned, and dwell in y house of wisdom: withdraw not your selues from her, but talke and commune of these thinges, for your soules are very thirsty. I opened my mouth and spake. O come and bye wis-dome without money, bowe down your necke under her yoke, and your soule shal receiue wisdom. She is hard at hāde, and is content to be founde. Behold with your eyes *how that I haue had but litle labor and yet haue founde much rest. O receiue wisdome. And ye shall haue plentuousnesse of silver and golde in possession. Let your mynde reioyce in hys mercy, and be not ashamed of hys prayse. Worke hys worke betymes, & he shall geue you your reward in due season.

The ende of the boke of Jesus the sonne of Syrach, which is called in Latyne Ecclesiasticus.

The booke of the Pro-phete Baruch.

The first Chapter.

Baruch wrote a boke during the captiuitie of Babilon, which he red before Jechoniah and al the people. The Jewes sent the boke with mony unto Jerusalem, to their other brethren, to the intente that they should pray for them.

AND these are y wordes of A the boke, which wer written by Baruch the sonne of Neriah, y son of Maasias, the sonn of Sedechias, the sonn of Sedeias, the sonne of Helchias, at Babilon, in the fift yere, and in the seuenth day of the moneth, what tyme as y Chaldees toke Jerusalem, and brēt it up with fier. And Baruch did reade the wordes of thys boke, y Jechoniah the sonne of Joachim kyng of Juda might heare, and in y presence

presence of all the people that were come to heare the boke: yea, and before all ÿ noble kynges sonnes, before the lordes of ÿ counsaple, and elders: and before ÿ whole people, from ÿ lowest unto the hyghest: before al them that dwelt at Babilon, by the water of Sody. Which whē they heard it, wept, fasted and prayed before the Lord.
They made a collection also of mony, ac-B cordyng to euery mannes power, and sent it to Jerusalem unto Joachim ÿ sonne of Helchia, the sonne of Salon Priest, wyth the other Priestes, and to all the people which were wyth hym at Jerusalem, what tyme as they had gotten the ornamentes of ÿ temple of ÿ lord (ÿ wer takē away out of the temple) ÿ they might bryng them a-gayne into the lande of Juda, the tēth day of the moneth Siuan: namely, siluer vessels (which Sedechiah the sonn of Josiah kyng of Juda had made) after that Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babilon had takē Jechoniah with al his Princes, Lordes, C and al the people, and led thē captiue frō De.xiii, Jerusalem unto Babilon. And they sayd: behold we haue sent you mony, * to bye you Jere.xx.b burnt offeringes and incense withall: i.Tim.ii make you unleauened bread, and offer for
b. synne upon the aultar of ÿ Lord our God.
* And pray for ÿ prosperitie of Nabuchodonozor, kyng of Babilō, and for the welfare of Balthazar hys sonne: ÿ their dayes may be upon earth, as the dayes of heauē that God also may geue us strength, and lighten our eyes, that we may lyue under the defence of Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babilon, and under the protectiō of Balthazar hys sonne: that we may long doe them seruice, & fynde fauor in their sight.
Pray for us also unto the Lord our God, for we haue synned against the Lord our God, and unto thys day is not hys wrath turned yet away from us. And see that ye reade this boke (which we haue sent unto you to be rehearsed in ÿ temple of ÿ lorde) upon the hye dayes, and at tyme couēnient. Thus shall ye say. * The Lord oure
Bar.ii.b God is righteous, but we are worthy of Da.ix.a, confusion, and shame: like as it is come to passe thys day unto all Juda, and to eue-ry one ÿ dwelleth at Jerusalē: to our kin-E ges, Princes, Priestes, Prophetes, and our fathers. We haue synned before the Lord our God, we haue not put our trust in hym, nor geuen hym reuerence, we haue not obeyed hym, we haue not hearkened unto the voyce of ÿ Lord our god, to walk in the commaundementes that he gaue us.
Since ÿ day ÿ he brought our forefathers out of the lande of Egipt unto thys presēt day we haue ben euer a misbeleuing and an unfaythfull people unto the Lorde our God: destroying oure selues utterly, and shrinking backe, that we should not heare E hys voyce. * Wherfore, there are come upō Leu.xxvi us great plages, and diuerse curses. Like Deuter. as ÿ Lord deuised by Moses hys seruaunt: xxviii.c.
* which brought our forefathers out of ÿ Exod.xii lande of Egipt, to geue us a lande ÿ flo- xiii.&.xiii weth with milke and hony, lyke as it is to see thys day. Neuerthelesse, we haue not hearkened unto ÿ voyce of ÿ lord our god, according to al ÿ wordes of the Prophets, whom he sent unto us, and to our rulers, but euery man folowed hys own mynd, & wicked imaginatiō, to offer unto straunge Gods, and to do euil in the sight of ÿ Lord our God.

The.ii Chapter.

The Jewes confesse that they suffer iustlye for their sinnes. The true confession of the Christen. The Jewes desire to haue the wrath of God turned from them. The Lord will that we obey our Princes although they be euil. He promiseth that he will call agayne the people from captiuitie, and geue them a new, and an euerlasting testamente.

FOr the which * cause, the A Lord our God hath per- Da.ix.b, and desolate) and scatered them abroade in al landes and nations. Thus are we brought beneath & not aboue, bicause we haue synned against the lord our god, and haue not ben obedient unto hys voyce. *

Therfore the Lord our God is righteous, Bar.i.d, and we with our fathers (as reason is) are brought to open shame, as it is to see thys day. And as for these plagues ÿ are come upon us already, the lord hath deuised the for us: yet would we not pray unto ÿ lord righteous in al hys workes, which he hath commaunded vs: which we also haue not would not hearken vnto thy voice, to do ȳ thou performed the wordes ȳ thou spakest of our fathers shuld be translated oute of that for the wickednesse of ȳ house of Is-

Then shal they remember the thinges, ȳ happened vnto their forefathers, which againe into the lande, which I promysed with an oth vnto their fathers: Abraham

The. iii. Chapter.

The people continueth in their praier begō for their Princes of ye heathen become, & suche as ruled ye beastes vpō the earth? They ye had their pastime wt the foules of the aire, they that hoorded vp siluer, & golde (wherin mē thering? What is become of them ye coined wen, nor vnderstande the pathes thereof:

D not ben heard of in the lande of Canaan, neyther hath it ben sene at Theman. The Agarenes sought after wysdom, but that which is earthly, lyke as the marchaunts of the lande do. They of Theman are cu-ning also, and they labor for wisdom, and vnderstanding: but ye way of true wisdom they knowe not: neyther do they thynke vpon ye pathes therof. O Israel how great is the house of God? and how large is the De. iiii. f.

neyther haue they founde the way of refourmation, therfore were they destroied: and forsomuch as they had no wisdom, they perished bicause of their folishnesse.
Who hath gone vp into heauen, to take wysdom there, and brought her down frō the cloudes? Who hath gone ouer ye Sea, to fynde her, and hath chosen her aboue God, with peace of righteousnesse, & the honoure of Godes feare.

B Arise, O Jerusalē, stand vp on hye, loke about thee toward ẏ East; and beholde thy children gathered frō the East, vnto the west, which reioyce in thy holy worde, hauing God in remēbraunce. They departed frō thee on foote, & were led away of their enemyes: but now shall the Lorde bring thē caried with honoure as ẏ children of the kingdome. For God is purposed to bring downe al stoute mountaines: yea & al hie rockes, to fil ẏ valleyes, & so to make thē euen w the grounde, that Israel may be diligent to liue vnto ẏ honoure of God. The woodes, and al pleasaunt trees shal ouershadow Israel, at ẏ cōmaunde-ment of God. For hether shal God bryng Israel with ioyful mirth, & in the light of his maiesty: with ẏ mercy and righteous-nesse that commeth of himselfe.

The.vi.Chapter.

A copie of ẏ Epistle that Jeremy sent vnto the Jewes, which wer led away prisoners by the king of Babilon: wherin he certifieth them of the thing that was commaunded him of God.

By cause of ẏ sinnes ẏ ye haue A done against God, ye shalbe Jere.25.a.b led away captiue vnto Babilon, euē of Nabuchodonozor ẏ king of Babilō. So whē ye be com into Babilon, ye shal remain ther many yeares, & for a long season: namely seuen generations: & after ẏ wil I bring you away peaceably frō thence. Now shal ye see in Babilō Gods of gold, of siluer, of wood, & of stone: borne vpon mens shoulders, to cast out a fearefulnesse before the heathē. But loke ẏ ye do not as ẏ other: be not ye afraied, & let not the feare of thē ouercome you.
B Therfore, whē ye see ẏ multitude of people worshipping thē behinde & before, say Deu.vi.a. ye in your heartes: O Lorde, * it is thou, ẏ oughtest onely to be worshipped. Myne Angel also shal be w you, & I my selfe wil care for your soules. As for the tymber of those gods, ẏ carpenter hath polished thē: yea gilted be they, & laid ouer with siluer, yet are they but vaine things, and cānot speake. Like as a wenche ẏ loueth paramoures is trimly decte, euen so are these made, & hanged w gold. Crownes of gold verily haue their Gods vpō their heads: so ẏ priests thēselues take ẏ golde, & siluer from them, and put it to their own vses: yea, they geue of the same vnto harlots, and trimm their whores withall againe, they take it from their whores, and decke their Gods there with. * Yet cā not these Gods delyuer themselues from rust and Jer.10.a. mothes. When they haue couered them with clothing of purple, they wype theyr faces for the dust of the temple, whereof there is much among them. One hath a Scepter in hys hande, as though he wer iudge of the countrey: yet can he not slaye such as offēd him. Another hath a swearde or an axe in hys hande, for al that he is neyther able to defende hymselfe frō bat- C tayle, nor from murtherers. By thys ye may vnderstande, ẏ they be no Goddes: therfore see ẏ ye neyther worship thē, nor feare them. For lyke as a vessell ẏ a man vseth, is nothing worth when it is brokē, euē so is it w their Gods. Whē they be set vp in the temple, theyr eyes be full of dust thorow ẏ fete of those ẏ come in. And lyke as ẏ dores are shut in rounde about vpon hym, ẏ hath offended ẏ king. Or as it wer a dead body kept besyde ẏ graue. Euen so the Priestes kepe ẏ dores w barres and lockes, least their Gods be spoiled w robbers. They set vp candels before thē (yea, verely, and ẏ many) wherof thei cannot se one, but euē as blockes so stande they in the tēple. It is sayd that ẏ serpētes, and wormes, which com of ẏ earth, gnaw out their hertes, eating them, & their clothes also, & yet they fele it not. Theyr faces are blacke, thorow ẏ smoke ẏ is in ẏ tēple.
The oules, swalowes, & byrdes, flye vpon them: yea, and ẏ cattes runne ouer theyr heades. By thys ye may be sure, ẏ they ar D not Gods, therfore feare them not. The gold ẏ they haue, is to make thē beawtiful for al ẏ, except some body wype of their rust, they wyll geue no shyne: & whē they were cast into a fourme, they felte it not.
They are bought for money and haue no Sap.14.c. breath of lyfe w in them. * They must be borne vpon mennes shoulders, as those ẏ haue no feete: whereby they declare vnto men, ẏ thei be nothing worth. * Confounded be they then ẏ worship thē, for if they Ps.114.a. fal to ẏ groūde, they cannot ryse vp again of themselues. Yea, though one helpe thē vp, and set them right, yet are they not able to stande alone: but must haue proppes set vnder them lyke dead men. As for the thing ẏ is offred vnto them, their priestes sel it, & abuse it: yea, the Priestes wiues take thereof: but vnto the sicke and pore, they geue nothing of it: ẏ women w child and ẏ menstruous lay handes of their of-ferynges: by thys ye may be sure, that they are no Gods, therfore be not ye afrayd of them. From whence cometh it then, ẏ they are called Gods? The women sit before ẏ Gods of syluer, golde, and wood, and the Priestes sit in their temples, hauing opē clothes, whose heades ⁊ beardes are sha-uen, ⁊ haue nothing vppon their heades: roaryng, and cryyng vpon their Gods, as men do at the feast whē one is dead. The E Priestes also take away the garments of the ymages, ⁊ decke their wiues ⁊ childrē withall. Whether it be good or euill that any man do vnto them, they are not able to recompence it: they can neyther set vp a kyng nor put hym down. In lyke maner they may nether geue riches, nor reward euil. Though a man make a vowe vnto Eccl. v,a thē and kepe it not, they wil not require it They can saue no man frō death, neyther deliuer ẏ weake from ẏ mightie. They cā-not restore a blynd man to hys syght, nor helpe any man at hys nede. They cā shew no mercy to ẏ widdow, nor do good to the fatherlesse. Their Goddes of wood, stone, gold, ⁊ syluer, are but euē as other stones that be hewen of ẏ moūtayne. They that worship thē, shalbe cōfounded. How shuld they then be taken for Gods? yea, howe dare mē call thē Gods? And though the Chaldees worshipped thē not, hearing ẏ they were but dumm ⁊ could not speake. yet they thēselues offer vnto Bel, ⁊ would fayne haue hym to speake: as who saye, they could fele, ẏ may not moue. But whē these mē come to vnderstādīg, they shall forsake thē, for their gods haue no feling.

A great sort of wemē girde w coardes, sit in ẏ streetes, ⁊ burne oliue beries. Nowe if one of thē be conueyed away, ⁊ ly with any suche as come by: she casteth her neighbours in ẏ teeth, bicause she was not so worthely reputed, nor her coarde broken.
Whatsoeuer is done for them, it is but in vain and lost. How may it then be sayd or thought, ẏ they are Gods? Carpēters, and goldesmithes make thē, neyther be they F any other thing but euē what ẏ workmē wyl make of thē. yea, ẏ goldesmythes thē selues ẏ make thē, are of no long cōtinu-aunce. How shuld thē ẏ things ẏ ar made of thē be Gods? Vayn therfore are ẏ thin-ges (yea, very shame is it) ẏ they leaue behynde thē for their posteritie. For assoone as there cometh any warre or plage vpon thē, then ẏ Priestes imagine, where they may hyde thēselues w thē. How can men thynke then, ẏ they be Gods, which neyther may defende thēselues from warre, nor deliuer thē frō missfortune? For seing they be but of wood, of stone, of siluer, and of golde, all people ⁊ kynges shall knowe hereafter ẏ they be but vain thynges: yea, it shalbe opēly declared, ẏ they be no gods but euē ẏ very workes of mennes hands, and ẏ God hath nothing to do w thē. It is manifest thē ẏ they are no Gods, but ẏ workes of mennes handes, ⁊ no work of God in thē. They can set no kyng in the lande, nor geue rayne vnto mē. They can geue no sentēce of a matter, neyther defēd the lande frō wrōg. For they are not able to do so much as a crow ẏ flyeth betwene heauē ⁊ earth. Whē there hapneth a fier in ẏ house of those gods of wood, ⁊ siluer and of golde, ẏ Priestes wil escape, ⁊ saue G thēselues, but ẏ Gods burne as ẏ balkes therin. They cannot wstand any kyng or battel: how may it thē be thought or grauted, that they be Gods? Moreouer these Gods of wod, of stone, of gold ⁊ siluer, may neyther defende thēselues frō theues nor robbers: yea, ẏ very wycked are stronger thā they. These strip thē out of their ap-parell, ẏ they be clothed wall, these take their gold, ⁊ siluer frō thē, ⁊ so get them away: yet cā they not help thēselues. Therfore it is much better for a mā, to be a kig, ⁊ so to shew hys power: or els a profitable vessel in a house, wherin he that oweth it, might haue plesure: yea, or to be a dore in a house, to kepe such thigs safe as be ther in, thā to be such a vain god. The Sunn, ẏ Moone, ⁊ all ẏ starres, seing they geue their shine ⁊ light, are obediēt, ⁊ doe men good. Whē ẏ lightening glistereth, all is cleare. The wynde bloweth in euery coū-trey, ⁊ whē god cōmaundeth ẏ cloudes to go roūde about ẏ whole world, they doas they are byddē, whē ẏ fyre is sent downe H frō aboue, ⁊ cōmaūded, it burneth vp hyls ⁊ woods. But as for those Gods, they are not lyke one of these things, nether in beu ty, nether strēgth. Wherfore, mē shuld not think nor say, ẏ they be Gods, seeing they can nether geue setēce in iudgement, nor do mē good. For so muche now as ye are sure, ẏ they be no gods, thē feare thē not.
For they cā neyther speake euil nor good of kyngs. They cā shew no tokēs in heauē for ẏ heathē, nether shine as ẏ Sunne, nor geue lyght as ẏ Moone: yea, ẏ vnrea-sonable beastes are better than they, for they cā get thē vnder ẏ rofe, ⁊ do thēselues good.

good. So can ye be certified by no maner of meanes that they be Gods: therfore feare them not. For lyke as a scarecrow in a garden of herbes kepeth nothing: euen so are their Gods of wood, of siluer and golde: & lyke as a whyte thorne in an orcharde, ẏ euery byrde sitteth vppon: yea, lyke as a dead body ẏ is cast in ẏ dark. Euē so is it with those Gods of wood, syluer, & golde, By ẏ purple, and scarlet which they haue vpon them, and soone fadeth away: ye may vnderstande, that they be no Gods: yea, they themselues shal be consumed at the last, which shalbe a great confusion of the lande. Blessed is the Godly man, that hath no ymages and worshippeth none, for he shalbe farre from reprofe.

The ende of the Prophete Baruch.

The song of the three children, which wer put into the hote burning ouen. The comunē translation readeth thys song in the third Chapter of Daniel.

AND they walked in the middest of the flame praising God, and magnified the Lord. Azarias stode by and prayed on thys maner. Euen in the middest of the fyre opened he hys mouth and sayd. Blessed be thou (O Lord God of our fathers) right worthy to be praysed, and honoured is that name of thine for euermore. For thou art righteous in al ẏ thinges ẏ thou hast done vnto vs, yea, faythfull are all thy workes, thy wayes are right, and all thy iudgementes true. In al ẏ things ẏ thou hast brought vpon vs, & vpon ẏ holy citie of our fathers (euen Ierusalem) thou hast executed true iudgemēt: yea, according to ryghte and equitie hast ẏ brought al these things vpō vs bicause of our sinnes. For why? we haue offēded & done wyckedly, departing frō thee. *In al things haue we trespased [Da, ix, c.] and not obeyed thy commaundemētes, nor kept thē, neither done as ẏ hast biddē vs, that we might prospere. *Wherfore all ẏ [Bar, iii, b.] thou hast brought vpon vs, & euery thyng that ẏ hast done to vs, ẏ hast done them in true iudgemēt: as in deliueryng vs into ẏ hands of our enemies, among vngodly & wycked imaginations, & to an vnrighteous kyng: yea, ẏ most froward vpō earth. And now we may not opē our mouthes, we are become a shame & reprofe vnto thy seruauntes, & to them ẏ worship thee. Yet for thy names sake (we besech thee) geue vs not vp for euer, breake not thy couenaunt, & take not away thy mercy frō vs, for thy beloued Abrahās sake, for thy seruaunt Isaacks sake, & for thy holy Israels sake. To whō ẏ hast spokē and promised ẏ thou *wouldest multiplie their sede [gen, xv, c] as ẏ starres of heauē, and as ẏ sande that [xxii, c,] lyeth vpon ẏ Sea shore. For we (O lord) [xxvi, b,] [Deu, x, d;] are become lesse then any people, and be kept vnder thys day in al ẏ world, bicause of our synnes: so ẏ now we haue neyther Prince, Duke, Prophete, burnt offering, Sacrifice, oblatiō, incēse, nor Sāctuary before the. Neuertheles, in a cōtrite heart and an hūble spirite let vs be receaued, ẏ we may obtayne thy mercy. Lyke as in ẏ burnt offring of Rāmes, & bullockes, and lyke as in thousandes of fat lambes, so let our offringes be in thy sight thys day ẏ it may please thee, *for there is no confusion [i, Pe, ii, a] vnto thē ẏ put their trust in the. And now [Rom, x, c] [Esay,] we follow thee w all our heart, we feare [xxviii, d,] thee, & seke thy face. Put vs not to shame, [Ro, ix, g.] but deale w vs after thy louing kindnesse and according to ẏ multitude of thy mercyes. Deliuer vs by thy miracles (O lord) & get thy name an honor, ẏ al they which do thy seruauntes euill, may be cōfoūded. Let thē be ashamed thorow thy almighty power, & let their strength be brokē, ẏ they may know, how ẏ ẏ only art ẏ lord god, & honor worthy thorowout al ẏ world. And the kynges seruauntes ẏ put them in, ceased not to make ẏ ouen hote, w wylde fyre, stráw, pitch & faggottes: so ẏ the flame went out of the ouen vpon a.xlix. cubites: yea, it toke away and burnte vp those Chaldees ẏ it gat holde vpon, besyde the

which is the thirtene Chapter of Danyell after the Latyn.

A There dwelt a man in Babilon, called Joachim, ÿ toke a wyfe, whose name was Susanna, ÿ daughter of Helchia, a very fayre woman, and such one as feared God. Her father & her mother also were Godly people, and taught their daughter according to ÿ law of Moses. Now Joachim (her husbande) was a great rich man, and had a faire orchard ioyning vnto his house. And to him resorted the Jewes commonly, bicause he was a man of reputation among them. The same yere were there made two iudges, such as the Lord speaketh of: all the wickednesse of Babilon commeth from ÿ elders ÿ is, from the iudges, which se me to rule ÿ people. These came oft to Joachims house, & all such as had any thing to do in the law, came thither vnto them.

B Now when the people came agayn at afternone, Susanna went into her husbādes orcharde to walke. The elders seyng thys, ÿ she wente in dayly & walked, they burned for lust to her: yea, they wer almost out of their wittes, and caste downe their eyes, that they should not see heauen, nor remember that god is a righteous iudge. For they were both wounded with ÿ loue of her, nether durst one shew another his griefe. And for shame, they durst not tell her their inordinate lust, that they would fayne haue had to do wt her. Yet they layd wayte for her earnestly from day to day, that they might (at the least) haue a syght of her. And the one sayd to the other: Up, let vs go home, for it is diner tyme. So they went their way from her. Whē they returned againe, they came together, enquiring out ÿ matter betwixt thēselues: yea, ÿ one tolde ÿ other of hys wicked lust, then appointed they a tyme when they might take Susanna alone. It happened also ÿ they spyed out a conuenient tyme whē she wēt forth to walke as her maner

C was, wt no mo but two maydens, and thought * to wash her selfe in ÿ garden, for it was an hote season: and there was not one person there, except ÿ two elders that had hyd thēselues to behold her. So she sayd to her maydens: go set me oyle & sope, & shut ÿ orchard dore, ÿ I may wash me. And they did as she bad thē, & shut the orchards dore, & wēt out themselues at a backe dore, to set ÿ thyng ÿ she had commaunded: but Susanna knew not, ÿ the elders lay there hyd win. Now when the

D maydens were gone forth, the two elders gat thē vp, & came vpō her, saying: nowe ÿ orchard dores are shut, ÿ no man can see vs: we haue a lust vnto thee, therfore consent vnto vs, & lye wt vs. If ÿ wylt not, we shal bryng a testimonyall against thee, ÿ there was a yong felow wt thee, and that thou hast sent away thy maydens from thee for ÿ same cause. Susanna syghed, & sayd: alas, I am in trouble on euery syde. Though I folow your mynd, it wil be my death, & if I cōsent not vnto you, I cā not escape your handes. Well, it is better for me, to fall into your handes wout ÿ dede doing, than to synn in ÿ syght of ÿ Lorde: and wt that, she cryed out wt a loude voyce: the elders also cryed out against her. Then ranne there one to the orcharde dore and smote it open. Now when the seruauntes of the house heard the cry in the orcharde, they rushed in at the backe doore, to see what the matter was. So when ÿ elders tolde them, the seruauntes were greatlye

E ashamed, for why: Ther was neuer such a report made of Susanna. On ÿ morow after, came the people to Joachim her husbande, and the two elders came also, full of mischeuous ymaginatiō against Susanna to bryng her vnto death, & spake thus before the people. Sende for Susanna ÿ daughter of Helchias, Joachims wyfe. And immediatly they sent for her. So she came wt her father and mother, her childre and al her kynred. Now Susanna was a tender person, & marueilous fayre of face. Therfore ÿ wycked mē commaunded to take of ÿ clothes frō her face (for she was couered) that at the lest they might so be satisfied in her beuty. Ther her frendes, yea, & all they ÿ knew her, begā to wepe.

These

D These two elders stode vp in the myddest Le.xxiiii.c. of the people, *and layd their handes vpō the head of Susanna, which wept and lo ked vp towarde heauen, for her heart had a sure trust in ẏ Lord. And the elders said as we wer walking in the orchard alone thys woman came in wt her two maydēs whom she sent away frō her, and sparred the orcharde dores: wt ẏ, a yonge fellowe (which there was hid) came vnto her, and lay wt her. As for vs, we stode in a corner of the orcharde. And when we sawe thys wyckednesse, we rann to her: and perceaued, ẏ they had medeled together. But we could not holde hym, for he was stronger than we: thus he opened the dore and gat hym away.

E Now when we had taken thys womā, we asked her what yōg felow thys was, but she would not tell vs. Thys is the matter, and we be witnesses of the same.
The common sort beleued them: as those that were the elders and iudges of the people, & so they condemned her to death.
Susanna cryed out wt a loude voyce and Heb.iiii.c sayd: O euerlasting God, *ẏ searcher of secretes, thou ẏ knowest al thinges afore they come to passe: thou wottest that they haue borne false witnesse against me, and beholde, I must dye, wheras I neuer dyd such thinges, as these mē haue malicious ly inuented against me. And the Lorde heard her voyce. For when she was ledde forth to death, the Lord raysed vp the spirit of a yong childe, whose name was Da niel, which cryed wt a loude voyce: *I am F cleane from thys bloud. Then all the peo

What meane these wordes, that thou hast Act,xx,b, spoken: Daniel stode in the myddest of thē and sayd: are ye such fooles, O ye children of Israell, ẏ ye can not discerne nor know the truth: ye haue here cōdēned a daugh ter of Israell vnto death, and knowe not the truth wherfore. So sit on iudgemente agayne, for they haue spokē fals witnesse against her.

Wherfore the people turned againe in all the hast. And the elders (ẏ is the prin cipall heades) sayd vnto hym: come, syt down here among vs, and shew vs thys matter, seeing God hath geuen thee as iii.Re.iii,d great honor as an elder. And Daniel said vnto them: * put these two asyde one frō another, and thē shall I heare them. Whē they were put a sunder one from another he called one of them and sayd vnto hym: O holde cankered carle, ẏ hast vsed thy wyckednesse so long: thine vngracious dedes (which ẏ hast done afore) are nowe come to light. For ẏ hast geuē false iudge mentes, ẏ hast oppressed ẏ innocente, and letten the gilty go free, wheras yet ẏ lord sayth: *the innocent and righteous, see ẏ slay not. Well then, if ẏ hast sene her, tell me vnder what tre sawest ẏ them talking together. He answered: vnder a Molbery tree. And Daniell sayd: very well, now ẏ lyest euen vpon thyne own head. Loe, the messaunger of the Lord hath receiued the sentence of hym, to cut thee in two. Then put he hym asyde, and called for the other, and sayd vnto hym: O thou sede of Cana an, but not of Iuda: fairnesse hath discea ued thee, and lust hath subuerted thyne heart. Thus dealt ye afore with ẏ daugh ters of Israel, and they (for feare) consen ted vnto you: but the daughter of Iuda would not abyde your wyckednesse. Now tell me then vnder what tree diddest thou take them speaking together. He answe red: vnder a Pomegranate tree. Thē sayd Danyell vnto hym: very well now ẏ lyest also euen vppon thyne head. The mes sāger of the Lord standeth wayting with the sweard to cut you in two, and to slay you both.

With that al the whole multitude gaue a great shoute, and praysed God, * which alway deliuered them that put their trust in hym. And they came vppon the two el ders, whom Daniell had conuict wt their own mouth, that they had geuē false wit nesse, and dealt with them, euen likewise as they would haue done wt their neigh bours: yea, they did *according to the law of Moses, and put them to death. Thus ẏ innocent bloud was saued the same day.
Then Helchia and hys wyfe praysed god for their daughter Susanna, with Ioa chim her husbande and all the kynred: ẏ there was no dishonesty founde in her.
From that day forth was Daniell had in great reputation in the sight of ẏ people.
(And kyng Astiages was layd with hys fathers, and Cirus of Persia, raygned in hys steade.)

¶ The ende of the history of Susanna.

The History of Bell, and of the dragon, which is the fourtene Chapter of Danyell after the Latyne.

A Danyell dyd eate at the kynges table, and was had in reuerence aboue all hys frendes. There was at Babylō an ymage, called Bell: & there were spent vppon hym euery day .xii. cakes, .xl. shepe, and .vi. great pots of wine. Him did the kyng worshyp hymselfe, & went dayly to honor hym: but Danyell worshypped hys own God. And ẏ king sayd vnto him: why dost not thou worship Bell. He answered & sayd: * bicause I may not worshyp thyngs that be made with handes,* But the liuing God, which made heauen and earth, and hath power vpon all flesh. The kyng sayd vnto hym: thynkest thou not that Bell is a liuing God? Or seest ẏ not how much he eateth and drynketh euery day? Danyell smyled and sayd: O kyng, disceaue not thy selfe, for thys is but made of clay within, & of metal wythout* neyther eateth he euer any thing.

B Then the kyng was wroth, and called for hys Priests, and sayd vnto them: if ye tell me not who is thys, that eateth vp these expences, ye shall dye. but if ye can certifie me that Bell eateth them, thē Danyel shal dye, for he hath spoken blasphemy against Bell. And Danyell sayd vnto the kyng: let it so be, according as ẏ haste sayd: the Priestes of Bell were .lxx. beside their wiues and children. And the kyng went with Daniell into ẏ temple of Bell. So Bels Priestes sayd: Lo, we wil go out and set thou the meate ther (O kyng) and poure in the wyne, then shut the dore fast and seale it with thyne own signet: and to morow when thou commest in, if thou fyndest not that Bell hath eaten vp all, we wyl suffer death, or els Daniell that hath lyed vpō vs. The Priestes thought them selues sure ynough, for vnder the aulter they had made a priuy entraunce, & there went they in euer, and dyd eate vp what there was.

C So when they were gone forth, ẏ kyng set meates before Bell. Now Danyel had commaunded hys seruauntes to bryng asshes, and these he syfted thorowout al the temple, ẏ the kyng myght see. Then went they out, & sparred ẏ dore, sealing it with the kynges sygnet, and so departed. In ẏ nyght came the Priestes wt their wiues and childrē (as they were wont to do) and dyd eate and drynk vp all. In ẏ morning betymes at ẏ breake of ẏ day, ẏ king arose and Danyell with hym. And ẏ kyng said: Daniell, are the seales whole yet? He answered: Yea (O king) they be whole. Now as sone as he had opened the dore, ẏ king loked vnto the aulter, and cryed wyth a loude voyce: Great art thou, O Bell, and with thee is no disceit. Thē laughed Danyell, and helde the kyng that he shoulde not go in, and sayd: behold ẏ pauemente, marke well whose fote steppes are these. The kyng sayd: I see the foote steppes of men, wemen and children. Therfore the kyng was angry, and toke the Priestes, with their wiues and children, and they shewed hym the priuy dores, where they came in, and did eate vp such thynges as were vpon the aulter. For the which cause the kyng slue thē * & deliuered Bell into Daniels power, which destroyed him and hys temple. And in ẏ same place ther was a great dragō, which they of Babilō worshipped. And ẏ kyng sayd vnto Danyell: sayest ẏ, that thys is but a God of metal also? Loe, he lyueth, he eateth and drinketh, so that thou canst not say, that he is no liuing God, therfore, worship hym. Daniell sayd vnto the kyng: I wyll worship the Lord my God. * He is the true liuing god as for thys, he is not the God of lyfe. But geue me leaue (O kyng) and I shall destroy this dragō without sweard or staffe. The kyng sayd: I geue thee leaue. Then Daniel toke pitch, fat, and heary wol, and dyd seeth them together, and made lōpes therof: thys he put in the dragons mouth and so the dragon burst in sunder. & Daniel said: lo, there is he: whom ye worshipped. When they of Babilon heard ẏ, they toke great indignatiō and gathered thē together against the kyng, saying: The kyng is become a Jew, and he hath destroyed Bell, he hath slayne the dragon, & put the Priestes to death. So they came to the kyng, and sayd: let vs haue Daniel, or els we wyll destroy thee & thine house. Now when the kyng saw, that they russhed in so sore vpō hym, and that necessitie constrayned hym, * he deliuered Daniel vnto thē which cast hym into the Lyons denn, wher he was .vi. dayes, In the denn ther wer .vii. the Angell of the Lord set Abacuc in hys

The prayer of Manasses kyng of Iuda,when he was holden captiue in Babilon.

O Lord Almightie, God of our fathers Abraham,Isaac,and Iacob, and of ye righteous sede of them, which hast made heauen and earth,with al the ornamentes therof,whiche hast ordeined the Sea,by the word of thy commaundement,which hast shut vp the depe,and hast sealed it for thy fearefull & laudable name,which al men feare, and tremble before the face of thy vertue, and for the anger of thy threatening, ye which is importable to synners. But the mercye of thy promyse is great,and vnsearchable for thou art the lord God most hye aboue al the earth,long suffring,and exceading merciful,and repentaunte for the malyce of men. Thou Lord after thy goodnesse hast promysed repentaunce of the remission of synnes,and thou yt art the God of ryghteous,hast not put repentaunce to ye righteous Abraham,Isaac, and Iacob, vnto them that haue synned against thee But bicause I haue synned aboue the nu̅ber of the sandes of the sea,and that mine iniquities are multiplied,I am humbled with many bandes of yron, and there is in me no breathing : I haue prouoked thine anger, and haue done euill before thee,in committing abhominations and multiplying offences. And now I bow ye knees of my heart, requiring goodnesse of thee, O Lord. I haue synned, Lorde I haue synned,and know myne iniquitie. I desyre thee by prayer, O Lorde forgeue me:forgeue me,and destroy me not wyth myne iniquities,nether do thou allwayes remember myne euils, to punyshe them, but saue me(which am vnworthy) after thy great mercy:and I wyl prayse thee euerlastyngly,al the dayes of my life:for al the vertue of heauen prayseth thee, and vnto thee belongeth glory world without ende. Amen.

The fyrst booke of the Machabees.

After the death of Alexander the kyng of Macedonia, Antiochus taketh the kingdome. Many of the chyldren of Israel make couenaunte with the Gentiles. Antiochus subdueth Egipte and Jerusalem vnto his dominion. Jerusalem being burnt maketh lawes of her owne, and forbiddeth to kepe Gods lawes. Antiochus setteth vp an ydol ouer the aultare of God.

A After that Alexander the sonne of Philippe kyng of Macedonia went forth of the lande of Cethim, & slewe Darius kyng of the Persians and Medes, it happened that he tooke i.spa.vi, a great warres in hande, wanne very mighte strong cityes, and slewe many kynges of the earth, goyng thorowe to the endes of the worlde, and gettyng many spoyles of the people: insomuche that the worlde stoode in great awe of hym. And Ionu.i.b therfore was he proude in his hart. Now when he had gathered a mightye strong hoste and subdued the landes and people with their princes, so ŷ thei became tributaries vnto hym, he fell sicke. And when he perceyued that he muste nedes dye, he called for his noble estates (which had be brought vp with him of children) & par- Da, viii, a yere and then dyed. tiqui.Lib After his death fell the kyngdom vnto ii.Cap.i. his princes, & they obtained it euerye one in his rowme, and caused thē selues to be crowned as kinges, and so did their children after them many yeres, and muche wickednesse increased in ŷ world. Out of these came ŷ vngracious roote noble An-tiochus, the sonne of Antiochus the king, (which had bene a pledge at Rome) ii.spa.viii a. and he reygned in the hundred and seuē and thirtye yeare of the Empyre of the Grekes.

In those dayes went there out of Israel wicked mē, which moued much peo- B ple with their counsayle, saying: *Let vs Iu.viii.a. go & make a couenant with the heathen, that are round about vs: for since we de- Ie.xliiii,a parted frō thē we haue had much sorow.
So this deuice pleased thē well, and certain of the people toke vpon them for to goe vnto the kyng, whiche gaue them licence to doe after the ordinaunce of the heathen. *Then set they vp an opē schole i.spa.iiii.b.
(at Jerusalem) of ŷ lawes of the heathen, & were no more circumcised, but forsoke the holy testament, and ioyned thē selues to the heathen, & and were cleane solde to do mischief. So when Antiochus begā iii.iii.xxi b to be mighty in his kingdom, he went about to obtain the lande of Egipte also, that he might haue the dominion of two realmes. And vpō this entred he into Egipt ii.spa.v b with a strong hoste, with charrettes, Elephantes, horsemen, and a great number of shyps, and beganne to warre agaynste Ptolomy the kyng of Egipt. But Ptolomy was afrayde of hym and fledde: and many of his people were wounded to death Thus Antiochus wanne manye strong cities and toke away great good out of the lande of Egipt.
And after ŷ Antiochus had smytten C Egypte, he turned agayne in the Cxliii. ii.spa.v.e yere, and went toward Israell, and came vp to Jerusalem with a mightye people: and entred proudly into the sanctuarie, and toke awaye the golden aultare, ŷ can-dlesticke and al the ornamentes therof, ŷ table of ŷ shewbread, the pouryng vessell, the chargers, the golden spones, the vail, the crownes, and the golden apparel of ŷ temple, and brake downe al. He toke also the siluer and golde, the precious iewels, and the secrete treasures that he founde.
And whē he had taken away altogether, he caused a great murther of mē, & so fulfilled his malicious pride, he departed into his owne lande.
Thus there arose great heauynesse & miserye in all the lande of Israell. The ii.spa.v.e princes & the elders of ŷ people mourned, the yong men and the maidens were defiled, and the fayre beauty of wemen was chaunged: the bridegrome and the bryde toke them to mourning:the lande,& those that dwelt therin,was mourning:for all the house of Jacob was brought to confusion. ii.Ma.b ¶ After two yeres ẏ king set his chefe receyuer into the cities of Juda, which came to Jerusalē wᵗ a great multitude of people speaking peaceable wordes vnto them, but all was disceyte: for when they had geuen him credence, he fell sodainly vppon the citye, and smote it sore,and destroyed muche people of Israell. ¶ And i.Ma.vii. b. when he hadde spoyled the citie, he sette fyre on it,castyng down houses & walles on euery syde. The wome and their children toke they captiue,and ledde awaye theyr cattell. Then bulded they the citye of Dauid with a greate and thicke wall, and with mighty towres, and made it a strong hold for them. Besyde all this,thei set wicked people and vngodlye men to kepe it,stored it with weappons and vital-les:gathered the goodes of Jerusalem & layed them vp there: thus became it a cheuish castell.

And this was done to lay wait for the people that went in to the sanctuary,and for the cruell destruction of Israel. Thus they shed innocent bloud on euery side of ẏ sanctuary,& defiled it: Insomuche that the citizens were fayne to depart,and the city became an habitatiō of straungers,be-

E ¶ Antiochus also ẏ king sent out a cōii.Ma.vi, a, mission vnto all his kyngdom,that al the people should be one. Thē they left euery man his law,and all the heathen agreed to the commaundemente of kyng Antiochus:yea,many of the Israelites consented thereunto,offeryng vnto Idols, and defiling ẏ Sabboth. So the kyng Antiochus sent his messangers with his commission vnto Jerusalem, and to al the cities of Juda:That thy should folow the lawes of the heathen, and forbad eyther burnt offeryng, meate offering, or peace offeryng to be made in the temple of God, and that they should not Sabboth nor hie feast day be kepte: but commaunded that the sanctuary and the holy people of Israel should bee defiled. He commaunded also that there should bee sette vp other altares,temples, and Idols: to offer vp swynes flesh, and other vncleane beastes that men should leaue their children vn-circumcised,to defile their soules with al maner of vnclennesse & abhominations: that they myght so forgette the law, and chaunge all the holy ordinaunces of god: and that whosoeuer would not do accor-dyng to the commaundement of king An-tiochus,shuld suffer death. In like maner commaunded he throughout al his realm, and set rulers ouer the people,for to compel them to do these things,cōmaūding ẏ cities of Juda,to do sacrifice vnto Idols.
Then went the people vnto the heathens by heapes, forsooke the lawe of the lord, and committed much euyll in the lande: yea,and chased out the secrete Israelites whiche hadde hyd themselues in corners and priuy places. The fiftene day of the moneth Casleu in the hundred and fyue and fourtye yeare, sette kyng Antiochus an abhominable Idoll of desolation vpō the altare of God, and they buylded altares throughout all ẏ cities of Juda on euery syde before the doores of ẏ houses, & in the stretes:where they brent incense and dyd sacrifice. ¶ And as for the bokes of the lawe of God,thei brent them in the fyre,and rent them in peces. What soeuer he was that had a boke of the testament of the Lord founde by him:yea, whoso-uer endeuored hymself to kepe the law of the Lorde,the kynges commaundement was,that they shoulde put hym to death.
And through his authority thei executed these thinges euery moneth vpon ẏ people of Israell that were founde in the ci-tyes.
¶ The fiue and twenty day of the mo- G neth,what tyme as they dyd sacrifice vpō ii.Ma. b. the altare(which stode in the stede of the altare of the Lord) accordyng to the commaundemēt of king Antiochus, they put certain womē to death,which had caused their children to be circumcised: Not only that,but they hanged vp the children by the neckes,throughout al theyr houses,& slew the circumcisers of them.
Yet were there many of the people of Israel,which determined in themselues, ẏ they would not eate vncleane thinges: but chose rather to suffer death,thē to bee defiled with vncleane meates. And bicause they would not breake the blessed law of God,they were cruelly slayne. And thys great tiranny endured very sore vpon ẏ people of Israell.

The

The .ii. Chapter.

The mourning of Matthathias and his sonnes for the destruction of the holy citie. They refuse to do sacrifice unto ydols. The zele of Matthathias for the lawe of god. They are slaine and wil not fighte agaynst because of the Sabboth daie. Matthathias dying commaundeth his sonne to stick by the word of god after the ensamples of the fathers.

IN those dayes there did stād up one Matthathias ẏ sonn of John, the sonne of Simeon the Priest (out of the kin-red of Joaris) from Jerusalem, and dwelte uppon the mounte of Modin, and had fiue sonnes, John called Caddis, Simon called Thasi: Judas other wyse called Machabeus: Eleazer, otherwyse called Abaron: and Jonathas, whose sirname was Apphus. These saw the euyll that was done among the people of Juda and Jerusalem. And Matthathias sayde: Woe is me, alas that euer I was borne, to se this misery of my people, and the pitcous destruction of ẏ holy city: and thus to sit so styll, it beyng delyuered into the handes of the enemies.
Her sanctuary is come into the power of straungers: Her temple is, as it wer a mā that hath lost his good name: Her precious ornamentes are caryed away captiue.
Her olde men are slain in the streetes, and her yong men are fallen through ẏ sword of the enemies.

What people is it that hath not some possession in her kingdome? Or who hath not gotten some of her spoyles? All her glorye is taken awaye. She was a free woman and now she is become an hand mayde.

Beholde our sanctuary, our beautye & B honor is wasted away, and defyled by the Gentiles. What helpeth it us then to liue?
And Matthathias rēt his clothes, he and his sonnes, and put sackcloth upon them and mourned very sore.

Then came the mē thither which wer sent of kyng Antiochus to compell suche as were fledde into the city of Modin, for to do sacrifice, & to burne incense unto Idols, and to forsake the lawe of God. So manye of the people of Israell consented and enclined unto thē, but Matthathias and his sonnes remained stedfast. Then spake the commissioners of kyng Antiochus, and sayde unto Matthathias: thou art a noble manne, of hyghe reputation and great in this city, hauing fayre chyldren and brethren. Come thou therefore firste, and fulfyll the kynges commaun-dement, lyke as al the heathē haue done: yea, and the men of Juda, and such as re-mayne at Jerusalem: so shalte thou and thy chyldren be in the kynges fauor and enryched with golde, siluer, and great rewardes.

Matthathias answered, & spake with a loude voyce: Though all nations obey the kyng Antiochus, and fall away euery man from kepinge the lawe of theyr fathers: Though they consent to his commaundementes, yet wyl I and my sonnes and brethren not fall from the law of our fathers. God forbyd we shoulde, that wer not good for us: that we shoulde forsake the law and ordinaunces of God, and to Act. v, b, agree unto the commaundement of king Antiochus. Therfore we wyl do no suche sacrifice, neyther breake ẏ statutes of our lawe, to goe another way. And when he Pro. iiii c had spokē these wordes, ther came one of the Jewes, which openly in the syghte of all, dyd sacrifice unto the Idols upon the altare, in the citie of Modin, accordyng to the kynges commaundement.

When Matthathias saw this, it greued C him at the harte, so that his raynes shoke withall, and his wrath kyndled for verye zeale of the lawe. With that he starte up, and killed the Jew besyde the altar. yea, & slew the kinges commissioner, that cō-pelled him to do sacrifice, & destroyed ẏ altare at ẏ same time: such a zele had he unto ẏ law of god. Like as Phinehes dyd unto Zambri ẏ sōn of Salomi. And Mat- Nu. xxv b thathias cryed with a loud voyce thorow ẏ citie, saying: Whoso is feruent in ẏ law, and wil kepe the couenant, let hym folow me. So he and his sonnes fledde into ẏ ii. Pa. b. c mountaynes, and lefte al that euer they had in the city. Many other godly mē also departed into the wildernesse w theyr chyldren, theyr wyues and theyr cattell, and remained there: for the tirannye increased sore upon them.

Now when the kinges seruauntes, and the host, which was at Jerusalē in ẏ citye D of Dauid, heard that certayne men hadde broken the kings commaundement, and wer gone theyr way to ẏ wildernes into secrete places, & ẏ there wer many departed after thē: they folowed upon them, to fyght against them on the Sabboth day, and sayd: wyll ye yet rebell? Get you hēce, and do the commaundement of king An-tiochus, and ye shal liue. They answered:

Josu,i.8. ✠We wyl not go forth, neither wil we do the kinges commaundement, to defile the Sabboth daye. Then began they to fyght against them: Neuerthelesse, they gaue them none other aunswer, nyther cast they one stone at them, nor made fast their priuy places, but sayde: we wyll dye all in our innocency, heauen & earth shall testify with vs, y^t ye put vs to death wrongfully. Thus they fought against thē vpon the Sabboth, and slewe both menne and cattel, their wiues, and their children to y^e number of a thousande people.

E When Matthathias and his frendes heard this, they mourned for them ryght sore, and said one to another: If so be that we all do as our brethren haue done, and fight not for our liues, and for our lawes against the heathen, then shall they sone rote vs out of the earth. So they concluded among themselues at the same tyme, saying: what soeuer he be that cometh to make battaile with vs vpō the Sabboth day, we wil fight against him & not die al as our brethren that were murthered so haynously. Vpō this came the Sinagoge of the Jewes vnto thē strong men of Israel, all such as were feruent in the lawe. And al thei y^t wer fled for persecutiō came to help them, and to stand by them: Insomuch that they gathered an host of men, and slewe the wicked doers in their gelousy, & the vngodly men in their wrath. Som of the wicked fled vnto y^e heathen, and escaped.

Thus Matthathias & his frendes wēt about, & destroyed the altares & circumcised the children that had not yet receiued circumcisiō: as many as they found within y^e coastes of Israel: and folowed mightely vpon the children of pryde, and this act prospered in their handes: Insomuch that thei kept the law against the power of the Gentiles and the kyngs: and gaue not ouer their dominion vnto wicked doers.

After this, when the time drew on fast
F that Matthathias should die, he said vnto his sonnes: Now is pride and persecution increased, now is the time of destruction and wrathful displeasure: wherefore (O my sonnes) be ye feruent in the law, and ieoparde youre lyues for the Testament of the fathers, call to remembraunce what actes our fathers dyd in their time, so shall ye receiue great honor and an euerlasting name.

✠Remēber Abraham, was he not foūd faithful in temptation, and it was reckened vnto hym for righteousnes: ✠Joseph in tyme of his trouble, kept the commaūdement, and was made a Lord of Egipt. *Phinehes our father was so feruēt for y^e honour of god, that he obtained the couenāt of an euerlastyng priesthode. ✠Jesus for fulfilling the word of God, was made the captain of Israel. *Caleb bare record before the congregation, and receiued an heritage. ✠Dauid also in his mercifull kindenes, obtayned y^e trone of an euerlastyng kingdome. ✠Elias being gelous & feruente in the lawe, was taken vp into heauen. Hananias, Azarias and Misael, remayned stedfast in faith, and wer delyuered out of y^e fier. In like maner Daniel being vngilty, was saued from y^e mouthe of the Lions.

G And thus ye may consider throughout al ages since y^e world began, * that whosoeuer putte theyr trust in God, were not ouercom. Feare not ye then y^e woordes of an vngodly manne. For his glorye is but dong and wormes, to daye is he set vp, & to morowe is he gone: for he is turned into earth, and his memoryal is come to nought. Wherefore (O my sonnes) take good hartes vnto you, and quite your selues like men in the lawe, for if ye doe the thyngs that are commaunded you in the lawe of the Lorde youre God, ye shall obtayn great honor therin.

And behold, I knowe that your brother Simon is a man of wisedome: see that ye geue eare vnto hym alway, he shalbe a father vnto you. As for Judas Machabeus he hath euer bene mightye and strōg frō his youth vp: Let him be your captayne, & order the battaile of the people: Thus shal ye bring vnto you al those that fauor the lawe, & see that ye auenge the wrong of youre people and recompence the heathen again and apply your selues whole to the commaundement of the lawe. So he gaue them his blessing and was layde by his fathers: and died in the .cxlvi. yere at Modin, where his sonnes buried hym in his fathers sepulchre, and all Israell made great lamentation for him.

Judas is made ruler ouer y^e Jewes. He killeth Appolonius & Seron the princes of Siria. The cōfidence of Judas toward god. Judas determineth to fight against Lisias, whō Antiochus had made captaine ouer his hoste. The prayer of the abstyners.

Then

THen stode vp Judas Ma-chabeus in hys fathers stede, & al his brethrē helped him, & so did al they ẏ helde with his fathers, & foughte wt cherefulnesse for Israell. So Judas gat his people great honoure. He put on a brest plate as a Giaunt, & arayed himself with his harnesse, & defended the host with his swearde. In his actes he was like a Lion, & as a liōs whelpe roaring at his pray. *He was an enemy to ẏ wicked, & hunted them out: *and brent vp those, ẏ vexed his people. So ẏ his enemies fled for feare of him, and al the workers of vn-godlynes wer put to trouble: such lucke & prosperity was in his hand. This greued diuers kings, but Jacob was greatly reioyced thorow his actes, & he gat himselfe a great name for euer.

He went thorow the cityes of Juda, destroying the vngodly out of thē, tourning away the wrath from Israel, & receiuing such as wer oppressed: & the fame of hym went vnto the vttermost parte of ẏ earth.
Then Appolonius (a prince of Siria) gathered a mighty great host of the heathē, and out of Samaria, to fight against Israel. Which whē Judas perceiued, he wēt forth to mete hī, fought wt him, slew him, & a great multitude with him: ẏ remnaūt fled, & he toke their substaūce. Judas also toke Appolonius own sweard, & fought with it al his life long.

Now when Seron (another prince of B Siria) heard say, ẏ Judas had gathered vnto him the congregation & church of ẏ faithful, he sayd: I wil get me a name & a praise throughout the realme: for I will go fight with Judas & thē that are with him, as many as haue despised the kings cōmaundement. So he made him ready, and there went with him a great mighty host of the vngodly, to stand by hym, & to be auenged of the childrē of Israell. And F. when they came nye vnto Bethoron, Judas went forth against thē with a small company. And when hys people saw such a great host before thē, they said vnto Judas: How are we able (being so fewe) to fight against so great a multitude and so stronge, seing we be so wearye, & haue fasted al this day.

* But Judas sayd: It is a small matter for many to be ouercome wt fewe: yea, ther is no difference to ẏ God of heauē, to deliuer by a great multitude, or by a small cōpany: *for the victorye of the battayle standeth not in the multitude of the host, but ẏ strength cometh from heauen. Behold, thei com against vs wt a presumptu- 2.Pa.25 ous & proude multitude to destroy vs, our b wiues, and our children, & to rob vs. But we wil fyght for our lyues, & our lawes, and the Lord himself shal destroy the before our face: therfore be not ye afrayde of them.

As soone as he had spokē these wordes, C he leapt sodaynly vpon them. Thus was Seron smitten, and his host put to flight, & Judas folowed vpō thē beyond Bethoron vnto the plaine field: wher there wer slayne eight hundred men of them, and ẏ residue fled into the land of ẏ Philistines.
Then al the heathen on euery side wer a-frayd of Judas and his brethren: so ẏ the rumoure of hym came vnto the kynges eares, for al the Gentiles coulde tel of the warres of Judas.

So when king Antiochus heard these D tydynges, he was angrye in hys mynde: wherfore he sent forth, & gathered an host of his whole realme, very strong armyes, & opened hys treasury and gaue hys host a yeares wages in hand, commaundyng them to be ready at al times.

Neuerthelesse, whē he saw, ẏ there was not money ynough in his treasuries, and ẏ thorow the discord & persecution, which he made in the lande (to put downe the lawes that had ben of old times) hys customes and tributes of the land wer minis-shed: he feared ẏ he was not able for to beare the costes and charges any longer, nor to haue such giftes, to geue so liberally as he did afore, more than the kynges that were before hym.

Wherfore he was heauy in hys mynd, 1.Ma.6.a and thought to goe into Persydes, for to take tributes of the land, and so to gather muche money. So he left Lisias (a noble man of the kynges bloude) to ouersee the kynges busynesses, frō the water Euphrates vnto the borders of Egipt: and to kepe wel hys sōne Antiochus, til he came agayne.

Moreouer, he gaue hym halfe of his host & Elephauntes, & cōmitted vnto him euery thyng of his mind, cōcernyng those which E dwelt in Juda & Jerusalē: that he should send out an army agaynst thē, to destroy & to roote out ẏ power of Israel, & ẏ remnaunt of Jerusalē: to put out their memorial frō ẏ place: to set straungers for to in-habite all theyr quarters, and parte their land among them: Thus the king toke other part of the host, and departed from Antioch (a citye of his realme) ouer y^e water of Euphrates, in the hundred & .xlvii. yeare, and wente thorow the hygh countreyes.

2 Ma,8 b * And Lisias chose vnto him Ptolo-mie the sonne of Doriminus, Nicanor, & Gorgias mightye men, and the kynges frendes. These he sent with fortye thousande foote men, and seuen thousande horsemen, for to goe into the lande of Iu-da, and to destroy it, as the king cõmaunded. So they went forth with all theyr power, and came to Emaus into y^e plaine fielde.
When the Marchauntes hearde the rumoure of them, they and theyr seruauntes, toke very much siluer and gold, for to by the children of Israel to be their bondemen: There came vnto them also F yet moe men of warre on euery side, out of Siria, and from the Philistines.
Now when Iudas and his brethren saw that trouble increased, and that the host drewe nye vnto their borders, consy-dering the kinges wordes which he commaunded vnto the people: namely that they shoulde vtterlye waste and destroy them: They sayde one to another: Let vs redresse the decaye of our people, let vs fight for our folke and for oure Sanctuarye. Then the congregation were soone ready gathered to fyghte, to praye, and to make supplycation vnto God for mercye 1,Ma i.d and grace.
*As for Ierusalem, it layde voyde, and was as it had bene a wyldernesse.
There wente no man in or oute at it, and the Sanctuarye was troden down. The aleauntes kepte the castell, there was the habitacion of the Heathen. The myrthe of Iacob was taken awaye, the pipe & the harpe was gone from amonge G them.
The Israelytes gathered them together, and came to Maspha before Ieru salem: for in Maspha was the place* 2,Ki,7.d where they prayed afore tyme in Israell. So they fasted that daye, and put sackeclothes vpon them, caste ashes vpon theyr heades, rente their clothes and layde forthe the bookes of the law (whereoute the Heathen sought the like-nesse of theyr ymages) and brought the Nu, vi,b priestes ornamentes, the fyrstlynges and the tithes. They set there also the * abstayners (whiche had fulfilled their day-es) before GOD, and cried with a loude H voyce, towarde heauen, saying: What shal we do with these, and whether shall we carye them awaye? For thy Sanctu-arye is troden downe and defyled, thy priestes are come to heuynesse, and disho-noure: and beholde, the Heathen are come together for to destroye vs. Thou knowest what thynges they ymagine a-gaynst vs. Howe maye we stande before them, excepte thou (O God) be our helpe.
They blewe oute the trompettes also with a loude voyce. Then Iudas ordeined * captaynes ouer the people: ouer thousandes, ouer hundredes, ouer fiftie, Ex.18, and ouer ten. But as for suche as builded them houses, maryed wyues, planted them vyneyardes, and those that were fearefull: he commaunded them euery man to goe home agayne, accordynge * to the lawe. So the hoste remoued, De.20, and pytched vpon the southe syde of E- Jud,7. maus.
And Iudas sayde: Arme your sel-ues, be strong (O my children) make you readye agaynste to morowe in the mornynge, that ye maye fyghte wyth these people, whyche are agreed together to destroye vs and oure Sanctu- Mat.6, arye. Better is it for vs to dye in bat- Luk,22 tayle, than to see oure people, and oure Sanctuarye in suche a myserable case.
* Neuerthelesse, as thy will is in heauen so be it.

The .iiii. Chapter.

☞ Iudas goeth agaynste Gorgias, which lyeth in wayte, dryueth Gorgias and hys hoste to flyght. Lisias inuadeth Iewry, but Iudas dryueth him out. Iudas purifieth the Temple and dedicateth the aultare.

THen toke Gorgias fyue I thousande men of foote, Iosep. and a thousande of the Lib.12 beste horsemen, and re- Cap.11 moued by nyght, to come nye wher the Iewes host laye, and so to slay them sodaynlye. Nowe the men that kept the Castell, were the conueyers of them.
Then arose Iudas to smyte the chiefe and principall of the kynges hoste at Emaus, for the armye was not yet com togyther

together. In the meane season came Gorgyas by nyght into Judas tentes: and when he founde no man there, he sought them in the Mountaynes, and thoughte they had bene fled away, bycause of hym. But when it was day, Judas shewed hymselfe in the fielde with thre thousande men onely, whiche had neither harnesse, nor sweardes to theyr myndes. But on the other syde, they sawe that the Heathen were mighty and well harnessed, and their horsemen aboute them, and all these well expert in feates of warre. Then sayd Judas to the men that were with hym: Feare ye not the multytude of them, be not afrayed of theyr violente runnyng: remember, Ex.14.f. howe our fathers were delyuered * in the read sea, when Pharao folowed vpon them with a greate hoste. Euen so let vs also cry now towarde heauen, and the LORDE shall haue mercye vpon vs, and remember the couenaunte of oure fathers: yea, and destroye thys hoste before oure face thys daye: And al the Heathen shall knowe that it is GOD hymselfe, whiche delyuereth and saueth Israell.

B Then the Heathen lyfte vp theyr eyes, and when thei saw that they wer commyng agaynste them, they went out of theyr tentes into the battayle: and they that were with Judas, blewe vp the trompettes. * So they buckled together, and the Heathen were dyscomfited, and fled ouer the playne fielde: but the hynmoste of them were slayne. For they folowed vpon them vnto Assaremoth, and into the fieldes of Idumea, towarde Azot and Jamnia: so that there were slayne of them vpon a thre thousande menne. So Judas tourned agayne wyth hys hoste, and sayde vnto the people: Be not gredy of the spoyles, we haue yet a battayle to fyght, for Gorgias and hys hoste are here by vs in the Mountaines, but stande ye fast agaynste oure enemyes, and ouercome them, then may ye safelye take the spoyles.

C As Judas was speaking these wordes, beholde there appeared one parte of them vpon the mounte. But when Gorgias sawe that they of hys partye wer fled and the tentes brente vp (for by the smoke they myght vnderstande what was done) they perceauyng thys, were verye sore afrayde: and when they sawe also that Judas and hys hoste were in the fielde readye to strike battayle, they fled euerichone into the lande of the heathen.

So Judas tourned agayne to spoyle the tentes, where they gat muche gold, and siluer, precyous stones, purple, and greate richesse. Thus they went home and song a Psalme of thankesgeuynge, and praysed GOD in heauen: * for he is gracious and hys mercy endureth for euer. And so Israell had a greate victorye in that daye. Psalme, 107.a. Ps.108 Nowe all the Heathen that escaped, came and tolde Lisias euerye thyng as it happened. Wherfore Lisias was sore afrayd, and greued in hys mynde, bycause Israell had not gotten suche myscfortune, as he woulde they shoulde, neyther as the Kynge commaunded. The nexte yeare folowynge gathered Lisias three score thousande chosen menne of foote, and fiue thousande horsemen to fyght agaynste them.

D So they came into Jewrye, and pytched theyr tentes at Bethoron, where Judas came agaynste them wyth ten thousande men. And when he sawe so greate and myghtye an hoste, he made hys prayer, and sayde: Blessed be thou (O sauioure of Israell) * whiche dyddeste destroye the violente power of the Gyaunte, in the hande of thy seruaunt 1.Re.17.g David, * and gaueste the hoste of the heathen into the hande of Jonathas (the sonne of Saule) and of his weapon bearer. 1.Re.14.b Put thys hoste nowe into the hand of thy people of Israel, and let them be confounded in their multitude and horsemen. Make them afrayed, and dyscomforte the boldenesse of theyr strength, that they maye be moued thorowe theyr destruction. Caste them downe thorow the swearde of thy louers, then shall all they that knowe thy name, prayse thee with thankesgeuing. So they stroke the battayle, and there were slayne of Lisias hoste fyue thousande men. Then Lysias seyng the discomfityng of hys men, and the manlynesse of the Jewes, howe they were ready, eyther to lyue or dye lyke men: He went vnto Antioche and chose oute men of warre: that when they were gathered together, they might come agayne into Jewrye.

Then sayd Judas and hys brethren, beholde, our enemies are discomfyted: Let vs now go vp, to clense and to repaire the E Sanctuary.

2. Pa. x. a * Upon this, al the host gathered the together, and went vp into mounte Sion.
Now whe thei saw the Sanctuary layed wast, ȳ aultar defiled, the dores brent vp, the shrubbes growing in the courtes like as in a wood or vpon mountaines, yea & ȳ the priestes Celles were broken down: Thei rent their clothes, made great lame-tatiō, cast asshes vpō their heads, fel down flat to ȳ ground, made a great noyse with the trompettes, and cryed towarde heauen.

Then Judas appoynted certayn mē to fight agaynst those which were in ȳ castel tyl they had clensed ȳ Sanctuary. So he chose priests that were vndefiled, such as had pleasure in ȳ law of God: & they clen-sed ȳ Sanctuary: and bare out ȳ defyled stones into an vncleane place. And for so much as the aultar of burntoffrings was vnhalowed, he toke aduisement, what he might do wall, so he thought it was best to destroy it (lest it should happē to do thē any shame) for the heathē had defiled it & therefore thei brake it downe. As for the stones thei layd thē vp vpō ȳ mountaine by ȳ house, in a conuenient place: til there came a Prophet, to shewe what should be done with them.
F * So thei toke whole stones, according to Ex. xx. d. De. 27. a Josue viii. g ȳ law, & builded a new aultar, such one as was before, & made vp ȳ Sanctuary win and without, & halowed ȳ house, and the courtes. They made new ornamētes, and brought the candelsticke, ȳ aultare of incense, & the table into the temple. The incense laied they vpon ȳ aultar, & lighted ȳ lampes which wer vpon ȳ candelsticke that they might burne in ȳ temple. They set ȳ shewebread vpō the table, and hanged vp the vayle, & set vp the temple, as it . Pa. x. a was afore.
* And vpon the fyue & twenty day of the ninth moneth, which is called ȳ moneth Nouember. of Casleu, in ȳ hundred and eight & forty yeare: thei rose vp by times in ȳ morning, for to do sacrifice (according to the law) vpon the new burntoffring aultar ȳ they had made: after ȳ tyme and season that ȳ heathē had defiled it. The same day was it set vp agayn, with songs, pypes, harpes and cimbales.
G And al the people fel vpon their faces, worshipping and thanking the God of heauen, which had geuen them ȳ victory.
* So they kept ȳ dedication of the aultar 2. Pa. 7. b eyght dayes, offring burnt sacrifice, and thankesoffrynges with gladnesse. They deckt ȳ temple also with crownes & shil-des of gold, & halowed the portes & celles & hanged dores vpō thē. Thus ther was very great gladnesse among ȳ people bi-cause the blasphemy of ȳ heathē was put away. So Judas & hys brethren with ȳ whole congregatiō of Israel, ordeined * Johñ. x. a. ȳ the time of ȳ dedicatiō of ȳ aulter should be kept in his season from yeare to yeare, by ȳ space of eight dayes, frō the fyue and twenty day of the moneth of Casleu, with myrth and gladnesse.

And at the same time builded they vp ȳ mount Sion w hie walles, & strong towers round about: lest the Gentiles should come & tread it downe, as they did afore.
Therfore Judas set men of warre in it, to kepe it, & made it strong, * for to defende 1 Ma. 6. and . f.
Bethsura: that the people might haue a refuge agaynst the Edumites.

The v. Chapter.

Judas vanquisheth the heathen that go about to destroye Israell, and is holpen of his brethren Simon and Jonathas. He ouerthroweth the citye of Ephron, bicause they denied him passage through it.

A Joseph. Libro xi. Capit. xi. IT happened also ȳ when the heathē round about, heard, how that ȳ aulter & the Sanctuary wer set vp in their olde estate, it displeased thē very sore, wherfore thei thought to destroy ȳ generation of Jacob ȳ was among thē: In somuch ȳ they beganne to Ez. 15. and 36. 1. Pa. 11 slaye, & to persecute certayn of the people.
* Then Judas fought agaynst ȳ children of Esau in Idumea, & agaist those which wer at Arabathane (for they dwelt round about the Israelites) wher he slew and spoyled a greate multitude of them. He thoughte also vpon the malice and vn-faithfulnesse of the children of Bean, how they were a snare & a stop vnto ȳ people & how they layd wayt for thē in ȳ hye way.
Wherfore hee shutte vp them in two towers and came vnto them , destroyed them vtterlye , and burnt vppe theyr Towers, wyth all that were in them.

Afterwarde went he agaynst the children of Ammon, wherof he foūde a mighty power,

power, & a great multitude of people, wt Timothy their captain. So he stroke many battayles wt thẽ, which wer destroyed before him: & whẽ he had slayne thẽ, he wanne Gazer y city, wt the townes belonging therto, & so turned again into Jewry.
The heathẽ also in Galaad gathered thẽ together agaynst y Israelites y were in their quarters, to slay thẽ, but they fled to y castel of Dathemã, & sent letters to Judas & his brethrẽ, saying: The heathẽ ar gathered against vs on euery side, to destroy vs, & now thei make thẽ ready for to come, & lay siege to y castel, wherunto we are fled, & Timothy is captaine of their host: com therfore & deliuer vs out of their handes: for ther is a great multitude of vs slayne already. Yea, & our brethren y wer at Tubin, are slayne, & destroyed (wel nye a thousand men) & their wiues their children, and their goodes haue the enemyes led away captiue.
While these letters wer yet a reding, be-B hold, ther came other messangers frõ Ga-lile, wt rent clothes: which told euẽ y same tidinges, and sayd y they of Ptolemais, of Tirus & of Sidon wer gathered against thẽ, & that al Galile was filled with enemies, to destroy Israel. * When Judas & 1Ma,8,c the people heard this, thei came together, (a great congregatiõ) to deuise, what thei might do for their brethren, y wer in trou ble, & besieged of their enemies. And Judas said vnto Simon his brother: chose thee certain mẽ, & go deliuer thy brethrẽ in Galile: As for me & my brother Jona-thas, we wil go into Galaadithim. So he left Josephus y sonne of Zachary, & Azarias to be captaines of y people, & to kepe the remnaunt of the host in Jewry, & commaunded thẽ, saying: Take y ouersighte of this people, & see that ye make no warr agaynst the heathen, vntil the time y we come agayne. And vnto Simon he gaue three thousand men, for to go into Galile, but Judas himself had eight thousand in Galaadithim.
C Thẽ went Simõ into Galile, & stroke di-uerse battayles with the heathen: whõ he discomfited, and folowed vpon them vnto y port of Ptolemais. And ther wer slaine of the heathen almost three thousand mẽ.
So he toke y spoiles of thẽ, & caried away the Israelites that were in Galile, & Ar-batis, with their wiues, their childrẽ & al that they had, & brought them into Jewry wt great gladnesse. Judas Machabe-us also & his brother Jonathas went ouer Jordan, & trauailed .iii. dayes iourney in the wildernesse. Whẽ y Nabuthites met them, and receiued them louingly, & tolde thẽ euery thing that had happened vnto their brethrẽ in Galaadithim, & how that many of thẽ wer besieged in Barasa, Bo-zor, Alimis, Casphor, Mageth & Carna-im (al these ar strong walled and mighty great cities) and that they wer kept in other cities of Galaad also: & tomorow thei are appoynted to bryng their host vnto these cities, to take them, & to winne them in one day.
So Judas & hys host turned in all the hast in the wildernesse towarde Bozor, & wanne the citie, slew al y males with the sweard, toke al their goodes, & set fire vpõ y city. And in y night they toke their iour-ney frõ thence, & came to y castel. And by-times in the morning whẽ thei loked vp, behold, ther was an innumerable people bearing ladders, & other instrumentes of warre, to take the castel, and so ouercome them.
Whẽ Judas saw that the battaile began, and that y noyse therof went vp, & rang into heauen, and that ther was so great a cry in the city: He sayd vnto his host: fight this day for your brethrẽ. And so came behynde their enemies in three companies & blewe vp the trompetes, and cried in their prayer to God.
But as sone as Timothies host perce-ued y Machabeus was ther, they fled frõ hym, and the other slew them down right sore: so that there wer killed of thẽ y same day, almost eyght .M. men. Thẽ departed Judas vnto Maspha, layde siege vnto it, & wãne it, slew all y males in it, spoyled it, & set fire vpon it. Frõ thence went he and toke Casbon, Mageth, Bozor, and the other cities in Galaad.
* After thys gathered Timothy another D host, which pitched their tents before Ra- 1Ma,r,d phon, beyond y water, Judas also sent to espye y host, & they brought him worde a-gayn, saying: Al the heathẽ that be round about vs, are gathered vnto him, and the host is very great. Yea, they haue hired y Arabians to helpe thẽ, and haue pitched their tentes beyond y water and at redy to com and fight against thee. So Judas went on to mete them.
And Timothy sayd vnto y captaines of his host: whẽ Judas and his host com nie the riuer: yf ye go ouer first, we shal not be able to withstand hym, for why he wil be to strong for vs. But if he dare not come ouer, so that he pitche his tent beyond the water: then wil we go ouer, for we shalbe stro͂ge ynough against him. Now as sone as Judas came to ẏ riuer, he appoynted certaine scribes of ẏ people, & co͂maunded them, saying: see ẏ ye leaue none behinde vpo͂ this side of ẏ riuer, but let euery man come to ẏ battayle. So he went first ouer vnto the͂, and his people after him.

And al ẏ heathe͂ were discomfited before him, & let their weapons fal & ranne into ẏ temple ẏ was at Carnaim. Which city Judas wa͂ne, & burnt ẏ temple with all ẏ were in it: So was Carnaim subdued, & might not withstand Judas. The͂ Judas gathered al ẏ Israelites ẏ were in Galadathim, from the least vnto the most, with their wiues, & their childre͂ (a very greate host) for to come into the land of Israel.

E *So thei came vnto Ephro͂, which was a 2 Pa, 12 c mighty great & stronge citie, and laye in their way. For thei could not go by it, neyther of ẏ right hand nor of ẏ left, but must go thorowe it. Neuerthelesse they that were in the citie would not let the͂ go thorow, but walled vp ẏ ports w stones. And Judas sent vnto them w peaceable wordes, saying: Let vs passe thorow your la͂d, ẏ we may go into our own countrye: ther shal no body do you harme, we wil but only go thorow on foote. But they would not let them in.

Wherfore Judas co͂mau͂ded a proclamation to be made thorowout ẏ host, ẏ euery ma͂ should kepe his order: and so they did theyr best like valeaunte men.

And Judas besieged ẏ city al ẏ day & all ẏ night, & so wanne it: wher they slew as many as wer males, & destroyed ẏ citye, & spoiled it, & went thorow al the citye ouer them ẏ wer slayne. Then went they ouer F Jordan into the playn field before Bethsam. And Judas helped those forwarde ẏ came behinde, & gaue the people good exhortation al the way thorow, til they wer com into ẏ land of Juda. Thus thei went vp vnto ẏ mount Sion, where they offred w mirth * & thankesgeuing: bycause ther 2 Pa, 12 a were none of them slayne, but came home agayne peaceably.

Now what time as Judas & Jonathas wer in ẏ la͂d of Galaad, & Simo͂ their brother in Galile before Ptolamais: The͂ Josephus ẏ sonne of Zachary, & Azarias the captaines, hearing of ẏ actes ẏ wer done, & of ẏ battailes ẏ were stricke͂, said: Let vs get vs a name also, & go fight against the heathen that are rounde about vs.

So they gaue their host a co͂maundeme͂t, & went toward Jamnia. The͂ came Gorgias & his me͂ out of ẏ citie, to fight against them: Josephus also & Azarias were chased vnto ẏ borders of Jewry, & there were slaine ẏ day of ẏ people of Israel, two M. me͂: so ẏ there was a great misery amo͂g ẏ people, & al bicause thei wer not obedient vnto Judas & his brethren, but thought thei should quit the͂selues ma͂fully. Neuerthelesse thei came not of the sede of these me͂, by who͂ Israel was helped. But ẏ me͂ ẏ wer w Judas wer greatly co͂mended in ẏ sight of al Israel & al ẏ heathe͂, wheresoeuer their name was heard vpo͂, & the people came vnto the͂, bidding the͂ welcome. After this we͂t Judas forth with his brethre͂, & fought agaynst ẏ children of Esau, in ẏ land ẏ lieth toward ẏ south where he wanne ẏ citie of Ebron, & the Townes ẏ lye beside it: & as for the walles & towers round about it, he brent them vp.

Then remoued he to go into ẏ land of the Philistines, & went thorow Samaria. At ẏ same time wer there many priests slain in ẏ battaile, which wilfully and w out aduiseme͂t went out for to fight, to get them honour. And whe͂ Judas came to Azot in ẏ Philistines land, he brake downe theyr aultars, brent ẏ Images of their Idolls spoyled the cities, & came agayn into the land of Juda.

The. vi. Chapter.

Antiochus willing to take the citie of Elimas for a praye, is driuen away of ẏ citizens. He falleth into sicknes & dyeth. His sonne Antiochus is made king. The besiege of the tower of Sion. Eupater cometh into Jewry with a great army. The boldenesse of Elazar.

A Now when king Antiochus trauailed thorow ẏ hy countries he hearde ẏ Elimas in Persia was a noble & plenteous city in siluer & golde, and that there was in it a very ryche temple: whereas were clothes, coate armoures, & shyldes of gold, which Alexander ẏ sonne of Philip kyng of Macedonia (that raigned first in Greke land) had lefte behinde hym. Wherfore he went aboute to take the citye, and to spoile it, but he was not able: for the citizens were warned of it, & fought w hym. And so he fled, & departed with great heuinesse, & came againe into Babilo͂. Moreouer, ther came one whiche brought hym tydings in * Perside, ẏ his hostes, whiche were in the lande of Juda, wer driuen away, & how that Lisias we͂t forth first with a greate power, and was

driuen awaye of ẏ Jewes: howe that they had wonne the victorie, and gotten great goodes out of the hostes ẏ perished, howe they had broken down the abhominacio͞, which he set vp vpo͞ ẏ aultare at Jerusalem, and fensed the Sanctuarye with hie walles, like as it was afore: yea, & Bethsura his citie also.

B So it chaunsed, that whe͞ the king had heard these wordes, he was afraied, & greued very sore. Wherfore he laid him down vpon his bed, & fel sycke for very sorowe: & al bicause it had not happened as he had deuised. And there he continueth long, for his grefe was euer more & more, so ẏ he saw he must nedes die. Therfore he sente for his frendes, & said vnto them: the slepe is gone fro͞ myne eies, for the very sorowe & vexation of heart that J haue. For whe͞ J consider in my mynd the great aduersitie that J am come vnto, and ẏ floudes of heuynesse which J am com in, wheras afore time J was so mery, & so greatlye set by, by reason of my power. Againe, considring ẏ euil ẏ J haue done at Jerusalem, fro͞ whence J toke al ẏ riches of gold, & siluer ẏ wer in it, & sent to fetch away the inhabitours of Jewry without any reaso͞ why: J know ẏ these troubles are com vpo͞ me for ẏ same cause. And beholde, J must dy with great sorow in a straunge land. The͞ called he for one Philip a fre͞d of his, who͞ he made ruler ouer all his realme, & gaue him ẏ Crowne, his Robe, & his ring: ẏ he should take hys sonne Antiochus vnto him, & bring him vp, till he might raigne himself. *So ẏ king Antiochus died ther, in ẏ hundred and fortye & nyne yeare. Whe͞ Lisias knew that ẏ king was dead, he ordeyned Antiochus his sone (*who͞ he had brought vp) to reigne in his fathers stead & called him Eupator, now they that wer in the castell (at Jerusalem) kept in ẏ Jewes round about ẏ Sanctuary, & sought euer still to do the͞ harme, for the strengthnyng of the heathen.

Joseph. Cap.14. Lib.12.

C Wherfore Judas thought to destroy the͞, and called al ẏ people together, that they might lay siege vnto them. So they came together in the hundred and fifty yeare, & besieged the͞, laying forth their ordinau͞ce & instrumentes of warre. Then certain of the͞ that were besieged, wente forth (vnto who͞ some vngodly men of Jsrael ioyned the͞selues also) & we͞t vnto ẏ kyng, saying: How long wil it be, or thou punysh & auenge our brethren? We haue euer bene minded to do thy father seruice, to walke in his statutes, & to obeye his co͞maundements. Therfore our people fel from vs, & whersoeuer they fou͞d any of vs, thei slew the͞, & spoyled our inheritau͞ce, & they haue not only medled with vs, but with all our cou͞tries, & behold, this day ar thei besieging ẏ castel at Jerusale͞, & haue made vp ẏ strong hold in Bethsura. And if thou doest not preuent the͞ right sone, thei wil do more tha͞ these, and ẏ shalt not be able to ouercom the͞. *Whe͞ the king heard thys, he was very angry, & called al his frends, ẏ captaines of his foote men, & of all hys horseme͞ together. He hired men of warre also out of other realmes, & out of ẏ Jles of ẏ sea, which cam vnto him. And ẏ numbre of his host was an hundred thousand footemen, & twentye thousand horsemen, & xxxii. Elephantes well exercised in battayle. These came thorow Jdumea vnto Bethsura, and besieged it a long season, and made diuerse instrumentes of warre against it. But the Jewes came out, and brent the͞, & fought like me͞. The͞ departed Judas fro͞ the castel at Jerusale͞, & remoued ẏ host toward Bethzacaran, ouer against the kinges armye.

1 Ma 4 g / 2 Ma 13, b / D / 1 Ma 4 g and, vi, f, E So ẏ king arose before ẏ day, & brought the power of his host into ẏ way to Bethzacaran, where ẏ hostes made the͞ readye to ẏ battaile, blowing ẏ trompets. And to prouoke the Elephantes for to fight, thei shewed the͞ ẏ sap of red grapes, & mulberies: & deuided ẏ Elephants amo͞g ẏ host: so ẏ by euery Elephant ther stode a thousand me͞ wel harnessed, & helmets of stele vpo͞ their heades, yea, vnto euery one of ẏ Elephants also wer ordeyned, v. hu͞dred horsemen of ẏ best, which waited on ẏ Elephant, going wheresoeuer he went, & departed not fro͞ him. Euery Elephant was couered w a strong tower of wood, wher vpo͞ wer two & thirty valeaunt men with weapons to fyght & within it was a man of Jnde to rule the beast.

& as for ẏ remnau͞t of the horseme͞, he set them vpon both the sydes in two partes w trompetes, to prouoke ẏ host, & to styrre vp such as wer slow in the army. And whe͞ ẏ sunne shone vpon their shieldes of gold & stele, the mountaynes glystered again at the͞, & wer as bright as ẏ cressettes of fire. The kigs host also was deuided, one part vpo͞ ẏ hie mou͞taines, ẏ other low beneth: so thei went on taking good hede & keping their order. And al they ẏ dwelt in ẏ land, wer afrayed at ẏ noyse of their host, when the multitude went forth, and whe͞

the weapons smote together, for the hoste was both great & mightye. Judas also and his hoste entred into þ battayle, & slewe sixe hundred men of þ kings army.
Now whē Eleazar þ sonne of Saura, did see one of þ Elephāts deckt wt the kings badge, & was a more goodly beast than þ other: he thought þ king shoulde be vpon him, & ieopard himself to deliuer his people, & to get him a perpetual name. Wher fore he ranne wt a corage vnto þ Elephāt in þ middest of the host, smiting thē down of both sides, & slew many about hi. So went he to þ Elephants fete, and gat him vnder him, & slew him, thē fell þ Elephant down vpon him, & ther he died. Judas also & his men seing the power of the king, & the mightie violence of his hoste departed from thē. And the kinges army went vp against thē toward Jerusalem, & pitched their tentes in Jewry beside mount i Ma, iiii, g, vi, d, ii Mac, xi xv, d, Sion. Moreouer, the king toke truce wt them that were in *Bethsura.

But whē they came out of the citie (bi-cause they had no vitayles within, & the land lay vntilled) þ kinge toke Bethsura, F and set men to kepe it: & turned his hoste to þ place of þ Sanctuary, & laid siege to it a great whyle. Wher he made al maner of ordinaūce: handbowes, fyre darts, racketes to cast stones, scorpions to shote arowes, & slings. The Jewes also made ordinaunce against theirs, and fought alōg season.

But in þ citie there were no vitailes, for it was the seuenth yeare of the warres, & those heathen þ remained in Jewry, had eatē vp all their store. And in þ Sanctuary wer fewe men left, for þ hunger came so vpon thē, that thei wer scattred abrode euery man to his own place.

2 Ma, 6 b So whē Lisias heard þ Philip (*whō Antiochus þ king while he was yet liuīg had ordained to bring vp Antiochus hys sone, þ he might be king) was com again out of Persia, & Media, wt the kings host, & thought to obtaine þ kingdom. He gat hym to the king in all the hast, and to the captaynes of the host, & said: we decrease G daily, & our vitailes are but smal: Againe, the place that we laye siege vnto is very strong, and it were our part to see for the realme. Let vs agre with these mē, & take truce with them, & with all their people, & graunt thē to liue after their law, as they did afore. For thei be greued, & do al these things against vs, bicause we haue dispised their law. So the king and þ princes wer cōtent, & sent vnto thē to make peace, D & they receaued it. Now when the king & the princes had made an othe vnto them, they came out of þ Castel, & the king wēt vp to mount Sion. But when he sawe þ þ place was wel defenced, he brake þ othe þ he had made, & cōmaunded to destroy þ wal round about. Then departed he in al the hast, & returned vnto Antioch, where he found Philip hauing dominiō of þ ci-tie. So he foughe against him, & toke þ ci-tie agayn into his handes.

The. vii. Chapter.

Demetrius raigned after he had killed Antiochus, & Lisias. He troubleth þ children of Israel thorow the counsaile of certain wicked persons. The praier of þ priestes against Nicanor. Judas killeth Nicanor, after he had made his praier.

IN the Hundred & li, yeare, A came Demetrius the sone of Seleucus frō þ city of Rome wt a smal cōpany of men, vnto a citie of þ sea coast, & ther he bare rule. And it chaunced, þ when he came to Antioch the citye of his progeni-toures, his host toke Antiochus & Lisias, to bring thē vnto him. But when it was told him, he saide: let me not see their faces.
So þ host put thē to death. Now whē Demetrius was set vpon the throne of hys kingdom, there came vnto him wicked & vngodly mē of Israel: whose captain was Alcimus, þ woulde haue bene made hye priest: These mē accused þ people of Israel vnto the king, saying: Judas & hys brethrē haue slayne thy frendes, & driuen vs out of our own land. Wherfore send now some man (to whō thou geuest credence) þ he may go & see al the destructiō, which he hath done vnto vs & to the kings land & let him be punished with al hys frends B and fauourers. Then the king chose Bachides a frend of his, which was a man of great power in the realme (beyond the great water) & faithfull vnto the king, & sent him to se þ destruction þ Judas had done. And as for that wicked Alcimus, he made him hie priest, & cōmaunded hym to be auenged of the children of Israel. So thei stode vp, & came with a great host into þ land of Juda, sending messangers to Judas & his brethren, & speaking vnto thē with peaceable wordes: but vnder dis- i. Ma ii ceate. *Therfore Judas & his people be-leued not their saying: for they saw þ thei were come with a great host.

After this came þ Scribes together vnto Alcimus and Bachides, trusting the best

best vnto them. And first, þ Assideans required peace of them, saying: Alcimus the Priest is come of þ sede of Aaron, how can he disceaue vs? So they gaue thē louing wordes, and swore vnto thē, and sayd: we wyl do you no harme, neither your frēds: and they beleued them. But þ very same day toke they .lx. score mē of thē, and slew thē according to þ wordes þ were writtē.

*They haue cast þ flesh of thy Saintes, & shed their bloud rounde about Ierusalē, and there was no man þ would bury thē. So there came a great feare, & dread among þ people, saying: there is neyther truth or righteousnesse in them, for they haue brokē þ appointment and oth þ they made. And Bachides remoued hys hoste from Ierusalem, and pitched hys tent at Bethzeka: where he sent forth, & toke many of thē þ had forsakē hym. He slew many of þ people also, & cast thē into a greate pit. Then cōmitted he þ lande vnto Alcimus, and left mē of warr w hym to helpe hym. And Bachides hymselfe went vnto the kyng. And thus Alcimus defēded his high Priesthode, & al such as vered Israell resorted vnto hym: insomuch that they obteyned þ lande of Iuda, and did muche euill vnto þ Israelites. Now whē Iudas saw al þ mischiefe þ Alcimus & hys cōpany had done (yea more than þ heathē thēselues) vnto þ Israelites: he wente forth rounde about all the borders of Iewry, & punished those vnfaythfull runnagates, so þ they came no more out into þ coūtry. So whē Alcimus saw þ Iudas & his people had gottē þ vpper hand, and þ he was not able to abyde them, he went againe to þ kyng, & sayd all þ worst of them that he could. Then þ kyng sent Nicanor one of hys chiefe Princes (which bare euil wil vnto Israell) and commaunded hym, þ he should vtterly destroy þ people. * So Nicanor came to Ierusalē with a great host and sent vnto Iudas and hys brethrē w frendly words (but vnder disceate) saying there shalbe no warre betwixt me & you: I wyll come wyth a few men, to see howe ye do with frendship. Vpon thys he came vnto Iudas, & they saluted one another peaceably, but the enemies were appointed to take Iudas by violēce. Neuerthelesse, it was tolde Iudas, þ he came vnto hym but vnder disceate: wherfore, he gat hym away frō hym, and would se hys face no more. Whē Nicanor perceaued þ hys councell was bewrayed, he went out to fight against Iudas, besyde Capharsalama where there wer slayn of Nicanors hoste .v. M. men: and þ residue fled vnto the castell of Dauid. After this came Nicanor vp vnto mount Siō: and þ Priestes with the elders of þ people went forth to salute hym peaceably, & to shew hym þ burnt sacrifices þ were offred for þ kyng. But he laughed thē and þ people to scorne, mocked thē, defiled their offringes, and spake disdainfully: yea, & swore in his wrath, saying. *If Iudas & his hoste be not deliuered now into my handes, as sone as euer I come agayne (& fare well) I shal burne vp thys house. With that, went he out in a great anger.

ii. Mach. xiiii. a.

Then þ Priestes came in, & stode before þ aultar of þ temple, weping, and saying: Forsomuch as thou (O lord) hast chosen thys house, þ thy name might be called vpon therin, and þ it should be an house of prayer & petition for thy people. Be auenged of thys man & hys hoste, and let thē be slaine w the sweard, remēber þ blasphemies of thē, and suffer them not to continue any longer.

When Nicanor was gone from Ierusalē, he pytches hys tent at Bethoron, & there an host met with hym out of Siria. And Iudas came to Adarsa w three. M. mē, and made hys prayer vnto god, saying: O lord, * because the messengers of kyng Sennacherib blasphemed thee, þ Angel wēt forth, and slew an C. foure score, and .v. M. of them. Euen so destroy þ thys hoste before vs to day, þ other people may know, how þ he hath blasphemed thy Sāctuary, & punish him according to his maliciousnesse.

And so the hostes stroke the fielde, the thirtene day of the moneth *Adar, and Nicanors host was discomfited, *& he hymself was first slayne in þ battaile.

Februarye. ii. Mach. xv. b.

When Nicanors men of warre saw that he was killed, they cast away their weapons and fled, but the Iewes folowed vpon thē an whole daies iourney from Adasar vnto Gazara, blowing with the trompets, and making tokens after them. So þ Iewes came forth of al the townes there about, & blewe out their hornes vpon them, & turned against them. Thus were they all slayne, and not one of them left. Thē they toke their substaunce for a pray and smote of Nicanors head, and hys ryghte hande (* whiche he helde vp so proudly) and brought it wyth them, and hanged it vp afore Ierusalem.

Wherfore the people wer exceadingly reioyced, and passed ouer that day in greate gladnesse. And Iudas ordeined, that the same day (namely the thirtenth day of the

The. viii. Chapter.

Iudas consideryng the power and Godly policy of the Romaines, maketh peace with them. The rescript of the Romaines sent vnto the Iewes.

A Iudas heard also ŷ fame of the Romayns, ŷ they were mightie and valyaunt men and agreable to al thynges that are required of thē, & to make peace with all mē, which come vnto thē, and how they wer doughty men of strength. Besydes that, it was told hym of their battailes, and noble actes, which they did in Galacia, how they had conquered thē, & broughte thē vnder tribute: and what great thinges they had done in Spayn, how that with their wisdom and sober behauiour they had wonn the mynes of siluer and golde, that are there, and obtayned all the lande, with other places farre from them: how they had discomfited and slayne down the kynges that came vpon them, from the vttermost part of the earth, and how other people gaue them tribute euery yeare: how they had slain and ouercome Philip and Perses kynges of Cethim, and other moe (in battail) which had brought their ordinaūce against them: how they discomfited great Antiochus kyng of Asia (that would nedes fight with them) hauing an hundred and twenty Elephantes, with horsemē, charrets, and a very great host, how they toke hymselfe alyue, and ordayned hym (wyth such as should raygne after hym) to pay them a great tribute.

B *yea, and to finde them good suertyes and pledge: besydes al thys, how they had takē from hym India, Media, and Lidia, (hys best landes) and geuē them to kyng Eumenus. Agayne, how they perceauing that the Grekes were comming to vexe them: sent against them a captaine of an hoste, which gaue them battaile, slew many of them, led away their wyues & children captiue, spoyled them, toke possession of their lande, destroyed their strong holdes, and subdued them to be their bondemen, vnto thys day. Moreouer, how that as for other kyngdomes and Iles, which sometyme withstode them, they destroyed them, and brought them vnder their dominion. But helped euer their own frendes, and those ŷ were confederate wyth them, and conquered kyngdomes, both farr and ny, and that whosoeuer heard of their renown, was afrayd of thē: for whō they would helpe to their kyngdomes, those raigned, and whom it lyked not thē to raigne, they put hym down. And howe they were come to great preeminēce: hauing no king among thē, neyther any mā clothed in purple, to be magnified there thorow: but had ordained thēselues a parlyamēt, wherin there sat. iii. C. xx. Senatoures dayly vpon ŷ councell to dispatch euer ŷ businesse of the people, and to kepe good order: and how that euery yere they chose a Mayre to haue ŷ gouernaunce of all their lande: to whom euery man was obediēt, and there was neyther euill wyll nor discention among thē. Then Iudas C chose Eupolemus ŷ sonn of Iohn, ŷ sonn of Iacob, and Iason ŷ sonn of Eleazar, & sent thē vnto Rome, for to make frendship and a bonde of loue w thē: ŷ they mighte take from thē ŷ bondage of ŷ Grekes, for the Iewes saw ŷ the Grekes would subdue ŷ kingdom of Israell. So they went vnto Rome (a very great iourney) & came into ŷ Parlament, and sayd: Iudas Machabeus with his brethrē and ŷ people of the Iewes hath sent vs vnto you, to make a bonde of frendship and peace with you, and ye to note vs as your louers and frēdes. And the matter pleased ŷ Romaines right well, wherfore it was writtē vp: of ŷ which ŷ Romains made a writing in tables of brasse, and sent it to Ierusalē: that they might haue by thē a memoriall of ŷ same peace, and bonde of frendship after thys maner. God saue ŷ Romaines, & the people of the Iewes, both by Sea and by lande, and kepe ŷ sweard and enemy frō thē for euermore. If there come first any warr vpon the Romaines or any of their frēdes thorowout all their dominion, the people of the Iewes shal helpe them (as ŷ tyme requireth) and that with all their heartes. Also they shall neyther geue nor sende vnto their enemies, vitalles, weapons, mony nor shippes. But fulfyl thys charge at ŷ Romaines pleasure, and take nothing from thē therfore. Againe, if the people of ŷ Iewes happē first to haue war the Romaines shall stand by thē wyth a good wyll, according as the tyme wil suffer: neyther shall they geue vnto ŷ Iewes enemies, vitailes, weapons, money nor shippes. Thus are the Romaines contēte to do, and shall fulfyll their charge wythout any disceate.

cording to these articles, the Romaynes made the bonde with ẏ Iewes. Now after these articles (sayd they) if any of the parties wil put to them, or take any thyng from them they shall do it with the consẽt of both: and whatsoeuer they adde vnto them, or take from them, it shal stand fast. And as touching the euill that Demetrius hath done vnto ẏ Iewes, we haue written vnto him, saying: wherfore laiest thou thy heauy yoke vpon the Iewes our frendes and louers. If they make any complaynt of thee againe vnto vs, we shal defende them, and fyght with thee by Sea, and by lande.

The.ix.Chapter.

After the death of Nicanor Demetrius sendeth his army against Iudas. Iudas is slain. Ionathas is put in the stede of his brother. The strife betwene Ionathas and Bachides. Alcimus is taken with the palsey, and dyeth. Bachides returneth agayne vnto the king. He commeth vpon Ionathas by the councell of certaine wicked persons, and is ouercome. The truce of Ionathas with Bachides.

In the meane season, when Demetrius heard, * ẏ Nicanor and hys hoste was slain in ẏ fielde, he procedeth further to sende Bachides and Alcimus agayne into Iewry, and these ẏ were in the ryght wyng of hys hoste, wt them. So they went forth, by the way ẏ leadeth vnto Galgala, and pitched their tentes before Mesaloth, which is in Arbellis; and wanne the citie & slew much people. In the first moneth of ẏ.clii. yere, they brought their host to Ierusalẽ, and rose vp, and came to Berea wt.xx.M. fote men, and.ii.M. horsemen. Now. Iudas had pytched hys tent at Laisa, wt thre thousande chosen men. And when they saw the multitude of the other army, that it was so great, they were sore afraid, and many conueyed themselues out of ẏ host. Insomuch ẏ there abode no moe of them but.viii.C. men. When Iudas saw ẏ hys hoste fayled hym, and that he must nedes fight: it brake hys heart, ẏ he had no time to gather them together, wherfore ẏ man was in extreme trouble. Neuerthelesse, he sayd vnto them that remained with him. Vp let vs go against our enemies, peraduenture we shalbe able to fyght wt thẽ. But they would haue stopped him, saying we shall not be able, therfore let vs nowe saue our lyues, and turne againe to oure brethren, and then wyll we fight against them, for we are here but few.

B And Iudas sayd: God forbyd that we should flee from them. Wherfore, if our tyme be come: let vs dye manfully for our brethren; and let vs not staine our honor. Then the hoste remoued out of the tẽtes, and stode against thẽ. The horsemẽ were deuyded in two partes, the slyng casters and archers went before the hoste: and al the mightie men wer formest in the field. Bachides hymselfe was in ẏ ryght wing of the battell, & the hoste drew nye in two partes, and blew the trompets. They of Iudas syde blew the trompets also, and the earth shoke at the noyse of ẏ hostes, & they strake a fielde from the mornyng tyll nyght. And when Iudas saw that Bachides hoste was strongest of the ryght syde, he toke wt hym all the hardy men, & brake the ryght wynge of their order, and folowed vppon them vnto the mount Azot. Nowe when they which were of the lefte wyng, saw that the ryght syde was discõfited, they persecuted Iudas and them ẏ were with hym. Thẽ was ther a sore battaile, for many were slaine and wounded of both ẏ parties. Iudas also himself was kylled, and the remnaunt fled. So Ionathas and Symon toke Iudas their brother, and buryed hym in hys fathers Sepulchre in the citie of Modin. And all the people of Israell made great lamentatiõ for hym, and mourned long, saying: Alas, that thys worthy should be slayne, whych delivered ẏ people of Israell. As for other things pertaining to the battailes of Iudas, the noble actes ẏ he dyd, and of hys worthinesse: they are not written, for they were very many. * And after the death of Iudas, wicked men came vp in all the coastes of Israell, and there arose al such as worke vngodlinesse. In those dayes was there a great dearth in the land, and all the countrey gaue ouer themselues & theirs vnto Bachides. So Bachides chose wycked men and made them lordes in the land. These sought out and made search for Iudas frendes, and broughte them vnto Bachides, whiche auenged hymselfe vpon them wt great despite. And there came so great trouble in Israell, as was not since the tyme ẏ no prophet was sene there. Then came all Iudas frendes together, and sayd vnto Ionathas: for so much as thy brother Iudas is dead, ther is none lyke hym, to go forth agaynst our enemies, against Bachides, & such as are aduersaryes vnto our people. Wherefore, this day we chose thee for hym, to be oure prince & captain, to order our battaile. And

Jonathas toke ỹ gouernaunce vpon him at the same tyme, and ruled in ỹ steade of hys brother Judas. When Bachides gat knowlege therof, he sought for to slay him But Jonathas and Simon hys brother, perceiuing ỹ, fled into ỹ wildernesse of Thecua wt al their company, and pitched their tentes by ỹ water poole of Asphar.

D Which when Bachides vnderstode, he came ouer Jordane with all hys host vpõ the Sabboth day. Now had Jonathas sent hys brother John (a captaine of the people) to pray hys frendes ỹ Nabuthits, that they would lende them their ordi-naunce, for they had much. So ỹ children of Jambry came out of Madaba, & toke John, and all ỹ he had, and went theyr way wt all. Then came word vnto Jona-thas and Simon hys brother, ỹ the children of Jambry made a great maryage, and brought ỹ bryde from Madaba with great pomp: for she was daughter to one of ỹ noblest prynces of Canaan. Wherfore they remembred the bloud of John their brother, and went vp, and hyd thẽselues vnder the shadow of the Mountayne.

So they lift vp their eyes, & loked: and behold, there was much a doe, and great repayre: for ỹ brydegrome came forth, and hys frendes, and hys brethren met them with tympaynes, instrumẽtes of musike, and many weapons. Thẽ Jonathas and they that wer wt him, rose out of their lurking places against them, and slew many of them. As for the remnaunt, they fledd into the mountaynes, and they toke all their substaunce. Thus the mariage was turned to mourning, and ỹ noyse of theyr melody into lamentation. And so when they had auenged the bloud of their brother, they turned agayne vnto Jordane.
E Bachides hearing thys, came vnto ỹ very border of Jordan with a great power vpon the Sabboth day. And Jonathas sayd to hys company, let vs get vp, & fight against our enemies: for it standeth not wt vs to day as in tymes past: behold, our ene mies are in our way, the water of Jordan vppon the one syde of vs, with bankes, fennes, and woodes of the other syde, so that there is no place for vs to depart vni. Para, x a, to. *Wherfore cry now vnto heauen, that ye may be deliuered frõ the power of your i, Macha, iiii, d, enemies. So they stroke the battell. And Jonathas stretched out hys handes to smyte Bachides, but he fled backewarde.
Then Jonathas and they that wer with hym, leapt into Jordan, and swymmed ouer Jordan vnto hym, and there were slayne of Bachides syde that day a thousande men.

Therfore Bachides with hys host, turned againe to Jerusalem, and builded vp the castels and strong holdes that wer in Jewry, Jericho, Emaus, Bethoron, Bethell, Thamnata, Phara, and Topo, with high walles, with portes and with lockes and set mẽ to kepe them, that they might vse their malice vpõ Israel. He walled vp the citie of Bethsurath, Gazarach, and the castell, and prouided them with men and vitails. He toke also the chiefest mennes sonnes in the countrey for pledges, and put them in the castell at Jerusalem to be kept.

Afterwarde in the hundred .l. and thre yere in the seconde Moneth Alcimus cõmaunded, that the walles of the inmost Sanctuary should be destroyed, and the buildinges of the Prophetes also. And when he began to destroy them, the thyn-ges that he went about, wer hyndred, for he was smitten with a Palsey, and hys mouth shut, so ỹ he could no more speake, nor commaunde any of his house: concerning hys businesse. Thus dyed Alcimus in great misery at ỹ same tyme. And whẽ F Bachides saw that Alcimus was dead, he turned againe to the king, and so the lande was in rest two yeres. Then all the vngodly men helde a councel, saying: behold, Jonathas and hys company are at ease and dwel without care. Wherfore, let vs bryng Bachides hether, and he shall take them all in one night.

So they went and gaue Bachides this councell, which arose to come wt a great host: and sent letters priuyly to his adhe-rentes, which were in Jewry, to take Jonathas and those that were wt hym. But they myght not, for the other had gotten knowlege of their deuice. And Jonathas toke .l. men of the countrey (which were ỹ ryngleaders of them) and slew them.

Then Jonathas and Simon wt their company departed vnto the city Bethbessen, which lyeth in ỹ wildernesse, and re-payred the decay thereof, & made it strõg.
When Bachides knew thys, he gathered all hys hoste, and sent word to them that were of Jewry. Then came he and layde siege to Bethbessen, and fought against it a long season, and made instrumentes of warre. Nowe Jonathas left hys brother Simon in the citie, and went forth himselfe into the countrey, and came with a cer-

a certayne numbre, and slew Odares, and his brethren, and the chyldren of Phaserõ in their tẽtes: so that he began to be strõg, and to increase in power.

As for Symon and hys companye, they wente oute of the citye, & brente vp the instrumentes of warre, & foughte agaynste Bachides, & discomfited hym. And Bachides was sore vexed, bicause hys counsell and trauaile was in vaine. Wherfore, he was wrath at the wycked men (that gaue him councell to come into their lande) and slewe manye of them. Then purposed he with his companie to goe awaye into hys owne countrye, whereof, when Jonathas had knowlege, he sente ambassadours vnto him, for to make peace with him, & that he shuld deliuer him his prisoners again. To the which Bachides consented gladly, and dyd accordyng to his desire: yea, and made an othe, that he should neuer do him harme all the dayes of his lyfe. So he restored vnto him all the prisoners that he had taken out of the lande of Juda, & then tourned and went his way into his owne lande, neither proceded he any further to come vnto the borders of Juda. Thus Israel hadde no more warre, and Jonathas dwelt at Machemas, & began there to gouerne the people, and destroied the vngodly men out of Israell.

The .x. Chapter.

Demetrius desireth to haue peace with Jonathas, Alexander moueth warre against Demetrius, Demetrius is slayne. The frendshyppe of Ptolomeus and Alexander.

A [margin: ...sep ...i. 23. ...n. 13. ...quit.] IN the hundred and thre score yere, came Alexander: ye sonne of noble Antiochus, and toke Ptolomays, whose cityzens receaued him, & there he raigned. Whẽ Demetrius heard therof, he gathered an exceading great host, and went forth against him to fight. Wherfore Demetrius sent letters vnto Jonathas, with louing wordes, and praysed him greatly. For he said: we will first make peace wyth him, before he binde him selfe with Alexãder against vs: els he shall remembre the euell that we haue done against him, hys brother, and his people. And so he gaue Jonathas leaue to gather an host, to make weapons, and to be confederate with him, and commaunded the pledges that were in the castell to be deliuered vnto hym.

B Then came Jonathas to Jerusalem, & redde the letters in the audience of all the people: and of them that were in the castle. And therfore were they sore afrayde, because they heard that the kyng had geuen him licence to gather an hoste. Thus wer the pledges deliuered vnto Jonathas which restored them to their elders. Jonathas also dwelte at Jerusalem, and began to builde vp, and to repaire the citie, commaunding the worke men to wal it: & the mounte Sion roũd about with free stone, to be a strong hold, and so they dyd. As for the Heathen that wer in the castels, which Bachides hadde made vp, they fled: so that euery man lefte the place, and went into his owne countre. Onely at Bethsura remained certaine of the Jewes, which had forsaken the lawe and commaũdementes of God, for Bethsura was their refuge.

Now when kyng Alexãder heard of the promises that Demetrius had made vnto Jonathas, and when it was told him of ye battailes and noble actes, whiche he and his brethren had done, & of the great trauailes that they had taken: he said: Where shall we fynde such a man? Well, we will make him our frende, and be confederate with him. Upon this he wrote a letter vnto him: With these wordes: kyng Alexãder saluteth his brother Jonathas. We haue heard of the, that thou art a valiaunt man and mete to be our frende: wherefore thys day we ordeine thee to be the hyghe priest of thy people, and to be called the kynges frende. (Upon this he sente him a purple clothyng, and a crowne of gold) that thou mayest consider what is for our profit, and kepe frendshyp towarde vs.

So in the seuenth moneth of the hũdred C and thre score yere vpõ the solempne feast day of the tabernacles, Jonathas put the holy rayment vpon him. Then gathered he an host, and made many weapons.

Whiche when Demetrius heard, he was maruellous sorye, and sayde: Alas, what haue we done, that Alexander hath preuented vs in gettyng the frendshyp of the Jewes for his owne defence?

Yet will J wryte louynglye vnto them also: yea, and promyse them dignities, and rewardes, that they may be of my syde. Whereupon he wrote vnto thẽ these wordes: king Demetrius sẽdeth greting vnto the people of the Jewes. Wher as ye haue kept your couenaũt toward vs, & cõtinued in our frendeshyppe, not inclynyng to our enemyes, we were glad, when we heard therof. Wherfore remaine still, & be faythful to vs: and we shall well recompence you for the thynges that ye haue done on our partye: we shall release you of many charges, and geue you rewardes. And now I discharge you and all the Jewes from tributes: I forgeue you the customes of salt, and release you of the crowne taxes, of the third part of the sede, and halfe of the fruite of trees, whiche is myne owne duetye.

D These I leaue for you, from thys daye forth: so that they shall not be taken of the land of Juda nor of the thre cities, which are added thereunto out of Samaria, and Galile from thys daye forth for euermore. Jerusalem also with all thynges belongyng therto, shalbe holy and free: yea, the tythes and tributes shall pertaine vnto it. As for the power of the castell, which is at Jerusalem, I remit and geue it vnto the hye priest, that he maye set in it such men, as he shall chose to kepe it. I freelye deliuer all the Jewes that are prisoners thorowout all my realme, so that euery one of thē shalbe free from paying any tribute: yea, euen of their cattell.

All the solempne feastes, Sabbothes, new Moones, the dayes appoynted, the thre dayes before and after the feast, shall be free for all the Jewes in my realme: so that in them no man shall haue power to doe any thyng, or to moue any busynes against any of thē in any maner of cause. There shall thirtye thousande also of the Jewes be written vp in the kynges hoste, and haue their wages payed, as all other men of warre of the kynges shoulde haue: and of them shall be ordeyned certaine to kepe the kynges strong holdes: yea, and some of them shall be set ouer the kynges businesse, that they maye faythfully deale with the same. The Jewes also shall haue princes of their owne, and walke in their owne lawes, as the kyng hath commaunded in the lande of Juda.

And the thre cities that are fallen vnto
E Jewry from the country of Samaria and Galile: shalbe taken as Jewry, and be vnder one: nether be subiecte to any straung Lorde, but to the highe priest. As for Ptolomais and the lande pertaynyng therto, I geue it vnto the Sanctuary at Jerusalem, for the necessary expences of the holye things. Moreouer, I will geue euery yere xv. thousand sycles of siluer out of the kinges checker (which partaineth vnto me) to the worke of the tēple: yea, and loke what remayneth (which they that had our matters in hād in times past, haue not payed) the same shall they geue vnto them also.

And besydes all this, the fyue thousande sicles, which they toke yearely of the rētes of the Sanctuarye, shall belong vnto the priestes that doe seruice.

Item, whosoeuer they be, that flee vnto the temple at Jerusalem or within the lyberties therof, where as they are fallen into the kynges daunger for any maner of busynesse, they shalbe pardoned, and all the goodes that they haue in my realme, shalbe free. For the buyldyng also and repayring of the worke of the Sanctuarye, expences shall be geuen out of the kynges checker: yea, and for the makyng of the walles roūde about Jerusalem, for ye breakyng downe of the old, and for the settyng vp of the strong holdes in Jewrye, shal the costes and charges, be geuen out of the kynges checker.

*But when Jonathas and the people heard these wordes, they gaue no credence vnto them, neyther receiued them: for they remembred the great wyckednesse that he hadde done vnto Israel, and howe sore he had vexed them. Wherefore, they agreed vnto Alexander, for he was a prynce that had dealte frendely with them, and so they stode by hym alwaye. *Then gathered kyng Alexander a great host, and brought his armye against Demetrius. So the two kynges stroke battaille together, but Demetrius hoste fled, and Alexander folowed after, and fell vpon them. A myghty sore field was it, continuyng till the sunne went down, and Demetrius was slayne the same day.

f And Alexander sente Ambasadours vnto Ptolomy the kyng of Egypte wyth these wordes, saying: For asmuche as I am come agayne to my realme, and am set in the throne of my progenitours, & haue gotten the dominiō, ouercommed Demetrius, conquered the lande, and strycken field with him so that we haue discōfyted both him and his host, and sit in ye throne of hys kyngdom: Let vs now make frendshyppe together, geue me thy daughter to wyfe: So shall I be thy sonne in lawe, and both geue thee rewardes, and her greate dignity. Ptolomy the kyng gaue aunswer saying: Happye be the daye wherin thou arte come agayne, vnto the lande of thy progenitous, and set in the throne of theyr kyngdom. As now will I fulfill thy wrytyng: But mete me at Ptolomais, that we may se one another, and that I may mary my daughter vnto the, accordyng to thy desire. So Ptolomy went oute of Egypte with with hys daughter Cleopatra, and came unto Ptolomays in the. Clxii.yeare wher kyng Alexander mette him, and he gaue Alexander his daughter Cleopatra, and maryed them at Ptolomays wyth great worshyp, lyke as the maner of kings is to be. Then wrote kyng Alexander unto Jonathas, that he shoulde come, and mete hym. So he went honorably unto Ptolomays, and there he mette the two kinges, and gaue them greate presentes of golde and siluer, and founde fauoure in theyr syght.

G And there came together against Jona-thas certayne wycked men and ungracious persons of Israel, makyng complaintes of him, but the kyng regarded them not. As for Jonathas, the kyng commaũ-ded to take of his garmentes, and to cloth him in purple, and so they dyd. Then the kyng appoynted hym to sitte by hym, and sayd unto his princes: Goe with him into the myddest of the citye, and make a proclamation that no mã complaine against him of any matter, and that no man trouble him for any maner of cause.
So it happened: that when his accusers saw the worshyp, which was proclaymed of him, and that he was clothed in purple, they fledde euerychone.
And the kyng made much of hym, wrote him among his chiefe frendes, made hym a Duke, and partaker of hys dominion.
*Thus Jonathas went agayne to Jeru- Iose. cap. ... lib.13. antiquit. salem with peace and gladnesse. In the hundred, lxv. yere came Demetrius yͤ sone of Demetrius, from Creta into his fathers land: whereof when Alexander heard tell, he was right sory, and returned unto Antioch. And Demetrius chose * Appolonius (which had the gouernaunce of Celosiria) to be his captaine.
So he gathered a great hoste, & came unto Jamnia, and sente worde unto Jonathas, yͤ high priest, saying: Darest thou withstande us, thy selfe alone? As for me, I am but laughed to scorne and shamed, bicause thou prouedst thy strẽgth against us in the mountaines. Now therfore, yf yͤ trustest in thine own strength, com down to us into the plaine field, and there let us proue oure strength together: thou shalte fynde, that I haue ualiaunt men of warre with me: and shalt know whom I am, and the other that stande by me.
H Whiche sayet: that your fote is not able to stande before oure face, for thy fathers haue bene twice chased into their own lãd.
And nowe, how wylt yͤ be able to abyde so great an hoste of horsemen and fotemen in the field wher as is neyther rocke stone nor place to flee unto? When Jonathas heard the wordes of Appollonius, he was moued in hys mynde: wherfore he chose tenne thousand men, and went out of Jerusalem, and Simon his brother met him for to helpe him. And they pitched their tẽ-tes at Joppa, but the city kepte hym forth, for Joppa was an holde of Appolonius: Then Jonathas layed seege to it, and thei that were in the Citye for very feare lette him in, and so Jonathas wanne Joppa.
Appollonius hearyng of thys, toke thre thousande horsemen, with a great host of fotemen, and went as though he woulde goe to Azotus, and came immediatly into the playne fielde: bicause he had so many horsemen, and putte his trust in them. So Jonathas folowed upon him to Azotus, and there thei stroke the battail. Now had Appolonius lefte a thousand horsmen behind thẽ priuily in the tentes. And when Jonathas knewe that suche wayte was layed behynde them, they wente round a-boute the enemies host, and shotte dartes at the people, from the mornyng to the euenyng. As for Jonathas people, they kepte their order as he had commaunded them, and the enemyes horses were euer labouryng.
Then brought Simon forth his hoste, I and set them agaynst the fote men. For the horsemen were werye already. So he discomfited them, and they fledde. And they that wer scatered in the fielde, gatte them to Azotus, and came into the tẽple of Dagon their Idol, that they myght there saue their liues. But Jonathas sette fire upon Azotus, and all the cities round about it, and toke their goodes and * brent up the 1. Mac. 3. a. temple of Dagon, with all them that were fled into it.
Thus were slayne & brent wel nye viij.
M. men. So Jonathas remoued the hoste from thence and brought them to Ascalon: Where the men of the citie came forth, and met him with great worshyppe. After this went Jonathas and his hoste agayne to Jerusalem, with great substaũce of good.
And when kyng Alexander heard these thynges, he thought to do Jonathas more worshyp, and sente hym a color of gold, as the use is to be geuen unto such as are of the kynges next bloud. He gaue hym also the Citie of Accaron (with the landes belongyng thereto) in possession.

The .xi. Chapter.

The discention betwixt Ptolomeus and Alexander his sonne in law. The death of Alexander. Demetrius raygneth after the death of Ptolomeus. Simon is beseged of Jonathas. Demetrius seyng that no man resisted hym, sendeth his armye again. Tryphon moueth Antiochus against Demetrius. Demetrius is delivered by ẏ succour of Jonathas. After his deliueraunce he breaketh hys couenaunt that he had made.

A AND the kyng of Egipt gathered an host (lyke the sand that lyeth vpon the sea shore) and manye shyppes, * and wente about thorow disceate to obtaine the kyngdom of Alexāder, & to ioyne it vnto his owne realme. Upon this, he toke his iourney into Siria, & was letten into the cities, & mē came forth to mete him, for kyng Alexander had commaūded them so to do, bicause he was his father in law. Now whē Ptolomie entred into any citie, he lefte mē of war to kepe it, and thys he dyd thorowout all the cities. And when he came to Azotus, * they shewed him the temple of Dagon, and Azotus that was brent vp, wyth the other thynges whiche were destroyed, the dead bodyes caste abrode, and the graues that they had made by the waye side, for suche as wer slaine in the fielde. And tolde the kyng that Jonathas had done all these thinges, to the intente they myght get him euill will. But the kyng said not a worde therto. And Jonathas met the kyng with great honoure at Joppa, wher they saluted one another, and toke their reste. So when Jonathas had gone wyth the kyng vnto the water that was called Eleutherus, he tourned againe to Jerusalem.

Iose. cap. 5. lib. 13.

1. Mac. x.

B Nowe Ptolompe had gotten the dominion of the cities vnto Seleucia vpon the sea coaste, ymaginyng wycked councels against Alexāder, and sente Ambasadours vnto Demetrius, saying: Come, lette vs make a bonde betwyxte vs, so shal I geue the my daughter that Alexāder hath, and thou shalt raigne in thy fathers kingdom. I repent ẏ I gaue Alexander my daughter, for he goeth about to slaye me. And thus he slaundred Alexander, bicause he would haue had his realme.

Thus he toke hys daughter from hym, gaue her vnto Demetrius, and forsoke Alexander, so ẏ hys malice was openly knowen. And Ptolomy came to Antioch, wher he set two crownes vpon his owne head: The crowne of Egypte and of Asia. In the meane season was king Alexander in Cilitia, for they that dwelte in those places, had rebelled agaynst hym. But when Alexander heard of thys, he came to warre against him. So kyng Ptolompe broughte forth his host and met hym with a mighty power and chased him awaye. Then fled Alexander into Araby there to be defended, and kyng Ptolomies honour increased. And Zabdel the Arabyan smote of Alexanders head, and sente it vnto Ptolomy. But the third day after, dyed kyng Ptolomy him selfe: and they whom he had set in the strong holdes wer slayne of those that were within the cities. And Demetrius raygned in the hundred and seuen and syxtye yeare.

C At the same tyme gathered Jonathas them that wer in Jewry, to laye sege vnto the castell, which was at Jerusalem, and so they made many instrumentes of warr against it. Then went there certaine vngodlye persons (whiche hated their owne people) vnto kyng Demetrius: and tolde hym that Jonathas besieged the castel. So when he heard it, he was angrye, and immediatlye came vnto Ptolomays, and wrote vnto Jonathas that he should laye no sege to the castell, but come & speake wt hym in all ẏ hast. Neuerthelesse, when Jonathas heard this, he commaunded to besege it. He chose also certaine of the elders and Priests of Israel, and put him selfe in the peril, and toke with hym golde, syluer, clothyng, and diuers presentes, and went to Ptolomays vnto the kyng, and founde hym gracious.

And thoughe certayne vngodlye men of hys owne people made complayntes vpon hym, yet * the kyng entreated hym as hys predecessours hadde done before, and promoted him in the syghte of al hys frendes, confirmed him in the high priesthod, with all the worshyppe that he had afore, and made hym hys chiefe frende. Jonathas also desired the kyng that he woulde make Jewry free * with thre head cities of Samaria, and the landes pertaynyng therto: vpon this dyd Jonathas promise him thre hundred talentes. Wherunto the king consented, & gaue Jonathas writing of the same, conteynyng these wordes: King Demetrius sedeth greeting vnto his brother Jonathas, & to the people of ẏ Jews. We sende you here a copy of ẏ letter, which we dyd wryte vnto our elder Lasthenus, concernyng you, that ye should know it.

1. Mac. x.

1. Mac. x. [illegible]

kyng Demetrius sendeth greetyng vnto Lasthenus hys elder. For the faythfulnesse that our frẽdes the people of the Iewes kepe vnto vs, and for the louig kyndnesse, which they beare toward vs: we are determined to doe them good.

Wherefore, we ordayne al the coastes of D Iewrye with thre cities, Lydda and Ramatha (whiche are added vnto Iury from Samaria) and all the landes pertaynyng thereunto, to be frelye separated for suche as doe sacrifice in Ierusalem, both concernyng the payments, which the kyng toke yerelye afore tyme, & the fruites also of the earth and trees. As for other tythes & trybutes that belõgeth vnto vs, we discharge them therof from this time forth. In lyke maner we graunt vnto them all the customes of salte, and crowne taxes: whiche were brought vnto vs. And this fredome shal they haue firme & stedfaste, from this time forth for euermore. Therfore, see that ye make a copie of these our letters, & deliuer it vnto Ionathas, that it may be kept vpon ŷ holy mounte in a conueniẽt place.

E After this, when Demetrius the kyng saw that his lande was in reste, and that no resistaunce was made him: he sente away al his host euery mã to his ownplace, except an armye of straungers, whom he brought frõ the Iles of the heathen, wherfore all his fathers hoste had euill will at i.Mac.xii him. * Now was there one Triphon (that had bene of Alexanders part afore) which when he sawe that all the hoste murmured against Demetrius: he went to Emaleuel ŷ Arabiã (that brought vp Antiochus the sonne of Alexander) and laye sore vpõ him, to deliuer him this yong Antiochus, that he might raygne in his fathers stead. He tolde him also what great euill Demetrius had done, and how his men of warre loued him not, and so remayned ther a lõg season.

And Ionathas sent vnto kyng Demetrius, to dryue them out whych wer in the Castel at Ierusalẽ, & in the other refugies, for they dyd Israell great harme. So Demetrius sente worde vnto Ionathas, saying: I wil not onely doe these thinges for the, & thy people, but at time conuenient I will doe both thee, and thy people greate worshyp. But nowe shalte thou doe me a pleasure, if thou wilt send me men to help me, for all myne armye is gone from me.
F So Ionathas sente hym thre thousande strong men vnto Antioch, and they came to the kyng: Wherefore the kyng was verye glad at their comming. But they that wer of the Citie (euen an hundred and .xx. M. men) gathered them together, & would haue slayne the kyng, which fled into his courte, and the citizens kepte the streates of the citie, and beganne to fyghte.

Then the kyng called for the Iews helpe, which came vnto him altogether, & wente abroad thorow the citie, and slew the same daye an hundred thousande men, set fyre vpon the citie, gat manye spoyles in that day: and deliuered the kyng. So when the citizens sawe that the Iewes had gotten their will of the citie, and they them selues disappoynted of their purpose, they made their supplication vnto the kyng, sayinge: Graunt vs peace, and let the Iewes cease from troublyng vs and the citie, and vpon thys they cast away their weapons. Thus they made peace, and the Iews gat great worshyppe in the syght of the kyng, and in the syght of all that wer in his realme, and were spoken of thorow out the kyngdome: and so they came agayne to Ierusalẽ with great goodes.

So the kyng Demetrius satte in the throne of hys kyngdom, and had peace in G hys lande. Neuerthelesse, he dissembled in all that euer he spake, and withdrewe hym selfe from Ionathas, neither rewarded hym accordyng to the benefites, whiche he had done for him, but troubled hym verye sore. After this came Triphon agayn with yong Antiochus: which raygned and was crowned kyng. Then there gathered vnto hym all the men of war: whom Demetrius had put awaye, these fought against Demetrius, which fled and turned his backe. So Triphon toke the Elephantes, & wan Antioch. And young Antiochus wrote vnto Ionathas, saying: I confirme the in thy priesthode, make the ruler of foure countreyes, that thou mayest be a frende of the kynges.

Upon thys, he sente him golden vessels to be serued in: & gaue him leaue to drinke in gold, to be clothed in purple, & to weare a colar of golde. He made his brother Simon also captaine, from the coastes of Tyrus vnto the borders of Egypte. Then Ionathas toke his iourney, and went thorow the cities beyonde the water of Iordane, and all the men of warre of Syria gathered them vnto him for to helpe him. So he came vnto Ascalon, and they of the citie receaued him honourably: and from thence wente he vnto Gaza, but they woulde not let him in, wherefore he layd siege vnto it.

burnyng vp and spoyling the places that were about the citie.
H And the citizens of Gaza submitted them selues vnto Jonathas, which made peace with thē, but toke of their sones to plēdge, sent them to Jerusalem, and went thorow the countre vnto Damascus. Now when Jonathas heard that Demetrius prynces wer come into Cades (which is in Galyle) with a great host, purposing to put Deme= trius out from medlyng in the realme, he came against them, and lefte Simon hys brother in the land, which came to Beth= sura, and layd siege to it a long season, and discomfited them. So they desired to haue peace with hym, which he graunted them, and afterward put them out from thence, toke the citie, and set men to kepe it. And Jonathas with his hoste came to the wa= ter of Genesar, and betimes in ẏ mornyng gat them to the plaine fielde of Azor.
And beholde, the hostes of the Heathen met them in the field, and layd watche for them in the moūtaynes: so that when Jo= thas came against them, the other (which wer laied to watch) rose out of their places and fought, & they that were of Jonathas syde fled euery man, & there was not one of them left, except Mattathias the sonne of Absalomus and Judas the sonne of Calphy the captayne of the host.
Then Jonathas rent his clothes, laide earth vpō his head, made his prayer, and turned againe to them in the fielde: where they fought together, and he put them to flight. Now when his own men that wer fled saw this: they turned againe vnto him, and helped him to folow vpō all their ene= mies vnto their tētes at Cades. So there were slaine of the Heathen the same daye. iii.M. men: and Jonathas turned agayne to Jerusalem.

The.xii.Chapter.

Jonathas sendeth Ambassadours to Rome, and to the people of Sparta, to renue their couenaūt of frendship. Jonathas putteth to flyght the princes of Demetrius. Tryphon taketh Jonathas by disceat.

A Jonathas seinge that the time was mete for him, chose cer= taine men, and sent thē vnto Rome for to stablishe and to 1.Ma.8.a renue ẏ frendeship with thē.
He sente letters also vnto Sparta, and to other places in lyke maner. So they went vnto Rome, and entred into the councel, & sayd: Jonathas the hie priest, and the peo= ple of the Jewes sent vs vnto you, for to renue the olde frendshyp and bond of loue: Upon this the Romaynes gaue them free pasportes, that men should lead thē home into the land of Juda peaceably. And this is the coppye of the letters that Jonathas wrote vnto the Spartians.
Jonathas the hye priest with the elders, priests, & the other people of ẏ Jewes, send greting vnto the Spartiās their brethrē.
There were letters sent long agoe vnto Onias the hye priest, from Arius: whiche then raigned among you: that ye are oure brethren, as the writyng made therupon specifieth. And Onias entreated ẏ embas= sadour that was sent honourably, & recea= ued the letters: wherin ther was mention made of the bond of loue & frendshyp. But as for vs, we nede no suche writynges: for why? we haue ẏ holy bokes of scripture in our handes to oure cōforte. Neuerthelesse B we had rather sende vnto you, for the re= nuyng of the brotherhod, and frendeshyp: Lest we shuld be straunge vnto you, for it is long synce the time that ye sent worde vnto vs. Wherfore in the sacrifices that we offer, and other ceremonies vpon ẏ highe solempne dayes, and other, we alwaye re= mēber you without ceassyng (lyke as rea= son is, and as it becommeth vs to thincke vpon our brethren) yea, and are right glad of your prosperous honoure.
And thoughe we haue had great trou= bles, & wars, so ẏ the kings about vs haue foughten against vs: yet would we not be greuous vnto you, nor to other of our lo= uers & frēds in these warres. For we haue had helpe frō heauē, so ẏ we are deliuered, and our enemyes subdued. Wherfore we chose Numenius ẏ son of Antiochus, and Antipater ẏ sō of Jason, & sent them vnto the Romās, for to renue ẏ olde bōd of frēd= ship & loue with thē. We commaunded thē also to come vnto you, to salute you, and to deliuer you our letters, concerning ẏ reno= uation of our brotherhod. And now ye shal do right wel, to geue vs an āswer therūto.
And this is ẏ copy of the writing, which Arius the kyng of Sparta sent vnto Oni= C as: Arius kyng of the Spartians sendeth gretyng vnto Onias the highe Priest. It is founde in writyng, ẏ the Spartians & Jews are brethren, & com out of the gene= ration of Abraham. And now for so much as this is come to our knowlege, ye shall do wel, to write vnto vs of your prosperity.
As for vs, we haue wrytten our minde vn= to you: Our catell and goodes are youres, & yours, ours. These thynges haue we cō= maunded to be shewed vnto you.

When

When Jonathas heard that Demetrius princes were come forth to fight agaynst him wt a greater host thã afore, he went frō Jerusalē, & met thē in the land of Hemath, for he gaue them not space to com into his own country. And he sent spyes vnto their tentes, which came againe and tolde him, that they wer appointed to come vpō hym in the nyght season. Wherfore when the Sunne was gone down, Jonathas com-maūded his men to watche all the night, & to be ready with weapons for to fight: & set watch men round about the hoste. But when the aduersaries heard that Jona-thas was ready with his mē to the battel: they feared, & wer afrayed in their heartes & kyndled fiers in their tentes, brake vp, & gat them away. Neuerthelesse, Jonathas and his company knew it not till the morning, for they sawe the fiers burnyng.
D Then Jonathas folowed vpon them, but he might not ouertake them, for they wer gone ouer the water Eleutherus. So Jonathas departed vnto ẏ Arabians (whych wer called Zabâdei) slew thē & toke their goodes. He proceeded further also, & came vnto Damascus, and went thorow al that country. But Simon his brother toke his iourney & came to Ascalon, and to the next strong holdes, departing vnto Joppa, and wan it. For he heard: that they would stād of Demetrius party, wherefore he set men of war in ẏ citie, to kepe it. After this came Jonathas home againe, and called the elders of the people together: & deuised with them for to build vp the strong holdes in Jewry, and the walles of Jerusalē, to set vp an hye wall betwixt the castell and the citie, for to seperate it from the citie, that it might be alone, & that men should neyther E by nor sel in it. Upon this they came together for to build vp the citie, & for so muche as the wal vpon the broke of the west syde (called Caphetah) was fallen down, they repaired it: And Simon set vp Adiadah in Sephelah, & made it strong, settyng por-1.Mac.xi. c. tes and lockes vpon it. Now when *Tri-phō purposed to raigne in Asia, to be crow-Iose. cap. 21.lib.13. ned, and to slay ẏ kyng Antiochus: he was afrayed that Jonathas would not suffre him: but fyght against him: Wherefore he went about to take Jonathas, and to kyll him. So he departed, & came vnto Bethsā.
Then went Jonathas forth against hym to the battell with.xl.M.chosen men, and came vnto Bethsan also. But when Triphon sawe that Jonathas came with so great an hoste to destroye him, he was a-frayed, and therfore he receaued him honourably, commended hym vnto all hys frendes, and gaue him rewardes and cō-maunded his men of war to be as obediēt vnto him as to hym selfe.
And said vnto Jonathas: why hast thou F caused this people to take suche trauaile, seyng there is no war betwixt vs? Therefore sende them home agayne, and chose certaine men to wayte vpon the, and come thou wt me to Ptolomais, for I wil geue it the, with the other strong holdes, men of war, and their officers: As for me, I muste depart, this is only ẏ cause of my cōming: Jonathas beleued him, did as he said, putting away his host, whiche went into the land of Juda. He kept but thre thousād by him, wherof he sent two thousād into Ga-lile, and one thousand wēt with him selfe.
Now assone as Jonathas entred into Ptolomais, the citizēs sparred the gates of the city, & toke him, and slew al them with the swearde, that came in with him. Then sent Triphon an hoste of fotemen & horsemen into Galile, and into the great plaine fielde, to destroye all Jonathas company. But when they knew that Jonathas was taken: and al they slaine that wayted vpon him, they toke councel together, and came forth ready to the battell. So when thei which folowed vpon thē, saw, ẏ it was a matter of life, they turned backe againe.
As for the other: they went into ẏ lande of Juda peaceably, and bewailed Jonathas, and thē that wer with him right sore. And Israel made great lamētation. Thē al the Heathen that wer roūde about thē sought to destroy thē. For they said: now haue thei no captain, nor any man to helpe them.
Therfore, let vs ouercome them, and roote out their name from among men.

The.xiii.Chapter.

After Jonathas was taken Simon is chosen captaine, of whome Triphon takyng his children and mony for the redemption of Jonathas, killeth hym and his children. The graue of Jonathas. Triphon kylleth Antiochus, and possessed the realme. Demetrius taketh truce with Simon. Simon wynneth Gaza. He possesseth the tower of Sion. He maketh his sonne John captaine.

NOw when Simon heard ẏ Tri- A phon gathered a great hoste to come in ẏ lande of Juda, & to destroy it, & saw that ẏ people was in great fearfulnesse & care: He came vp to Jerusalē, and gathered ẏ people together, and gaue thē exhortatiō, saying: Ye know what great battailes I and my brethren, and my fathers house haue fought for the law and the Sãctuary, and what maner 1.Ma.6.c of troubles we haue sene: thorow occasion [illegible].b.xiii b wherof *al my brethren are slayne for Israels sake, & I am left alone. And now let me not spare myne own life in any maner of trouble, for I am not better than my brethren, but will auenge my people, and the Sanctuary, our children and our wy-ues: for al the Heathen are gathered together to destroy vs of very malice.

B At these wordes the hertes of the peowere kyndled together, so that they cryed with a loude voyce saying: Thou shalte be our captaine in stead of Iudas, and Iona-thas thy brethren, order thou our battail, and whatsoeuer thou commaundest vs, we shal do it. So he gathered all the men of war, making hast to finish al the walles of Ierusalẽ, which he made strong rounde about. Thẽ sent he Ionathas the sonne of Absolomus with a fresh host vnto Ioppa, which droue thẽ out that wer in the castel & remained there him self. Triphõ also remoued frõ Ptolemais wt a great army, to com into ẏ land of Iuda, & Ionathas with him beig in warde. And Simõ pitched his tentes at Addus before the plaine fielde.
But when Triphon knew that Simon stode vp in stead of his brother Ionathas, and that he woulde warre against hym, he sent messangers vnto him, saying: Where as we haue kept Ionathas thy brother, it is for money that he is owing in the kynges accoumpt, cõcerning the busynes that he had in hande. Wherfore sende now an hundred talentes of siluer, & his two sõnes for suerty, ẏ when he is letten forth, he shal not forsake vs, and we shall sende him againe. Neuerthelesse, Simon knew, that he dissembled in his wordes, yet commaũ-ded he the mony and children to be deliue-uered vnto him, lest he should be the greater enemy against ẏ people of Israell, and saye: bicause he sent him not the mony and the children, therfore is Ionathas deade.
C So Simon sent him the children and an hundred talentes, but he dissembled, and would not let Ionathas goe. Afterwarde came Triphon in the land to destroye it, & went round about by ẏ way, that leadeth vnto Ador. But wheresoeuer they wente, thether wẽt Simon & his host also. Now they ẏ were in the castell, sent messangers vnto Triphon, that he should make hast to come by the wildernesse, and to send them vitailes. And Triphon made ready all hys horsemen to come the same night. Neuer-thelesse, it was a very great snow, so that he came not in Galaaditham. And when he drew nye Baschama, he slew Ionathas & his sonnes there; and thẽ turned for to go home into his owne lande.
Then sent Simon for to fet his brothers dead coarse, & buried it in Modin his fathers city. So all Israell bewayled him wt great lamentatiõ, & mourned for him very long. And Simon made vpõ the sepulchre of his father and his brethren, a buyldyng hye to loke vnto, of free stone, behynd & before, & set vp sevẽ pillers, one against another (for his father, his mother, & four brethren) and set great pillers rounde about with armes vpon them, for a perpetuall memorye, and carued shyppes beside ẏ armes, that they might be seen of mẽ sailing in the sea. This sepulchre whiche he made at Modin: standeth yet vnto this daye.
*Now as Triphon went forth to walke D with the yõg kyng Antiochus, he slew him Iose.a.10. trayterously, and raygned in hys steade, Libro.13 crowned him self king of Asia, & dyd much euil in the lande. Simon also builte vp the castels in Iewry, making them strõg with hye towres, great walles, portes, and loc-kes, and laied vp vitailes in the strõg hol-des. And Simon chose certaine men, and sent thẽ to king Demetrius, to desyre him, that he would discharge the lande from al bondage, for Triphon had spoyled it verye sore. Whereupon Demetrius the kyng answered him, and wrote vnto him after this maner.
Demetrius the kyng sendeth gretyng vnto Simon the hye priest his frend, with the elders and people of the Iewes. The golden crowne, and precious stone that ye sent vnto vs, haue we receaued, & are ready to make a stedfast peace with you: yea, & to write vnto our officers, for to release you, concernyng the thynges wherin we made you free, and the appointement that we make with you, shalbe firme & stable.
The strong holds which ye haue builded, shalbe your own. As for any ouersyght or faulte cõmitted vnto this day, we forgeue it, and the crowne taxe that ye oughtvs also. And where as was any other tribute in Ierusalem, it shal now be no tribute: & loke who are mete amõg you to be in our court, let them be wrytten vp, that there maye be peace betwixte vs.
Thus the yoke of the Heathen was ta- E ken from Israel, in the hundreth & seuenty yere. And the people of ẏ Iewes began to wryte

heyte in their letters and actes on this maner: * In the first yere of Simon the hye priest, and prince of the Jewes.

In those daies went Simon vnto Gaza, and besieged it rounde about, wher he set vp ordinaunce of war. And wan a towre, which he toke. So they that gat into the towre, leapt into the citie, which was in a great feare: In so much that the people of the citie rent their clothes, and clymed vp vpon the walles with their wyues & children, besechyng Simon to be at one with them, saying.

F Rewarde vs not after oure wyckednesse, but be gracious vnto vs, and we shal do the seruice. Then Simon for very pity, would fyght nomore agaynste them, but put them oute of the citye, and caused the houses (wherein the ymages were) to be clensed, and so entred the citie with Psalmes of prayse, geuyng thanckes vnto the Lord. So when he had cast all abhominations out of the citie, he sette suche men in it as kept the law of God, & made the citie strong, and buylded a dwellyng place for him selfe.

Now, when they in the castell at Jerusalem wer kepte so straightely that they coulde not come forth into the coūtrye, and might neither bye nor sel: they were verye hungry, & many of thē famished to death, in so much that they besought Simon to be at one with them, whiche he graunted them. So he put thē out from thence, and clensed the castell from fylthynesse. And vpon the .xxiii. day of the second moneth in the .clxxi. yeare they entred into it wyth thankesgeuing and braunches of Palme trees, with harpes, croudes, cimbales, and lutes, singing Psalmes & songes of prayse vnto God: for that the great enemye of Israell was ouercome.

And Simon ordained that the same day should be kept euery yeare in gladnesse, & made strong the hyll of the temple ŷ was beside the castell, where he dwelt him selfe with his cōpany. Simon also perceauing that John his sonne was a mightye man of armes, made him captaine of al ŷ hosts, and caused him to dwell at Gaza.

The .xiiii. Chapter.

Demetrius is ouercome of Arsaces. Simon beyng captayne, there is great quietenesse in Israell. The couenaunt of frendship with the Romaines, & with the people of Sparta is renewed.

IN the .Clxxii. yere gathered kyng Demetrius his host, and departed vnto Media, to get him helpe for to fight agaynst Triphon. Now when Arsaces the king of Persia and Media heard, that Demetrius was entred within his borders, he sent one of his princes, to take him alyue: and to bring him vnto him. So he went and slew Demetrius host, toke hym selfe, brought him to Arsaces whiche kept him in ward. And al the land of Juda was in rest so lōg as Simō lyued, for he sought the wealth of his people, therfore wer they glad to haue him for their ruler, and to do him worshyp alway. A

Simon wan the citie of Joppa also for an hauen to wone, and made it an entraūce into the Iles of the sea. He enlarged ŷ borders of his people, and cōquered thē more lande. He gathered vp many of their people that were prisoners: he had the dominion of Gaza, Bethsura, and the castell, which he clensed from filthinesse, and ther was no manne that resisted him. So that euery man tylled his ground in peace, the lande of Juda, and the trees gaue their fruite & encrease. The elders sat al in iudgemēt, and toke their deuyce for ŷ wealth of the land, the yong men put on worshyp and harnesse vpon thē. He prouided vitayles for the cities, & made goodly strōg holdes of them, so ŷ the fame of his worshippe was spoken of vnto the ende of the world. B

Euery man sat vnder his vine and figtrees, and ther was no man to feare them away. Ther was none in the land to fyght agaynst thē, for then the kinges wer ouercome. He helped those that were in aduersity among hys people, he was diligent to see the law kepte, as for suche as were vngodly and wicked, he toke them away. He set vp the sanctuary, and increased the holy vessels of the temple.

When the Romains and Spartians had gotten worde, ŷ Jonathas was dead, they wer right sorie. But when they heard that Simō his brother was made hie priest in his stead, and how that he had wonne the land again with the cities in it, thei wrote vnto him in tables of brasse, to renue the frendship & bond of loue, whiche they had made afore with Judas and * Jonathas his brethren. Which writings wer red before the congregation at Jerusalem. 1 Ma. 8.c and. 12.a

And this is ŷ copie of the letters that the Spartians sente: The Senatours, and citizens of Sparta send greting vnto Simon the great priest, with the elders, priestes, and y other people of the Jewes their brethren. When your ambassidours y wer sent vnto oure people, certifyed vs of your worship, honor & prosperous wealth, we wer glad of their comming, & haue writtē the errand which thei spake before y counsel of the people: namely y Numenius the sonne of Antiochus, & Antipater the son of Jason the Jewes ambassidours are come vnto vs, for to renue y old frendeship with vs. Upon this y people consented, that the men shuld be honorably entreated, & that the copie of their errand should be written in the special bokes of the people, for a perpetuall memory vnto the Spartians: yea, and y we shuld send a copy of the same vnto Simon the great priest. After this dyd D Simon send Numenius vnto Rome, with a golden shilde of a.M. pounde weyght to cōfirme the frendship with thē, which whē the Romains vnderstode, they sayde, what thanckes shall we recōpence againe vnto Simon & his children? For he hath stablished his brethren, & ouercom y enemies of Israell. Wherefore they graunted hym to be free. And all this wrote the Jewes in tables of brasse, and nayled it vnto the pillers vpon the mount Sion. The copye of the writing is this.

August. The eyghtenth day of y Moneth *Elul, in the.Clxxii.yeare, in the thirde yeare of Simon the hye priest, in the great cōgre-gation of the priestes, rulers of the people, and elders of the countrey at Asaram, wer these wordes openly declared.
E For so much as there was much war in our lāde, therfore Simon y son of Matha-thias (come of the children of Jareb) & hys brethren, put them selues in parel, and resisted y enemies of their people: that their Sanctuary & law might be maintained: & did their people great worship. Jonathas in lyke maner, after that he had gouerned hys people, and bene their hye priest: dyed, and lyeth buried beside his elders. After y would their enemies haue troden their holy thinges vnder fote, destroyed their land and vtterly wasted their Sanctuary. Thē Simon withstode them, and foughte for his people, spent much of his owne mony, waponed the valiaunt men of his people, gaue them wages, made strong the cities of Juda, with Bethsura that lyeth vpō the borders of Jewry (where the ordinaunce of their enemies lay some time) & set Jewes there for to kepe it. He made faste Joppa also, whiche lieth vpon the sea, & Gaza the F bordreth vpō Azotus (where the enemies dwelt afore) & there he set Jewes to kepe it: and what soeuer was mete for y subdu-yng of the aduersaries, that layed he therin. Now when y people saw the noble actes of Simon, and what worship he pur-posed to do for thē, his godly behauour, & faithfulnesse, which he kept vnto thē, and how he sought by al wayes y wealth of his people, bicause he dyd al this, therfore thei chose him to be their prince, & hye priest.
And in his time they prospered wel by him so that the heathen were taken out of their land: & they also which wer in y city of Da-uid at Jerusalem in the castel (where they went out and defiled al thinges that wer about y sanctuary, & did great harme vnto clenlinesse) & Simō put men of the Jewes in it, for the defence of the land and citie, and set vp the walles of Jerusalem.
And kyng Demetrius confirmed him in G his hie priesthod, made him his frend, and dyd him great worship. For he hearde that the Romaines called the Jews their fren-des, louers, and brethren, how honourably they receaued Simons ambassadours: how the Jewes & priestes consented that he shuld be their prince & hie priest perpetually (til God raiseth vp the true prophet) and that he should be their captain to care for the sanctuary, and to set officers vpon the workes therof, ouer the lande, ouer the weapōs, ouer y houses of defence, to make prouision for the holye thinges, and to be obeyed of euery man, & all the writings of the land to be made in hys name: that he shuld be clothed in purple & gold, and that it shuld be lawfull for none of y people nor priests to breake any of these thinges, to withstande his wordes, nor to call any cōgregation in the lande without him, that he should be clothed in purple, and weare a colar of gold. And if there wer any, which disobeyed or brake this ordinaunce, that he should be punished.
So all the people consented to alow Simon, and to doe accordyng to these wor-des: Simon also him selfe toke it vpō hym, and was content to be the hye priest, the captaine and prince of y Jewes & priests, and to gouerne thē all. And they cōmaunded to make this writig in tables of brasse and fasten it to the compasse of the sāctuarie in an open place, and to lay vp a copye of the same in the treasurye, that Simon and hys posterity myght haue it.

The .xv. Chapter.

Antiochus maketh a couenaunt of frendshyppe with Simon, and Triphon is persecuted. The Romains write letters vnto kinges and nations in the defence of the Iewes. Antiochus refusing the helpe that Simon sente him, breaketh his couenaunte.

Moreouer kyng Antiochus the A sonne of Demetrius sent letters from the Iles of the sea, vnto Simon the hye priest & prince of the Iewes, and to al the people, contaynyng these wordes: Antiochus the kyng sendeth greetyng vnto Simon the hye priest, and to the people of the Iewes. For so muche as certayne wicked men haue gotten the kyngdom of our progenitours, I am purposed to chalenge the realme agayne, and to restore it to the olde estate.
Wherefore I haue gathered a greate hoste, and made shyppes of warre, that I may go thorow the coũtrey, & be aueuged of them, which haue distroyed our lãd, and wasted manye cities in my realme. And therfore now I make the free also from al the tributes, wherof all kynges my progenitours haue discharged thẽ: and frõ other customes (wher frõ thei haue released thẽ) whatsoeuer they be: yea, I geue the leaue to smite monye of thine owne, within thy land. As for Ierusalẽ, I wil that it be holy and free: and all the weapons and houses of defence, whiche thou hast builded and kepest in thyne handes, shalbe thyne.
Wher as any thing is or shalbe owing vnto yͤ kyng, I forgeue it thee, from thys time forthe for euermore. And when we haue obtained our kyngdom, we shal do the, thy people, and the temple great worshyppe: so that your honour shalbe knowen thorowout the whole worlde.
B In the. Clxxiiii. yeare went Antiochus in to his fathers land, and all the men of war came together vnto him, so that few were lefte with Triphon. So the kyng Antiochus folowed vpon him, but he fledde vnto Dora, which lieth by yͤ sea side: for he sawe that there was mischiefe cõming vnto him and that his host had forsaken him. Then came Antiochus vnto Dora with an. C. & twenty. M. men of armes vpon fote, & viii.
M. horsmen. So he cõpassed the citie round about, and the shippes came by the sea.
Thus they vexed the citie by land and by water, in so muche yͭ they suffered no man to go in or out.
C In the meane season came *Numenius 1.Ma.14.d (and they that had bene with him) frõ the citie of Rome, hauing letters written vnto the kynges & prouinces, wherin wer contained these wordes: Lucius the Maire of Rome sendeth greting vnto Ptolomy the kyng. The ambassadours of the Iews our frendes beyng sent from Simon the hye priest, & from the people of the Iews, came vnto vs, for to renue the old frendship and bond of loue, brought a shield of gold weig a. M. pound, which we were content to receaue of thẽ. Wherfore we thought it good to write vnto the kinges and prouinces, to doe thẽ no harme, nor to take part against them, their cities, nor countrey, neyther to maintaine their enemyes agaynst them.
Yf there be any wicked persons therefore fled from their countrye vnto you, delyuer them vnto Simon the priest, that he maye punish them according to their own law.
The same wordes wrote the Romaines also vnto Demetrius the king, to Attalus, Araba, Arsares, and to all regions, as D Samsanes, to them of Sparta, Delo, Mido, Sidon, Caria, Samos, Pamphilia, Lycia, Alicarnassum, and to the Rhodes, to Faselis, Coo, Sida, Arada, Gortina, Gnidũ, to Cypres and Ciren. And of euery letter they sente a copie to Simon the hye priest, and to yͤ people of the Iewes: so Antiochus the kyng brought his hoste vnto Dora the seconde time to take it: where he made diuerse ordinaunces of warre, & kept Triphon in, that he should not come forth.
Then sent Simõ to Antiochus two thousande chosen men to helpe him with gold, siluer, and other plẽteous gere. Neuerthelesse, he woulde not receaue thẽ, but brake al the couenaũt, which he made with Simon afore, & withdrew him selfe frõ hym.
He sent Athenobius also a frende of his vnto Simõ, for to reason with him, saying ye withholde frõ me Ioppa & Gaza (with the castell that is at Ierusalem) which are cytyes of my realme, whose borders ye haue destroyed and done great euil in the land, hauyng the domination in many other places of my kyngdom. Wherfore deliuer now the cities, which ye haue taken, with the tributes of yͤ places that ye haue rule vpon, without the borders of Iewry: Or els geue me fyue. C. talentes of siluer: yea, and for the harme that ye haue done in the cities: and for the tributes of yͤ same, other. v. c. talentes. If no, we shall com and fyghte against you.
So Athenobius the kyngs frende came C to Ierusalem, and when he saw the great worshyp and honoure of Simon in golde, siluer, siluer, and so great plenty of ornamentes, he marueiled, & told Simon as þ kyng cōmaunded him. Then answered Simon, & sayde vnto him: *As for vs we haue neyther taken other mennes lands, nor withholden thē, but only our fathers heritage, which our enemies had vnryghteously in possession a certayne tyme. This heritage of our fathers haue we chalenged in processe of time. And wher as thou cōplaynest concerning Joppa & Gaza, they dyd great harme to oure people, and in oure lande, yet wil we geue an. C. talentes for them. (Jud, xi, c.)

Neuerthelesse, Athenobius āswered him not one worde, but turned agayne wrothfully vnto the kyng, and tolde him al these wordes, and the greate dignity of Simon with al that he had sene, and the king was very angry. In the meane time fled Triphon by shyp vnto Orthosayda. Then the kyng made Cendebeus captain of the sea coast, and gaue him an host of fotemē and horsmen, commaunding him to remoue þ host towarde Jewry, and to buylde vp the citie of Cedron, to make vp the portes, and to war against the people of the Jews. As for the kyng hym selfe: he folowed vpon Triphon. So Cēdebeus came vnto Jamnia, and began to vexe the people, to tread down Jewry, to take the people prisoners, to slay them, & *to build vp Cedron, where he set horsmen and other men of war: that they myght come forth, and go thorow the streates of Jewry, lyke as the kyng hadde commaunded hym. (i. Ma. 16. b.)

The. xvi. Chapter.

Cendebeus the captaine of Antiochus hoste is put to flyght of þ sonnes of Simō. Ptolomeus the sonne of Abobus kylleth Simon and his two sonnes at a banket. John killeth them that lye in waite for his lyfe.

A (i. Ma. 13. f) Then came John vp from *Gaza, and tolde Simon hys father what Cendebeus had done amōg their people. Upon this called Simon two of his eldeste sonnes, Judas and John: and sayd vnto thē: I & my brethren, & my fathers house, haue euer frō our youth vp vnto this day foughtē against the enemies of Israel, & God gaue vs good fortune to deliuer Israell oft times. And now for so much as I am old, be ye in steade of me, & my brethren, to go forth and fyght for our people, and the helpe of God be wyth you. So he chose twenty thousande fyghtyng men of the countrey with horsmen also. which went forth against Cendebeus, and rested at Modin.

In the mornyng they arose, & went into the plaine fielde: and beholde, a mightye great host came against them, both of fotmen and horsemen. Now was ther a water broke betwixt them, and John remoued the host toward them. And when he saw that þ people was afrayed to go ouer the water broke, he wēt ouer first himselfe and the men seyng this, folowed hym. Then John set hys horsemen and fotemē in order, the one by the other, for their enemyes horsemen wer very many. But whē they blew vp the priestes trompettes, Cendebeus fled with his hoste, wherof manye wer slaine, and the remnaunt gat them to their strong hold. Judas also Johns brother was wounded at the same time. And John folowed still vpon the enemyes, till he came to Cedron *whiche he builded. (i. Ma. 15. c.) The enemyes fled also vnto þ towers that wer in the fieldes of Azotus, and those dyd John burne vp. Thus there were slaine two. M. men of them, and John turned agayne peaceably to Jewrye.

B And in the fielde of Jericho was Ptolomie the sonne of Abobus made captayne, which bicause he had aboundaunce of siluer and golde: (for he hadde maryed the daughter of Simon the hye priest) waxed proude in hys mynde, and thought to conquere þ land, imaginyng falsehed against Simon and his sonnes, to destroye them. Nowe as Simon was goyng about thorow the cities, that were in the country of Jewry, and caryng for thē, he came down to Jericho with Matthathias and Judas his sonnes, in þ. Clxxvii. yere in the. xi. moneth called *Sabat. (Ianuary.) Thē Ptolome þ son of Abobus receaued thē (but with disceate) into a strong house of hys, called Doch, which he had builded where he made thē a banket.

So when Simon & his sōnes, wer merry, and had droken wel, Ptolomy stode vp with his men (whom he had hyd ther) and toke their weapons, entred into the bāket house, & slew Simon with his two sonnes & certaine of his seruauntes. Such greate vnfaithfulnesse dyd Ptolome in Israell & recompenced euill for good. Then wrote this Ptolomy the same vnto kyng Antiochus, requiring him that he shuld sēde him an hoste to helpe him: and so should he deliuer him the land with the cities & tributes of þ same. He sente other men also vnto

Gaza,

Gaza, for to take John, and wrote unto y^e captaines to come to him, and he shoulde geue them siluer, gold, and rewardes. And to Jerusalem he sent other to take it, and y^e Sanctuarye.

D Then ranne there one before, and told John in Gaza, that his father, & his brethren were slayne, and how that Ptolomie had sente to slaye him also. When John heard this, he was sore abashed, and layde handes of them that were come to destroy him, and slew them, for he knew that they went about to kill him:

As for other things concerning John: of his warres, of his noble actes (wherin he behaued him selfe manfullye) of the buildyng of walles, whiche he made, & other of hys deedes. They are wrytte in y^e chronycles of his priesthod, from the time forth y^t he was made hie priest after his father.

¶ The ende of the first boke of the Machabees.

The second Booke of the Machabees.

The fyrst Chapter.

An Epistle of the Jews that dwelt at Jerusalem sente unto them that dwelt in Egypt, wherein they exhorte them to geue thanckes for the death of Antiochus. Of the fire that was hyd in the pitte. The prayer of Nehemias.

A The brethren of y^e Jewes which be at Jerusalem, and in the lande of Jewrye, wyshe unto those brethren of the Jewes y^t are thorowoute Egypte: good fortune, helth and peace.

God be gracious unto you, & thinke upon his couenaunt that he made with Abraha, Isaac, and Jacob his faithful seruauntes, De.30.b. & geue you all such an hert, that ye maye loue & serue him: yea, & performe hys will with an whole hert, & of a willing mynde. He open your heartes in his lawe, and in his commaundementes, sende you peace, heare your prayers, be at on with you, and neuer forsake you in time of trouble. This is here our prayer for you.

What time as Demetrius raigned in the Clxix. yere, we Jewes wrote unto you in the trouble & violence that came unto us. In those yeres, after that Jason departed out of the holy lande and kyngdome, they brent up the portes & shed innocent bloud. Then made we our prayer unto the Lord, and wer heard: we offered, and lighted the candels, setting forth cakes and bread: * Le.24.f. And now come ye unto the feast of tabernacles in the moneth * Casleu. Nouember.

In y^e Clxxxviii. yere, the people that was B at Jerusalem, & in Jewry, y^e counsaille, & Judas him self sent his wholesome salutatio unto Aristobolus, king Ptolomais master, which came of the generation of y^e anoynted priests, and to the Jewes that were in Egipt: In so much as God hath deliuered us fro great perils, we thanke him highly. In that we resisted so mighty a kyng. And why: he brought men out of Persis by heapes, to fight against us, & the holy city. For as he was in Persis (namely, the captaine with y^e great hoste) he perished in the teple of Naneas, beyng disceaued thorowe the deuice of Naneas priestes. For as he was purposed to haue dwelt there. Antiochus and his frendes came thether to receaue much mony for a dowry. So when Naneas priests had layd forth the money, he entred with a smal copany into the compasse of the temple, & so they shut the temple.

Now whe Antiochus entred by opening C the priuie intraunce of the temple, y^e priestes stoned the captain to death, hewed the in peces that were with him, smote of their heades, and threw the out. In all thinges God be praysed, whiche hath deliuered the wycked into our handes.

Where as we are now purposed to kepe y^e purification of the temple upon the fiue & twety day of y^e moneth Casleu, we thought necessary to certify you therof, that ye also might * kepe the tabernacles feast day, and Leu.23 f Nu.29 b 3. Esd.v.c. the daye of the fire, whiche was geuen us, when Nehemias offered, after that he had set up the temple, and the aulter. For what tyme as our fathers were led awaye unto Persis, the priestes, (which the sought the honour of God) toke the fire priuilye from y^e aulter, & hid it in a valley, wher as was a depe dry pit, & therin they kept it, so that the place was unknowe unto euery man.

Le. vi. e. r. a. 2. r. vi Now after many yeres when it pleased God that Nehemias should be sent frō ẏ kyng of Persia, *he sent ẏ children childrē of those priestes (whiche had hyd the fyre) to seke it. And as they told vs, they founde no fyre but thicke water. Thē commaunded he them to draw it vp, and to bryng it him, and the offerings withal. Now whē the sacrifices wer layde on, and ordred, ẏ priest Nehemias cōmaunded to sprynkle them, & the wood with water. When thys was done, and the time com that the sūne shone, whiche afore was hyd in the cloude, there was a great fire kindled. In so much that euery man marueiled. Nowe all the priestes prayed, while the sacrifyce was a makyng. Jonathas prayed firste and the other gaue answere.

D And Nehemias prayer was after thys maner: O Lord God, maker of al thynges, thou fearful, and strong, thou righteous, & merciful, thou ẏ art only a gracious king only liberal, only iust, Almighty and euerlasting, thou that deliuerest Israell from al trouble, thou that hast chosen ẏ fathers, and halowed thē, receaue the offering for the whole people of Israel, preserue thyne owne portion, and halow it, gather those together, that are scatered abrod from vs: deliuer them that are vnder the Heathens bondage, loke vpon them which are dispised & abhorred, that ẏ Heathen may know and se how that thou art our God: Punish them that oppresse, and proudly put vs to dishonour. Set thy people agayne in thy holy place, * lyke as Moses hath spoken. De. xxx. a

E And the priestes song Psalmes of thankesgeuinge, so long as the sacrifice endured. Now when the sacrifice was brente, Nehemias commaunded the great stones to be sprinckled with the residue of ẏ water: *Which when it was done, there was kyndled a flame of them also: but it was cōsumed, thorow the lyght, that shyned frō ẏ aulter. So whē this matter was knowē it was told the kyng of Persia, that in the place wherin the priests which wer led away, had hyd fire, there appeared water in the stead of fire: and that Nehemias & his company, had purified the sacrifices withall. Then the kyng considering and pondering the matter diligently, made hym a temple to proue the thing that was done. And when he found it so in dede, he gaue ẏ priestes many giftes, & diuers rewardes: yea, he toke them w his own hand & gaue them. And Nehemias called ẏ same place Nephtar, whiche is as muche to saye, as a clensyng: but many men call it Nephi.

The .ii. Chapter.

How Jeremye hid the tabernacle, the Arke, and aulter in the hyl. Of the fiue bokes of Jason cōtayned in one.

A It is founde also in the wrytings of Jeremy the Prophet that he commaunded them, which were caryed awaye to take fire, * as it is said afore. *He commaunded them also, that they should not forget the law and commaundementes of the Lord, and that thei should not erre in their myndes, when they see ymages of siluer and gold, with their ornamentes. These and suche other thynges commaunded he them, and exhorted them that they should not let the law of God go out of their heartes. 2. Ma. Jer. 39. Bar. 6. a

It is written also: how the Prophete (at the commaundement of God) charged thē to take the tabernacle and the arck wyth them: and he went forth vnto the mountayne, where Moses clymmed vp, * and saw the heritage of God. And when Jeremye came there, he founde an open caue, wherin he layde the tabernacle, the arcke, and the aultare of incēse, and so stopped ẏ hole. There came certayne men together also folowyng him, to marke the place, but they could not fynde it. Which when Jeremye perceaued, he reproued them, saying: As for the place, it shalbe vnknowen, until the time ẏ god gather his people together againe, & receiue them vnto mercy. Then shall God shew them these things, and the Maiestie of the Lord shall appeare, * and the cloude also lyke as it was shewed vnto Moses: and lyke as when Salomon desired, that the place might be sanctified, and it was shewed him. De. 34. a B Exo. 24. c. 3. Re. 8. b

For he beyng a wyse man, handled honourablye and wiselye, offering vnto god in the halowyng of the temple, whē it was finished. * And like as when Moses prayed vnto the Lorde, the fyre came downe from heauē, and consumed the burntofferyng: Euen so prayed Salomon also, * and the fire came down from heauen, and consumed ẏ burntoffering. And Moses saide: Bycause the sinne offering was not eatē, therfore it is cōsumed. In lyke maner Salomon kept the dedication (or halowyng) viii. dayes. Leui. 9. d. ii. Par. 7. a

In the annotations and wryttynges of * Jeremie wer these thinges put also: and how he made a librarye, and howe he gathered out of all countreyes the bokes of the prophets, of Dauid, the Epistles of the kyngs Some read Nehemias.

Euen so Iudas also, loke what he learned by experience of warre, and suche thinges as hath happened vnto vs, he gathered them all together, and so we haue them by vs. Yf ye now desire to haue the same, sende some body to fetche them vnto you. Wher as we then are about to celebrate the purificatiō we haue written vnto you. Therfore, ye shall doe well yf ye kepe the same dayes.

We hope also, that the God (which delyuered his people, and gaue them al the heritage, kyngdom, priesthode, and sanctuary, Deu.30.a *that he promised them in the lawe) shall shortely haue mercy vpon vs, and gather vs together from vnder the heauen into his holye place: for he hath saued vs from great perils, & hath clensed the place.

D As concerning Iudas Machabeus and his brethren, the purification of the great temple, the dedication of the aultare; yea, & of the warres that concerne noble Antio-1.Mac 6 a chus, and * Eupator hys sonne, and of the shyninges that came downe from heauen vpon those, which manfully defended the Iewes. For thoughe they wer but few, yet defended they the whole lande, & droue awaye the enemyes hooste, recouered againe the temple that was spoken of thorowout all the world, deliuered the citye, doing their best that the law of the Lorde, which was put downe, myght with al trāquilite be restored againe vnto the Lord, that was so mercifull vnto them. As touching Iason also of Ciren, we haue vndertaken compendiously to bring into one boke the thinges that wer comprehended of him in fiue. For we considering the multitude of the bokes and how hard it should be for them that woulde meddle with stories and actes (and that bicause of so diuers matters) haue vndertaken so to comprehend the stories that such as are disposed to read might haue pleasure & pastime therin: and that they which are diligent in such thinges myght the better thinke vpō them: Yea, and that whosoeuer read thē myght haue profyte therby.

E Neuerthelesse, we our selues that haue medled with this matter, for the shortening of it haue taken no smal labour, but great diligence, watchinges and trauaile. Like as they that make a feast would faine doe other men pleasure: Euen so we also (for manye men sakes) are very well contente to take the labour, wher as we may shortely comprehende the thinges that other men haue truely written.

For he that buyldeth an house a newe, must prouide for many things, to ẏ whole building, but he that paynteth it afterward, seketh but only what is comly, mete and conuenient to garnish it withal. Euē so do we also in like maner. And why? He that beginneth to write a story for the first must with his vnderstanding gather the mater together, set his wordes in order, & diligently seke out of euery parte. But he that afterwarde will shorten it, vseth fewe wordes, & toucheth not the matter at the largest. Let this be sufficient for a Prologue. Now wil we begin to shew ẏ matter, for it is but a folish thyng to make a longe Prologue, & to be shorte in ẏ storye it selfe.

Of the honour done vnto the temple by the kynges of the Gentiles. Simon vttereth what treasure is in the temple. Heliodorus is sent to take them awaye. He is punyshed of God, & healed at the prayer of Onias.

WHat tyme as the holy citye A was inhabited in al peace and wealthe, and when the lawes were yet verye well kept. (For so was it ordeyned by Onias ẏ hye priest and other godly mē that were enemyes to wyckednesse:) It came thereto, * that euen the kynges and 1.Mac.1.c
prynces themselues dyd the place greate worshyp, and garnished the temple with great giftes: In so muche that Seleucus kyng of Asia of his owne rentes, bar al ẏ costes belonging to the seruice of the of-ferynges. Thē * Simon of the tribe of Ben 2.Mac.3.a Iamin, a ruler of the temple, laboured to worke some mischefe in the citie, but ẏ hye priest resisted him.

Neuerthelesse, whē he myght not ouer-come Onias, he gat him to * Appolonius 1 Mac.3.b the sonne of Tharsa (which then was chief Lord in Celosiria and Phenices) and told him that the treasurye in Ierusalem was ful of innumerable money, and howe that the common goodes (whiche belonged not vnto the offerynges) wer exceading great also: Yea, and howe it were possyble that all these myghte come vnder the kynges power.

Now when Appolonius had shewed B the kyng of the moneye, as it was tolde hym: the kyng called for Heliodorus hys steward and sente him with a commaundement, to bryng him the same money.

Imme-

Immediatly Heliodorus tooke hys iourneye, but vnder a colour, as thoughe he would goe thorow Celosiria and Phenices to visit the cities, but his purpose was to fulfill the kynges pleasure. So when he came to Ierusalem, and was louinglye receaued of the hye Priest into the citye, he tolde what was determyned concernyng the money, and shewed the cause of his commyng, he asked also, yf it were so in dede. Then the hye prieste tolde him that there was suche money layed vp for the vpholdyng of wydowes and fatherlesse childrẽ, and how that a certaine of it belonged vnto Hyrcanus Tobias a noble man, & that of al the money (which the wycked Simō had bewrayed.) There were foure hūdred talentes of siluer, and two hūdred of gold: yea, and that it were vnpossible for those mens meanyng to be disceaued that had layed vp their money in the place and tēple (which is had in worshypp thorow the whole world) for the mayntenaunce and honour of ẏ same. Wherunto Heliodorus answered, that the king had commaunded him in any wise, to bring him the money.

C So at the daye appoynted, Heliodorus entred into the temple to order this matter. But there was no small feare thorowout the whole citie. The priestes fell down before the aultare in their vestimẽtes, and Ex.22.b. called vnto heauen vpon him, *which had made a lawe, concernyng stuffe geuen to kepe, that they should be safely preserued, for suche as committe them vnto kepyng. Then whoso hadde loked the hye priest in the face, it would haue greued his hearte. For his countenaūce and the chaungyng of hys colour, declared the inward sorowe of his minde. The mā was al in heuinesse and his body in feare, wherby they that loked vpon him, myght perceaue the grief of his heart, the other people also came out of their houses by heapes vnto the common prayer, bicause the place was lyke to come into confusion. The women came togethe thorow the streetes with hery clothes about theyr beastes.

D The virgins also that were kepte in, ranne to Onias, some in the walles, other some loked out at the wyndowes: yea, they all helde vp their handes toward heauen, and prayed. A miserable thyng was it, to loke vpon the common people, and the hye priest beyng in such trouble. But they besought the almighty God that the goodes which were committed vnto them myght be kept whole, for those that had deliuered them vnto their keping. Neuerthelesse, the thyng that Heliodorus was determined to doe, that performed he in ẏ same place, he him selfe personallye beyng about the treasurye wyth hys men of warre. But the spirite of almyghtye God shewed hym selfe openlye, so that all they whych presumed to obey Heliodorus, fell thorow the power of God into a great fearefulnesse and drede.

deckt in goodly araye, and the horse smote at Heliodorus with his fore fete. Nowe he that sat vpon the horse hadde harnesse of golde vpon hym.

Moreouer, ther apeared two faire and beautiful yong men in goodly array, which stode by him and scourged him on both ẏ sides, and gaue him many stripes without ceassing. *With that fell Heliodorus 2.Mac.5. sodenlye vnto the ground. So they toke c.
him vp (being compassed about with great darkenesse) and bare him out vpon a bere. Thus he that came with so many runners and men of warre into the sayde treasury, was borne out, where as no man myghte helpe him: and so the power of God was manifest & knowen. He lay still dūme also by the power of God, destitute of all hope and lyfe. And they praysed the Lorde, that had shewed his power vpon his place and temple, which a litle afore was ful of feare and trouble: and that thorow the reuelation of the Almyghtye Lorde it was fylled with ioye and gladnesse.

Then certaine of Heliodorus frendes C prayed Onias, that in all hast he woulde call vpon God, to graunte hym hys lyfe, which was geuyng vp the ghost. So the hye priest considered the matter, and least the kyng shoulde suspecte that the Iewes hadde done Heliodorus some euill. He offered an health offerig for him. Now whē the hye priest had obtayned hys petition, the same yong men in the same clothyng appeared & stode besyde Heliodorus, saying: Thanke Onias the hie priest, *for his Act.17.c sake hath the Lord graunted thee thy life: therefore seyng that God hathe scourged thee, geue him prayse and thankes, & shew euery man hys myghte and power. And when they had spoken these wordes, they appeared no more.

So Heliodorus offered vnto God, made great vowes vnto him, which had graunted him his lyfe, thanked Onias, toke hys host and went agayne to the kyng. Then testified

testified he vnto euery man of the greate workes of God ỹ he had sene wt his eies. And when ỹ king asked Heliodorus who wer mete to be sent yet once agayn to Ierusalẽ, he sayd: yf thou hast any enemy or aduersary vnto thy realme, send him thither, & thou shalt haue hym punished, if he escape with his life: for in that place (no doubt) there is a special power and working of god. For he that dwelleth in heauẽ, visiteth & defendeth that place: & all ỹ com to do it harme, he punisheth & plageth thẽ. This is now the matter concernyng Heliodorus, and the keping of the treasury at Ierusalem.

The. iiii. Chapter.

Simon reporteth euil of Onias. Iason desiring ỹ office of ỹ hye priest corrupteth the king with rewardes. The wicked intent of Iason.

A This Simõ now* (of whõ we spake afore) being a bewrayer of the money & of his own naturall coũtrey, reported the worst of Onias: as though he had moued Heliodorus vnto thys, & as though he had bene a bringer vp of euel. Thus was he not ashamed to cal him an enemy of ỹ realme: that was so faithful an ouersear & defender of the city and of his people: yea and so feruent in ỹ law of God. But when ỹ malice of Simõ encreased so farre, ỹ thorowe his frendes ther wer certayn menslaughters cõmitted: Onias consydred ỹ peril ỹ might com thorow this strife, & how ỹ Appolonius, namely the chiefe Lord in Celesiria and Phenices, was al set vpõ tyrannye, & Simons malice encreased the same. He gat him to ỹ king, not as an accuser of ỹ citezens, but as one ỹ by hymself intended ỹ cõmon wealth of the whole multytude.

B For he saw it was not possible to lyue in peace neither Simon to leaue of frõ hys folishnes, except the king did loke therto. But after ỹ death of Seleucus, whẽ Antiochus, which is called ỹ noble, toke the kingdom, Iason the brother of Onias laboured to be hye Priest: For he came vnto ỹ king, & promised him three hundred & lx. talents of siluer, and of ỹ other rentes lxxx. talentes. Besides this he promised him yet an. C. and. L. if he might haue the schole of ỹ childrẽ, and ỹ he might call thẽ of Ierusalẽ Antiochians. Which whẽ the king had graunted, and he had gotten ỹ superiority: he beganne immediatly to drawe his kinsmẽ to ỹ custome of ỹ heathẽ, put down the things ỹ the Iewes had set vp of loue, by Iohn ỹ father of Eupolemius, whiche was sent ambassydour vnto Rome, for to make ỹ bonde of frendship & loue. He put down al the lawes, and liberties of ỹ Iewes, and set vp ỹ wicked statutes. He durst make a fighting schole vnder the castel, and set fayre young men to learne ỹ maners of whores and brothels.

C Thys was now the beginnyng of the Heathenishe and straunge conuersation, brought in thorow the vngratious and vnhearde wickednesse of Iason, whiche should not be called a priest, but an vngodly person. In somuch ỹ the Priestes were now nomore occupied aboute the seruyce of the aultar, but dispised ỹ temple, regarded not the offringes: yea, gaue their diligẽce to learne to fight, to wrastle, to leape, to daunce, & to put at ỹ stone, not setting by the honour of the fathers, but liked the glory of the Grekes best of al: for ỹ which they stroue perilously, and were gredy to folowe their statutes: yea, their luste was in al thinges to be like them, which afore wer their enemyes & destroyers. Howbeit to do wickedly agaynst ỹ law of God, shal not escape vnpunished, but of thys we shal speake here after.

D What tyme as the* Olympiades sportes wer plaied at Tyrus (the king himself being present) this vngracious Iason sente wicked men, bearing frõ thẽ of Ierusalẽ (which now wer called Antiochians) .iii. hundred dragmas of siluer for an offring to Hercules. These had they ỹ caryed thẽ, desyred vnder such a fashion, as though they should not haue bene offred, but bestowed to other vses. Neuerthelesse, he ỹ sent thẽ, sent thẽ to ỹ intent ỹ they should be offred vnto Hercules. But bicause of those ỹ wer present, they wer geuen as to the makyng of shyppes. And Appolonius the sõne of Nesteus was sent into Egipt, bicause of the noble mẽ of king Ptolomye Philometor. Now when Antiochus perceaued that he was put out frõ medlyng in the realme, he sought his own profyte, departed from thence, came to Ioppa, & then to Ierusalem: wher he was honourably receaued of Iason, & of the city, and was brought in with torch lighte, and wt great praise: and so he courned his hoste vnto Phenices.

These wer kept euery fifty yeare.

E After three yeare Iason sent Menelaus the foresayd Simons brother, * to beare the money vnto the king, & to bryng hym answer of other necessary matters. Bu- Ma 2 b he (whē he was praysed of the king for magnifying of his power) turned ẏ priesthode vnto himself, laying vp thre hundred talents of siluer for Jason. So whē he had gotten cōmaundementes frō the king (he came, hauing nothing ẏ becommeth a priest) but bearing ẏ stomacke of a cruel tiraunt, ⁊ the wrath of a wild brute 1.Ma.3.b beast.* Thē Jason (which had deceaued his own brother) seing ẏ he himself was begyled also, was faine to flee into ẏ land of ẏ Ammonites, ⁊ Menelaus gat ẏ dominion. But as for ẏ money ẏ he had promised vnto the king, he did nothing therin, when Sostratus ẏ ruler of the castell required it of him. (For Sostratus was ẏ man, ẏ gathered the customes) wherefore they wer both called before ẏ king. Thus was Menelaus put out of ẏ priesthod, ⁊ Lisimachus hys brother came in hys steade. Sostratus also was made lord of the Cyprians.

It happened in ẏ meane season, ẏ the F Tharsians ⁊ Malacians made insurrection, bicause they wer geuen for a present vnto kyng Antiochus concubyne. Then came ẏ king in al ẏ hast to stil thē agayn, ⁊ to pacifie the matter, leauing Andronicus there to be his debyty as one mete therfore. Now Menelaus supposing ẏ he had gotten a ryght conuenient time, stole certaine vessels of gold out of ẏ temple, ⁊ gaue thē to Andronicus for a present: ⁊ some he sold at Tirus, ⁊ in the cities therby.

Which when Onias knew of a suretie, he reproued him: But he kept hī in a sanctuary beside Daphnis, ẏ lyeth beside Antioch. Wherefore Menelaus gat him to Andronicus, ⁊ praied hin ẏ he would slay Onias: so whē he came to Onias he counceled him craftily to come out of ẏ Sanctuary, geuing him hys hande w an othe (howbeit he supected hī) ⁊ thē he slewe Onias, without any regarde of righteousnesse. For ẏ which cause not only the Jewes, but other nations also toke indignation, ⁊ were displeased for ẏ vnrighteous G death of so godly a man.

And whē the king was come agayne from Cilicia, the Jewes ⁊ certayne of the Grekes went vnto him, cōplaynyng for ẏ vnrighteous death of Onias yea, Antiochus hīselfe also was sory in his mind for Onias, so ẏ it pitied hym, and he wept remembring his sobrenesse ⁊ manerly behauiour. Wherfore he was so kindled in his mind, ẏ he cōmaunded Andronicus to be stripped out of his purple clothing and so to be led thorowe out the citie: yea, and the vngracious mā to be slayne in ẏ same place, wher he committed hys wickednes vpō Onias. Thus ẏ Lord rewarded hym hys punishmēt, as he had deserued. Now whē Lisimachus had done many wicked dedes in the temple thorow the counsel of Menelaus, ⁊ the voice came abrode, ẏ multitude gathered thē together against Lisimachus: for he had caried out nowe much golde.

So whē the people arose, ⁊ were full of displeasure, Lisimachus armed .iij. thousand vnthryftes to defend him: a certain tiraunt being their captaine, which was growē both in age ⁊ woodnesse. But whē ẏ people vnderstode ẏ purpose of Lisimachus, some gat stones, some good stronge clubbes, ⁊ som cast ashes vpō Lisimachus Thus there wer many of thē wounded, some being slayne, ⁊ al ẏ other chaced away. But as for ẏ wicked churche robber himself, they kylled him beside ẏ treasury. Of these matters therfore ther was kept a court against Menelaus. Now when ẏ king came to Tirus, thei made a cōplaint vnto him of Menelaus, concernyng this businesse, ⁊ the ambassadours wer thre: But Menelaus went ⁊ promised Ptolomy to geue him much money, if he would persuade the kyng. So Ptolomye wēt to the king into a court (wher he was set to coole hym) ⁊ brought him out of ẏ minde. In somuch ẏ he discharged Menelaus frō the accusations, ẏ notwithstandyng was cause of all mischiefe: ⁊ those poore mē, which if thei had told their cause: yea, before ẏ Scithians, they should haue ben iudged innocent, them he condemned to death.

Thus wer they soone punished, which folowed vpon ẏ matter for the citye, for ẏ people, ⁊ for the holy vessel. Wherfore, they of Tirus toke indignation, ⁊ buryed thē honourably. And so thorow the couetousnesse of thē ẏ were in power, Menelaus remained stil in auctoritye, increasyng in malyce, to the hurt of the Citizens.

The. v. Chapter.

Of the signes ⁊ tokens sene in Jerusalē. Of ẏ end and offence of Jason. The pursuit of Antiochus against the Jewes. The spoyling of the temple.

It

I AT y same time Antiochus made hym ready to go againe into Egipte. Then wer ther sene at Jerusalē fourty daies lōg, horsemen runnyng to and fro in y ayre, which had rayment of golde, & speares. There wer sene also whole hostes of mē weaponed, & horses runnyng in an order, how they came together, how they held forth their shieldes, how y harnessed mē drewe out their sweardes, & shotte their dartes. The shine of the golden weappons was sene, & of all maner of armoure. Wherefore euery man prayed y those tokens might tourne to good. Now when their was gone forth a false rumoure, as though Antiochus had ben dead: Jasō toke a. M. men, & came sodenly vpon y city. The citizens ranne vnto y walles, at the last was the citye takē, and Menelaus fled into the castel.

B As for Jason, he spared not his own citizens in y slaughter, neither considered he what great euil it were, to destroy the prosperity of his own kinsmē: But dyd as one y had gotten the victorye of his enemyes, & not of his frendes: For al this gat he not y superiority, but at the last receaued confusion for his malyce, *and fled agayn like a vagabounde into the land of the Ammonites. 1.Ma 4,c

Finally, for a reward of his wickednes he was accused before Aretha y kyng of y Arabians. In somuch y he was fayne to flee frō citie to citie, being despysed of euery man as a forsaker of y lawes, & an abhominable person. And at the last (as an open enemy of his own natural countrey & of y citizens) he was driuen into Egipt. Thus he y afore put many oute of their own natiue land, perished frō home hym self. He went to Lacedemō, thinking there to haue gottē succoure by reasō of kinred. And he y afore had cast many one out vnburyed, was throwē out hymself, no man mourning for him, nor putting hi in his graue: so y he neuer enioyed y burial of a straunger, neyther was he partaker of hys fathers sepulchre.

C Now whē thys was done, the king suspected, y the Jewes would haue fallē frō him: wherfore he came in a great displeasure out of Egypt, *and toke y city by violence. He commanded his mē of warre also, that thei should kil & not spare, but slay down such as withstode thē, or clymmed vp vpon the houses. 1.Ma,1.e.

Thus was there a greate slaughter of yong men, old mē, women, children & virgins. In three daies wer ther slaine .lxxx. M. Fourty thousand put in prisō and no lesse solde. Yet was he not content wt this, but durst go into y most holy temple (Menelaus y traytour to y lawes and to his own natural countrey, being his guide) & with his wicked hands toke y holy vessell, which other kings & cities had geuē thyther, for the garnyshing and honoure of y place: thē toke he in hys handes vnworthily, and defiled them.

D So mad was Antiochus, that he considered not, how that God was wroth for y sinnes of thē that dwelt in the city, for the which, such confusiō came vpō that place. Iudi,5,d. And why? if it had not happened them to haue bene lapped in many sinnes, this Antiochus (as soone as he had come) had sodenly ben punyshed, & shutte out for his presumption: *Lyke as Heliodorus was, 2.Ma 3,b whom Seleucus the king sent to rob the treasurie. Neuerthelesse, GOD hath not chosen y people for the places sake, but y place for the peoples sake: and therfore is the place become partaker of the peoples trouble, but afterwarde shal it enioye the wealth of thē. And like as it is now forsakē in the wrath of almighty God, so whē the great god is reconciled, it shalbe set vp in hye worship agayne.

E So when Antiochus had takē a thousande & eyght hundred talentes out of y temple, he gat him to Antioche in all the hast, thynking in his pride, that he might make men sayle vpon the dry lande, and to go vpon the sea, such an hye mind had he. He left debities there, to vexe y people: At Jerusalem lefte he Philip a Phrigian, in maners more cruell than hymselfe that set him there. At Gasarim he left Andronicus & Menelaus, which were more greuous to y citizens than other. * Now 1.Ma,1 b as he was thus set in malyce agaynst the Jewes, he sente Appollonius an hated prynce, with .xxij. thousand, cōmaunding him to slay al those y were of perfect age, and to sel the women, maydens, and children. When he came now to Jerusalem, he fayned peace, and kepte him stil vntyll the Sabboth day. And then he comaunded his men to take thē to their weapons (for the Jewes kept holy daye) and so he slewe all them that were gone forthe to y open play, runnyng here & there thorowe the city, with hys mē weaponed, & * murthered a great numbre. 1.Ma,2,c But Judas Machabeus chabeus which was the tenth, fled into ÿ wildernesse, led his life there with his cõpany among wilde beastes, and vpon the mountaynes: dwelling ther & eating grasse, least they should be partakers of ÿ fylthynesse.

The Jewes are compelled to leaue ÿ law of god. The temple is defiled. The readers are monyshed that they shal not abhorre the aduersity, wherwith the Lorde afflicteth them. The greuous payne of Eleazarus.

A Not long after this, sent the king a messanger of Antioch, for to cõpel ÿ Jewes to alter the ordinaunces of ÿ fathers, and ÿ law of god, to defile the tẽple ÿ was at Jerusalẽ, & to call it ÿ temple of Jupiter Olympius: and that they shoulde be in Gasarim as those whiche dwell at the place of Jupiter the Herberous. This wicked sedition of the vngodly was heauy vpõ all ÿ people, for the tẽple was ful of voluptuousnesse, bibbing and bollyng of the heathen, of ribaudes & harlottes together. The womẽ went into ÿ holy place, & bare in that was not lawful. The aultar also was ful of vnlawful things, which the law forbiddeth to laye vpõ it. The Sabbothes wer not kept, the other solempne feastes of ÿ land were not regarded. To be plaine, there durst nomã

B be knowen ÿ he was a Jewe. In ÿ day of ÿ kings byrth they wer cõpelled perforce to offre: & when the feast of Bacchus was kept, they wer constrayned to weare garlandes of Juy, & so to go about to the honour of Bacchus. Moreouer, thorow the councel of Ptolompe, ther went out a cõmaundement in ÿ next cities of ÿ heathẽ, ÿ they should intreat ÿ Jewes in like maner: namely, to compel thẽ for to do sacrifice after the lawes of ÿ Gentiles: & who so would not, to put thẽ to death. A piteous thing was it to se. Ther wer two women accused to haue circumcised theyr sõnes whõ whẽ thei had led round about ÿ citye (ÿ babes hanging at their breasts) they cast thẽ downe headlongs ouer the walles: Some ÿ were crepte in dennes, & had kept the Sabboth, wer accused vnto Philip, & brent in the fire, bicause that for ÿ feare of God thei kept ÿ cõmaundemẽt, so stedfastly, & would not defẽd thẽselues. Now I besech al those, which reade thys boke, ÿ they refuse it not for these falles of aduersitie: & iudge ÿ things (that are happened) for no distructiõ, but for a chastenyng of our people: And why: When God suffereth not synners long to folow theyr own mind, but shortely punisheth thẽ, * it is a tokẽ of his great louyng kindenesse. C

For this grace haue we of God more thã other people, that he suffereth vs not long to sine vnpunished like as other nations, that when the day of iudgement cõmeth, he may punysh thẽ in the fulnesse of their synnes. Yf we sine, he correcteth vs, but he neuer withdraweth his mercye from vs, and though he punish with aduersity: yet doth he neuer forsake hys people. But let this that we haue spoken now with fewe words, be for a warnyng and exhortatiõ of the heathen.

Now wyl we come to the declaring of, the matter: Eleazar one of the principall Scribes, an aged man, & of a well fauoured coũtenaunce, was cõstrained to gape with open mouthe, * and to eat swynes fleshe. But he despising rather to dye gloriously thã to liue with shame, offred himselfe willyngly to the martyrdom. Nowe when he saw that he must nedes go to it, he toke it paciently: for he was at a poynt with himself, that he would consent to do no vnlawfull thyng for any pleasure of life. Thei that stode by, being moued with pitie (but not a right) for the old frendship of the man, toke hym asyde priuily, and prayed hym that he would let such fleshe be brought hym as were lawfull to eate, & thẽ to make a countenaunce as though he had eaten of the fleshe of the Sacrifice lyke as the kyng commaunded, for so he myght be deliuered from death: and so for the olde frendship of the man thei shewed hym thys kindnesse.

But he began to consider his discreat D & honourable age, his noble & worshipfull stocke, and how that from his youth vp, he had bene of an honest and good cõuersation: yea, and how constantly he had kept the ordinaunces, & lawes cõmaũded by God, wherefore he gaue thẽ this aunswere, and sayd: yet had I rather firste be layed in my graue: * For it becõmeth not myne age (sayd he) in any wise to dissemble, whereby many yonge persons myght thynke, that Eleazar being. lxxx. yeare old and ten wer now gone to a straunge lyfe: and so thorow mine ypocrisy (for a litle tyme of a transitorye lyfe) they myght be disceaued: by thys meanes also should I defyle myne age, and make it abhominable. For though I were now deliuered ed from the tormentes of men, yet shuld I not escape the hande of almightye God, neyther alyue nor dead, wherfore I wyll dye manfully, and doe as it becommeth mine age. Whereby I may peraduenture leaue an example of stedfastnesse for such as be yong, if I with a ready minde and manfully dye an honest death, for ŷ moste worthy and holy lawes.

When he had sayd these wordes, im-E mediatly he was drawen to a tormente.
Now they ŷ led hym, and wer mild a litle afore, began to take displeasure: bicause of the wordes that he said: for thei thought he had spoken them of an hye mynd. But whē he was in his martirdome, he mourned and sayd: Thou (O Lord) which hast the holy knowlege: knowest openlye that wheras I might be deliuered from death I suffer these sore paynes of my body, but in my minde I am well contente to suffer thē, bicause I feare thee. Thus this man died, leauing ŷ memoriall of his death for an example, not onely vnto yong mē but vnto all the people, to be stedfast and manly.

The.vii.Chapter.

The punishment of the seuen brethren, and of A their mother.

IT happened also ŷ ther wer Leui.xi.a. seuen brethren (with theyr by the kyng against ŷ law, to eate swines fleshe, namely with scourges and lethren whippes. And one of them which was the chiefe, sayde: What sekest thou, & what requirest thou of vs? As for vs, we are redy rather to suffer death, than to offende ŷ lawes of God & the fathers. Then was the king angry, & bad heat cauldrons and brasen pottes.

Which when they wer made hoat, im-mediatly he commaūded the tong of him that spake fyrst to be cut out, to pul ŷ skin ouer his head, to pare of the edges of hys handes and fete: yea, and that in ŷ syght of his mother, and the other of his brethren. Now when he was cleane marred he commaunded a fire to be made, and so (whyle there was any breath in hym) to be fryed in the cauldron. In the whiche when he had ben long payned: the other brethrē with theyr mother exhorted him to die manfullye, saying: the Lorde God shall regarde the truthe, and comfort vs, lyke as Moses testifyeth, and declareth Deu.xxxii.e in his song saying: and he wyl haue compassion on his seruauntes.

So when the first was dead after this B maner, they brought the seconde, to haue him in derision, pulled the skinne with ŷ heare ouer his head, and asked hym yf he would eate swines flesh, or he were pay-ned in the other mēbers also thorowoute his body. But he aunswered boldely, and sayd: I wyll not doe it. And so was he tormented like as the first, and whē he was euen at ŷ geuing vp of ŷ ghost, he sayde: Thou most vngratious person puttest vs nowe to death, but the kyng of the world shall rayse vs vp (whiche dye for hys lawes) in the resurrection of euerlastyng lyfe.

After him, was the third had in derision, and when he was required, he put out his tong, and that ryght soone, holdyng foorth his handes manfullye, and spake with a stedfaste fayth: These haue I of heauen, but now for the law of God I despise them, for my trust is, that I shall receiue them of him again. Insomuch that ŷ king, & they which were with him, mar-uelled at the yong mans boldenesse, ŷ he nothyng regarded the paynes.

Now when he was dead also, they vexed the fourth with tormentes in like ma- C ner. So whē he was now at his death, he said: it is better ŷ we beyng put to deathe of men, haue our hope & truste in God, for he shall rayse vs vp agayn. * As for thee, thou shalt haue no resurrection to lyfe. John.v.c

And when they had spoken to ŷ fifth, they tormented him. Thē loked he vnto ŷ kyng, and sayde: thou hast power among men, for thou arte a mortall man also thy self, to do what thou wilt, but think not ŷ god hath forsaken our generation. Abide thee, tary styll a whyle, and thou shalt see ŷ great power of god, how he wil punishe thee and thy sede.

After hym, they brought ŷ sixth, which being at the poynt of death, sayd: Bee not disceiued (O kyng) for this we suffer for our own sakes, bicause we haue offended our God, therfore maruelous things are shewed vppon vs. But thinke not thou which takest in hād to striue against god that thou shalt escape vnpunished.

This excellēt mother (worthy to be well reported of, & had in remembraunce) saw D her seuen sonnes die in one daye, & suffered it patiētly, bicause of ŷ hope ŷ she had in God: yea, she exhorted euery one of thē in especiall, & that boldly & stedfastly with perfect wisedome, waking vp her womāshe thought to a manly stomake, & sayd vnto the: I cannot tel how ye came in my womb for I neither gaue you breathe nor soule, no nor life. It is not I ẏ ioyned your mēbers of your bodies together, but the maker of the world, which fashioned ẏ byrth of mā, & begā al thīges. Euē he also of his own mercy shall geue you breth & lyfe again like as ye now regard not your own E selues for his lawes sake. Now thought Antiochus ẏ she had despised him, therefore he let her go with her reproues, and began to exhort the yōgest sonne (which yet was left) not onely with woordes, but swore vnto him with an othe ẏ he shoulde make him a riche and welthy man, (yf he would forsake the lawes of his fathers:) yea, and that he should geue him, whatsoeuer wer necessary for him. But whē the yōg mā would not be moued, for all these things, he called his mother, and counsayled her to saue her sonnes lyfe. And when he had exhorted her with many wordes, she promised him that she shoulde speake vnto her sonne. So she tourned her vnto him (laughing ẏ cruel tirant to scorn) and spake w a bolde voice. O my sonne, haue pitie vpon me, that bare the .ix. monethes in my wombe, that gaue thee sucke, nourished the, and brought thee vp vnto this age. I besech thee (my sonne) loke vppon heauē and earth, and al that is therin, & consider that God made thē, & mans generation of nought, so shalt thou not fear this hangmā, but suffer death stedfastlye, like as thy brethrē haue done: that I may receiue thee again in ẏ same mercye with thy brethren. While she was yet speaking these wordes, the yong man said: whome loke ye for? Wherfore do ye tary? I wil not obey the kinges commaundement, *but Leu.xi.a, the lawe that God gaue vs by Moses. As De.xiiii.a for thou that imaginest al mischief agaīst the Iewes, thou shalt not escape ẏ hande of god, for we suffer these things, bicause of our sinnes. And though God be angry F w vs a litle while (for our chastening and reformation) yet shal he be at one agayn w his seruauntes. But thou (O shameful & most abhominable person) pride not thy self through vain hope, in being so malycious vpon the seruaunts of God: for thou hast not yet escaped the iudgement of the god, which is almighty, & seeth al things. My brethrē that haue suffred a litle pain ar now vnder the couenāt of euerlasting life: but through the iudgemente of God, thou shalt be punished righteously for thy pride. As for me (like as my brethrē haue done) I offer my soule & my body for the lawes of our fathers, calling vppon God that he wil sone be merciful vnto our people: yea, & with pain & punishmente, * to make thee graunt, that he onely is God. In me now and my brethren the wrath of almighty God, is at an ende, (why the righteously is falle vpō al our peple) The ẏ king being kindled in anger, was more cruel vpon him than vpon al the other: & toke indignation, that he was so lightlye regarded. So this yong man died vndefiled, & put his trust still in the lorde. Last of all after the sonnes, was ẏ mother put to death also. Let this now be inough spoken, concerning the offerynges, and extreme cruelnesse.

The .viii. Chapter.

Iudas gathereth together his hoste. Nicanor is sent against Iudas. Iudas exhorteth his souldiers to constantnesse. Nicanor is ouercom. The Iewes geue thankes after they haue put their enemies to flight; deuiding the spoiles vnto ẏ fatherlesse, and vnto the widowes. Nicanor flieth vnto Antiochus.

THen Iudas Machabeus 1 & they that wer with him wēt priuily into ẏ townes called their kinsfolkes & frends together, toke vnto
yet in the faith & lawe of the Iewes, and brought forth .vi. M. men. So they called vpon ẏ Lord that he would haue an eye vnto his peple, which was troden down of euery mā: to be gracious vnto the tēple that was defyled of ẏ vngodly: to haue cōpassion vpon the destruction of ẏ city, which was shortly lyke to be layd waste, to heare the voyce of the blood that cryed vnto him: to remember ẏ most vnrighteous deathes of yong innocent children, the blasphemies also done vnto his name, and to punish them.
*Now whē Machabeus had gathered this multitude together, he was to mighty for the heathē (for ẏ wrath of the lorde was turned into mercy) he fell vppon the townes & cities vnwares, brent thē, toke the most commodious places, & slew many of the enemies. But specially he made such chaces by night, in so muche that his manlinesse was spoken of euery where. B
So when Philip sawe that the man increased by litle and lytle, and that ẏ matter prospered w him for the most part: he wrote worte vnto Ptolomye (which was a captain in Celosiria & Phenices) to help him in y^e kings businesse. Then sent he Nicanor Patroclie a special frend of hys in all y^e hast, & gaue hym of the common sorte of the heathē no lesse than .xx.M. harnessed mē, to roote out the whole generatiō of y^e Jewes, hauyng to help him one Gorgias a man of warre, which in matters concerning battayles, had great experience. Nicanor ordeyned also y^e tribute (which the Romaines should haue had) to be geuen vnto y^e king out of y^e captiuity of y^e Jewes, namely, two thousād talents. And immediatly he sēt to the cityes of y^e sea coast, requiring thē for to bye Jewes, to be theyr seruauntes & bond men, promising to sell thē .lxxx. & ten for one talent: But he considered not the wrath of almightye God, y^t was to come vpon him.

C When Judas knew of this, he tolde the Jewes y^t were with him, of Nicanors comming, Now were there some of thē fearful, not trusting vnto y^e righteousnesse of God, and fled their way.

But the other y^t remained came together, & besought the Lord to deliuer them frō that wicked Nicanor, which had solde thē, or euer they came nie thē: & though he would not do it for their sakes, yet for the couenaunt y^t he made with their fathers, and bicause they called vpō his holy and glorious name. * And so Machabeus called his mē together, namely, about .vi.M. exhorting thē not to agree, vnto their enemies, * neither to be afrayed for y^e multitude of their aduersaries commyng against thē vnrighteously, but to fight manfully, considering the reprofe y^t they had done to the holy place without cause, how they had despised & oppressed the city: yea, & destroyed the lawes of y^e fathers. * For they (sayd he:) trust in their weapons and boldnesse, but our confidence is in the almighty Lord, which in y^e twinkling of an eye may both destroy them y^t com against vs, and al the world.

D He exhorted thē also to call to remembraunce y^e helpe y^t God shewed vnto their fathers, * as when there perished an .C. & lxxxv.M. of Senacheribs people: And of a battail y^t thei had in Babilon against y^e Galaciās, how al y^e Macedonians y^t came to help thē, stode in feare, & how they beig but onlye .vi.M. slewe an .C. and .xx.M. thorow the helpe that was geuen thē frō heauē, wherby thei also had receaued many benefites.

Thorow these wordes the mē toke good hearts vnto them, ready to die for y^e lawe, & the countrey. So he set vpon euerye cōpany a captayne, one of hys own brethrē: Simon, Joseph, & Jonathas, geuing ech one .xv.C. men. He caused Esdras also to read the holy boke vnto thē, & to geue thē a token of the helpe of God.

* Then he himself being captaine in the fore fronte of the battaile, buckled w^t Nicanor. And god was their help, in somuch y^t they slewe aboute .ix.M. men & cōpelled y^e more parte of Nicanors host to fle: they wer so wounded & feble. Thus they tooke the money frō those that came to bye thē, & folowed vpō thē on euery side. But whē

E the time came vpō thē thei returned, for it was y^e Sabboth: & therfore they folowed nomore vpō thē. So they toke their weapons, & spoyles, & kepte the Sabboth, geuyng thankes vnto the Lorde, which had deliuered thē in y^t day, & shewed them his mercy. After y^e Sabboth, * they distributed y^e spoyles to y^e sicke, to the fatherlesse, & to widdowes, & the resydue had they thēselues with theirs. When this was done, & they had made a generall praier, they besought y^e mercifull Lord to be at one with his seruauntes.

Of those also y^t were with Timotheus & Bachides, which foughte against them they slew .xx.M. wāne hie & strong holds, & deuyded moe spoyles: euer geuyng an equal portion vnto y^e sicke, to y^e fatherlesse, to widdowes, and to aged persons.

F And whē they had diligently gathered their weapons together, they layd thē all in conuenient places, & the remnaunt of y^e spoyles brought they to Jerusalem. Thei slew also Philarches that wicked person, which was with Timotheus, & had vexed many Jewes. And whē they held y^e thankesgeuing at Jerusalē for y^e victory, they brent those y^t had set fire on the portes of y^e tēple: namely Calisthenes, whiche was fled into an house: & so they gat a worthy reward for their wickednesse. As for that moste vngracious Nicanor, whiche had brought a .M. Marchaūts, to bye y^e Jewes, he was thorow the helpe of the Lorde brought down euen of thē, whō he regarded not, in somuch y^t he put of hys glorious ramēt, fled by sea, and came alone to Antioch, with great shame & dishonoure, which he gat thorow the destructiō of his host. Thus he y^t promised y^e Romaines to pay thē their tribute, whē he toke Jerusalē; began now to say playnly: y^t god was

The.ix.Chapter.

Antiochus willing to spoile Persipolis, is driuen to flyght. As he persecuteth the Jewes, he is stricke of the Lord. The fayned repentaunce of Antiochus.
He dyeth.

A AT the same time, came. * An= 1 Ma.6.c. tiochus again with dishonour oute of Persis. For when he came to Persipolis, & vnder= toke to robbe the temple: and subdue the citie, ẏ people ranne together and defended thẽ selues, in somuch that he and his were faine to flye with shame.

And so after that flyght, it happened that Antiochus came again wt dishonour: But whẽ he came to Egbathana, he gat know= lege what was happened vnto Nicanor, & Timotheus: Now, as he was aduaũcing him self in his wrath, he thought he was able to auenge the iniury that was done to thẽ, vpon the Jews, & therfore cõmaun= ded to make ready his charet, hastyng on hys iourney, without ceassing, the iudge= ment of God prouokyng him, bicause he had spoken so proudly, that he would com to Jerusalem, and make it a graue of the Jews. But the Lord God of Israel, ẏ seeth all thynges, smote him with an inuisible plage, which no man coulde heale.

B For assone as he had spokẽ these words, there came vpõ hi an horrible paine of hys bowels, & a sore griefe of ẏ armes: And ẏ was but righte, for he had martired other mẽnes bowels wt diuerse & straũge tormẽ= tes, howe be it he would in no wyse ceasse frõ his malice. yea, he was yet the prouder and more malicious againste the Jewes: But while he was commaunding to make hast in the matter, it happened that he fell down violently from ẏ charet, so ẏ it bro= sed his body, and did him great payne.

And so he that thought he might cõmaũd the floudes of the sea: (so proud was he be= yond the condition of man) and to wey the hye mountaines in a paire of balaũce, was now brought downe to ẏ ground, & caried vpõ an horselitter, knowledgyng ẏ mani= Acts.xi.d fest power of God vpõ him: so ẏ the wicked body of his was * ful of wormes, which in his paine fel quicke out of his flesh: In so muche that his host was greued with the smell and stincke of him.

Thus he ẏ a litle afore thought he might reach to ẏ starres of heauen, him might no man now abyde nor beare for ẏ vehemen= cie of stincke: Therfore, he beyng brought frõ his great pride, begã to com to ẏ know= ledge of him self: for ẏ punishement of God warned him, and his paine encreased euer more & more. And when he him self might not abyde his owne stincke, he sayde these C words: It is reason to be obediẽt vnto god and ẏ a man desire not to be like vnto him.

This wycked personne prayed also vnto ẏ Lord of whom he shoulde haue obtayned no mercye. And as for ẏ citie that he came vnto so hastely, to bryng it downe to the ground, and to make it a graue for deade men: now he desireth to deliuer it free.

And as touching ẏ Jewes, whom he had iudged not worthy to be buried, but would haue cast thẽ out for to be deuoured of the foules, & wild beastes, saying: ẏ he woulde haue destroyed both olde & yong. Now he promiseth, to make them like ẏ citizens of Athẽs. And wher as he had spoiled ẏ holy tẽple afore, now he maketh promise to gar nish it with great giftes, to encrease ẏ holy ornamentes, & of his own rentes to beare the costes & charges belonging to ẏ offrin= ges: yea, & that he would also becom a Jew him selfe, to go thorow euerye place of the worlde and to preache the power of God.

But whẽ his paines would not ceasse, (for the righteous iudgement of God was com D vpon him) out of a very dispaire he wrote vnto ẏ Jews, a letter of intercessiõ, contei= ning these wordes: The king & prince An= tiochus wysheth vnto ẏ verteous citizens of ẏ Jewes, much helth & good prosperity.
Yf ye and your children fare wel, and if all things go after your mynd, we geue great thancks. In my sickenesse also do I remẽ= ber you louyngly: for as I came oute of Persia, & was taken with a sore disease, I thought it necessary to care for ẏ common wealthe. Nether dispaire I in my selfe, but haue a good hope to escape this sicknesse.

But considering that my father led an host somtime in ẏ hier places, and shewed who shuld raigne after him, ẏ (if ther hap= pened any controuersie, or any hard thing wer declared) they in ẏ land might know their chiefe lord ẏ there shuld be no insur= rection: Again, when I ponder by my selfe, how ẏ all the myghty men, & neighbours roũd about, ar laying waite, & loke but for oportunity to do harme: I haue ordeined ẏ my sonne Antiochus shal raigne after me, whõ I ofte cõmended to many of you: whẽ I was in the hygher kyngdomes, & haue written vnto him as it foloweth hereafter. E Therfore I pray you, & require you, to re= mẽber ẏ benefites ẏ I haue done vnto you generally, & in especiall (& ẏ euery mã wil be, be faithfull to me & to my son.) For I hope that he shalbe of sobre & louing behauour, & if he folow my deuice, he shalbe indifferēt vnto you.* Thus the murtherer and blas-Deu.5.c. phemer of God was sore smitten, and lyke as he had intreated other men, so he dyed a miserable death in a straunge countrey vpon a mountaine. And his body did Philip (that went with him) cary away: which fearyng the sōne of Antiochus, went into Egipt to Ptolomie Philometor.

Iudas Machabeus taketh the citie and the temple. He beginneth to shewe the actes of Eupator. The Iewes fighte against the Idumeans. Timotheus inuadeth Iewry, with whom Iudas ioyneth battaile. Fyue men appeare in the ayre to the helpe of the Iewes. Tymotheus is slayne.

A Machabeus now and his company 1.Ma.4.c (thorow the helpe of the Lorde) wan the temple, & the city again, destroyed the altars & chapels ẏ the Heathē had builded thorow ẏ stretes, Exo.12.b clensed ẏ temple, *made an other aultar of bricke stone, & after two yeres they offred sacrifices, set forth ẏ incense, the lightes & shewbread. When that was done, they fell downe flat vpon the ground, & besought ẏ Lord, ẏ they might nomore come into such trouble: but if they sinned any more agaist him, he him selfe to chastē thē with mercy, and not to come in the handes of those aleauntes & blasphemous men. Now vpon B the same day that ẏ straūgers poluted the tēple, it happened ẏ on the very same daye 1.Ma.4.c it was clensed againe, namely * ẏ .xxii. day of ẏ moneth called Casleu. They kept .viii. daies in gladnes, like as in the feast of the C tabernacles, remēbring, ẏ not long afore, they held the feast of the tabernacles vpon the mountaynes & in dennes like beastes.
And to the same token they bare grene bowes, braunches, & palmes, before him ẏ had geuen thē good fortune to clense hys place. They agreed also together, & made a statute ẏ euery yere those dayes shuld be solēply kept of al the people of the Iewes.
How Antiochus then (ẏ was called the noble) dyed: it is sufficiently told. Now wil we speake of Eupator the son of that wicked Antiochus, how it happened with hī, and so with few words to comprehende ẏ aduersity that chaunced in the warres.
Whē he had takē in the kingdom, he made one Lisias (which had bene captaine of the hoste in Phenices and Siria) ruler ouer ẏ matters of ẏ realme. For Ptolomie ẏ was called Macron, being a ruler for ẏ Iewes (& specially, to sitte in iudgement for suche wrong as was done vnto thē) vndertoke to deale peaceably wt them. For the which cause he was accused of ẏ frendes before Eupator: and when he was suspect to be a traitour (bicause he had lefte Cypres, that Philemetor had cōmitted vnto hī: & bicause he departed from noble Antiochus, ẏ he was com vnto) he poisoned hī selfe & died. C Now when Gorgias was gouernour of ẏ same places, he toke straungers & vndertoke ofte tymes, to war with ẏ Iewes. Mo-reouer, ẏ Idumeans ẏ held the strōg hol-des, receaued those ẏ wer driuen frō Ierusalē, & toke in hand to war also. a But they 1.Ma.5.a that wer wt Machabeus, besought & prai-ed vnto ẏ Lord that he would be their helper, and so thei fel vpō the strong holdes of the Idumeans, and wan many places by strēgth: Such as came against them they slew, & killed no lesse of al together, thā .xx.
M. Neuerthelesse som, no lesse than .ix. M. wer fled into two strong towers, hauīg all maner of ordinaūce to withstand them. D Then Machabeus leauing Simon, Iosephus, Zacheus, & those ẏ were with them (which wer very many) wēt to besiege thē & to fight wher most nede was. Now they that wer wt Simon, being led wt couetousnesse, wer intreated for mony, thorow certaine of those that lay in ẏ towers, toke .lxx M. dragmas: & let som of them escape. But when it was told Machabeus what had happened, he called ẏ captains of ẏ people together accusing those persons, that they had sold the brethren for money, & let their enemies go. So he slew those traitours, & immediatly went in hād wt the .ii. towers.
And when they had ordred thēselues mā-ly, wt their weapons & hands, they slew in 1.Ma.5.b

Forsomuch as our father is now dead, our will is, y they which are in our realme, liue without any insurrection, & euery man to be diligent in his own matters. We vnderstand also y the Jewes would not consent to our father, for to be brought vnto y custom of y Gentiles, but stifly to kepe their own statutes, for y whiche cause they require of vs also to let them remain stil by their own lawes. ¶ Wherfore our minde is y this people shal be in rest: we haue concluded & determined also to restore them their temple agayn, y thei may liue according to y vse & custom of theyr forefathers. Thou shalt doe vs a pleasure therfore, if thou send vnto them, & agree with them, that when they are certified of our minde, they may bee of good chere, & loke to their own welth. And this was y letter, y the king wrote vnto y Jewes: King Antiochus sendeth greting vnto y counsell & the other people of y Jewes: If ye fare wel, we haue our desire: as for vs, we are in good helth. The .xii. Chapter.

Timotheus troubleth the Jewes. The wycked dede of y Jepites against the Jewes, Judas is auenged of them. He setteth fier on the gate of Jamnia. The pursute of the Jewes agaynst Timothie. Timothie is taken & let go vnhurte, Judas pursueth Gorgias. Judas offeryng sacrifice for the dead shewed the hope of the resurrection.

When these couenauntes wer made, Lisias went vnto y king, and the Jewes tylled theyr ground. But Timotheus, Appolonius y sonne of Genei, Jerome, & Demophon y proud, Nicanor the captayn of Cipres, & they that lay in those places, would not let them liue in rest & peace. They of Joppa also dyd euen such a shamefull dede. They prayed the Jewes y dwelt among them, to go w their wiues & children into y ships which they had prepared, & did with them as though they had ought them none euil wil: forsomuch then as there was gone forth a general proclamation through y city, bicause of peace, they consented therto, and suspect nothing, but when thei wer gone forth into y depe, thei drowned no lesse than .ii.C. of them. When Judas knew of this crueltye shewed vnto his people, he commaunded those y wer w him, to make them ready, exhorting them to cal vpon god the ryghteous judge: went forth against those murderers of his brethren, set fire on y hauen by night, brent vp the ships, and those that escaped from y fire, he slew w the sweard. And when he had done this, he departed as though he would come again, & rote out all them of Joppa. But when he had gotten word, y y Jamnites wer minded to do in like maner vnto y Jewes which dwelt among them, B he came vpon y Jamnites by night, & set fire on the hauen with the ships, so that y light of the fire was seen at Jerusalem, vpon a .ii.C. & .xl. furlonges. Now when thei wer gone from thence .ix. furlonges, in their iorney toward Timotheus, .v.M. men of fote, & .v.C. horsmen of y Arabians fought w him. So when the battaile was earnest, & prospered w Judas through y help of God: y residue of y Arabians being ouercom, besought Judas to be at one w them, & promised to geue him certain pastures, & to doe him good in other things. Judas thinkig y thei shuld in dede be profitable concernig many things, promised them peace, wherevpon thei shoke hands, & so they departed to their tentes. Judas went also vnto a citie, which was very fast kept w bridges, fenced round about w walles, & diuerse kindes of people dwellig therin, called Caspi. Thei C y wer win it, put such trust in y strength of y walles, & in their store of vitailes: y they wer y slacker in their doings, cursing, & reuiling Judas w blasphemies, & speaking such words as it becometh not. But Machabeus, calling vpon y great prince of y world (whiche wout any batteltamines or ordinance of warre, did *cast down the Iosu vi c. walles of Jericho, in ẏ tyme of Josue) fel mãfully vpō ẏ walles, toke ẏ citie thorow ẏ help of ẏ lord, made an exceding great slaughter: Insomuch ẏ a lake of two fur-longes brode which lay therby, semed to flowe wt bloud of the slain. Thē departed they frō thēce .vii.C. & .l. furlōges, & came to Taracha vnto ẏ Jewes ẏ are called Tu-biani. But as for Timotheus, they coulde not get him ther: for (not one matter dys-patched) he was departed frō thēce, & had left certain mē in a very strōg holde. But Dositheus & Sosipater which were captains wt Machabeus, slew those ẏ Timo-theus had left in ẏ house of defence, euē .x.

D M. men. And Machabeus prepared him wt the .vi. M. mē ẏ wer about him, set thē in order by cōpanies, & wēt forth against Timotheus, which had with him an .C. & .xx. M. mē of fote, two. M. & .v.C. horsemē.
When Timotheus had knowlege of Judas comming, he sent ẏ womē, children, & ẏ other baggage vnto a castel called Carniō. (For it could not be wōne, & was hard to com vnto, ẏ waies of ẏ same places wer so narow) & whē Judas cōpany came first in sight, ẏ enemies wer smitten wt feare, through ẏ presence of God which seeth al things: Insomuch ẏ they flying one here, another ther wer rather discōfited of their owne people, *& wounded wt the strokes Jud. vii, f of their own sweards. Judas also was ve-

2 Pa, 20 d those vngodly, & slew .xxx. M. men of thē.
Timotheus also himself fell into ẏ hands of Dositheus, & Sosipater, whom he besought with many prayers to let hym go with his life: bicause he had manye of the Jewes fathers & brethrē in prison, which (if they put him to death) might be disap-poited. So whē he had promised faithfully to deliuer thē againe according to ẏ cō-dition made, thei let him go wout harme for ẏ health of ẏ brethrē. And whē Judas had slain .xxv. M. he wēt from Carnion.
Now after ẏ he had chased away & slayn E his enemies, he remoued ẏ host toward*
1. Ma. v. c Ephron a strōg city, wherin dwelt many diuerse people of ẏ heathē, & ẏ strong yōg mē kept ẏ walles, defending thē mightily. In this city was muche ordinaunce, & prouisiō of dartes. But whē Judas & hys company had called vpon almighty God, (which wt his power breaketh ẏ strength of the enemies) they wanne the city, and slew fyue and twenty thousand of them ẏ were wythin. From thence wente they to the citie of the Scythians, whiche lyeth syxe hundred furlonges from Jerusalem) But when the Jewes whiche wer in the city, testyfyed that the citizens dealte louyngly wyth them, yea, & entreated them kyndely in ẏ tyme of theyr aduersitie, Judas and his company gaue them thanks desyryng them to bee frendely styll vnto F them, and so they came to Jerusalem, the hye feast of the wekes beyng at hande.
And after the feast of Pentecost they wēt forth against Gorgias ẏ gouernor of I-dumea w. iii. M. men of fote & .iiii. C. horsmen. Whiche when they met together, it chaunced a few of the Jewes to be slayn.
And Dositheus one of the Bachenors a mighty horsman toke holde of Gorgias & would haue takē him quick. But an horsman of Thracia fel vpō him and smote of hys arme, so that Gorgias escaped & fled into Moresa, when they now that wer of Gorgias syde, had foughten long & were wery: Judas called vpon the Lorde, that he would be their helper, & captayn of the field: & wyth that he began with a manly voyce to take vp a song of prayse, & a crye.
Insomuch ẏ he made the enemies afrayd & Gorgias mē of warre toke their flyght.
So Judas gathered his host, & cam into ẏ city of Odolla. And when the .vii. daye came vpon them, thei clēsed thēselues (as ẏ custome was) and kept the Sabboth in ẏ same place. And vpon ẏ day folowyng, Judas and his company came to take vp the bodyes of them that wer slayn, and to bury thē in their fathers graues. Nowe vnder ẏ coates of certaine Jewes whiche wer slain, they foūd iewels, ẏ thei had ta-kē out of ẏ tēple, & from ẏ ydols of ẏ *Iā- De. vii niters: which thing is forbiddē ẏ Jewes Josu. vii by the law. Then euery man sawe, ẏ thys was the cause wherefore they wer slayn.
And so euery man gaue thanks vnto the Lord for his ryghteous iudgemēt which had opened the thing that was hid. Thei G fel down also vnto theyr prayers, and besought God, that the faulte whiche was made might be put out of remembrance.
Besydes that, Judas exhorted the people earnestly, to kepe themselues frō such sin: for so much as thei saw before theyr eyes that these men were slain for the same of-fēce. So he gathered of euery one a certen in so much ẏ he brought together two. M dragmas of siluer which he sēt vnto Jerusalem ẏ there myght a sacrifice be offered for ẏ misdede. In the whiche place he dyd well and ryght: for he had som consideration deration and pondering of the life that is after this time. For if he had not thought, ẏ thei, which wer slaine did yet liue, it had ben superfluous and vayne to make any vowe or sacrifice for thē ẏ were dead. But for somuch as he saw, that they which die in the fauoure & beliefe of God, at in good rest & ioye, he thought it to be good & ho= nourable for a reconciling, to do thesame for those which were slaine, that ẏ offence might be forgeuen.

The.xiii. Chapter.

The cōming of Eupator into Iewry. The death of Menelaus. Machabeus going to fighte agaynst Eupator moueth his souldiors vnto prayer. He kil- leth fourtene thousand mē in ẏ tentes of Antiochus. Rhodochus the betraier of the Iewes is taken. Antiochus retayneth frendship with the Iewes.

IN the hundred & .xlix. yeare A gat * Iudas knowledge, ẏ 1.Ma.6.d Antiochus Eupator was cō-ming wt a great power into Iewry, & Lisias the steward & ruler of his matters wt him, hauing an hundred & ten thousand mē of foote, fyue thousand horsemen. xxii. Elephantes, and three hundred charetes. Menelaus, also ioyned himself with thē (but with greate disceate) & spake fayre to ẏ king, not for any good of the countrey, but bicause he thought to haue ben made some great mā ued Antiochus mind against this vngod-ly person, & Lisias infourmed ẏ king * ẏ thys Menelaus was the cause of all mis= 1.Ma.4.d chiefe: so ẏ the king commaunded to take him, & (as ẏ maner of thē is) to put him vn to death in thesame place. Ther was also in thesame place a tower of .L. cubites hie heaped with ashes: but aboue, it was so made, ẏ men might loke downe on euery side. Wherunto the king cōmaunded that shameful persō to be cast among ẏ ashes, as one that was cause of all vngracious= nesse. And reason it was, ẏ the vnthrifte should die such a death & not to be buried: For he had done much mischiefe to ẏ aul-tar of god (whose fire and ashes wer holy) therfore was it right, that he hymself also should be destroyed with ashes.

But the king was wood in his minde, B & came to shew hymself more cruel vnto ẏ Iewes, than his father was. Whiche whē 1.Ma.1.? Iudas perceaued, he cōmaūded ẏ people to cal vpon ẏ lord night & day: ẏ he would now help them also, like as he had done alway. For they were afrayd to be put frō their law, frō their natural countrey, & frō the holy temple: And not to suffre ẏ people (which a litle while afore beganne to re-couer) to be subdued againe of ẏ blasphemous natiōs. So whē they had done this together, and besought ẏ Lord for mercy, with weping, and fastyng three dayes long, flat vpon the ground, Iudas exhor= ted thē to make thēselues readye. But he and ẏ Elders together deuised to go forth fyrst wt their people, afore ẏ king brought his host into Iewry, & afore he besieged ẏ Citye, and to commit the matter vnto God.
Wherfore, he ascribed the power of all C thinges vnto God (he maker of ẏ world, exhorting his people to fight manfullye: (yea, euen vnto death) for ẏ lawes, ẏ tem= ple, the citye, their own natiue countrey, and to defend the citizens: and set his host before Modin. He gaue them also ẏ were with hym, a token of the victorye of God, chosing out the manliest yong mē, went by nyght into the kinges pauilion, slewe of the host fourtene thousand men, * & the greatest Elephantes with those that sat vpon them.
Thus when they had brought a great D feare and rumor among the tentes of their enemyes, and al thyngs went pros= perouslye with them, they departed in the breake of the day, God being theyr helper and defender. Now when the kyng per= ceaued ẏ manlynesse of ẏ Iewes, he went about to take the strong places by crafte and remoued hys host * vnto Bethsura, 2.Ma.xiii which was a wel kept house of defence of ẏ Iewes: but thei wer chaced away, hurt and discomfited. And Iudas sente vnto them that were in it, such things as were necessarye. In the Iewes hoste also there was one Rhodocus, which tolde the ene= mies their secretes: but they sought hym out, & when they had gotten hym thei put hym in prison. After thys dyd the king commen with thē that were in Bethsura, toke truce with them, departed & stroke battayle with Iudas, which ouercame hym.
But when he vnderstode, that Philip E (whom he had lefte to be ouerseer of hys busynesse at Antioche) began to rebel against him, he was astonied in his minde: so that he yelded hymself to the Iewes, & made thē an othe, to doe whatsoeuer they thought right.
Now whē he was reconciled wt thē, he offered, made much of the temple, gaue great great giftes vnto it, embraced Machabeus, making him captaine, & gouernoure frō Ptolomais vnto ÿ Gerrenes. Neuerthelesse, when he came to Ptolomais, the people of the citie wer not content with ÿ bonde of frendship, for they wer afrayed, ÿ he would breake the couenaunt. Then went Lisias vp into the seate, and enfourmed ÿ people, shewed thē the cause why and pacified them. So he came agayne vnto Antioche. This is now the matter conceryng the kinges iourney, and hys returne.

By the motion of ÿ Lord Demetrius sendeth Nicanor to kil the Jewes. Nicanor maketh a cōpact with the Jewes: which he yet breaketh through ÿ motion of ÿ king. Nicanor commaundeth Razis to be taken. The boldnesse of Razis.

After three yeares was Judas enfourmed how ÿ Demetrius ÿ sonne of Seleuchus was com vp wt a great power & shippes, thorow ÿ hauen of Tripolis, to take certayne cōmodious places & countryes against Antiochus & his captain Lisias. Now Alcimus (which had ben hye priest, & wilfully defyled himself, in the time of ÿ mixting) seing ÿ by no meanes he could be helped nor haue any morē entraunce to the aultar: he came to king Demetrius in ÿ hundred & .li. yeare, presenting vnto him a crowne of gold, a Palme and an Olive tree: which (as men thought) belonged to ÿ temple, & that day he helde his tong. But when he had gotten oportunity for his madnes, Demetrius called him to coūsel, & asked him, what things or counsailes ÿ Jewes leaned vnto. He answered: ÿ Jewes ÿ be called Assidei (whose captaine is Judas Machabeus) maintain warres, make insurrectiōs, & wil not let the realme be in peace.

For I being depryued of my fathers ho-B nour (I meane ÿ hye priesthode) am come hyther: partly bicause I was faithful vnto ÿ kyng, and partely bicause I sought ÿ profit of the citizens. And why: al our people, thorow ÿ wickednesse of thē, are not a litle troubled. Wherfore I beseche the (O king) consider al these things diligently, & then make some prouision for the land, and the people, according to the kindnes that thou hast offered vnto them. For as long as Judas hath the vpper hand, it is not possible that men can liue in peace.

When he had spoken these wordes, other frendes also hauing euil wil at Judas, set the king Demetrius on fyre against him: * which immediatly sent Nicanor (ruler of the Elephantes) a captaine, into Jewry, 2 Ma.15. cōmaundyng him to take Judas himselfe aliue, but to slay them that wer with him, and to make Alcimus hygh Priest of the great temple.

C Then ÿ heathē, which fled out of Jewry frō Judas, came to Nicanor by flockes thinking ÿ harme & decaye of the Jewes to be their welfare. Now whē the Jewes heard of Nicanors cōmyng, & the gatheryng together of the heathē, they sprinkled themselues with earth. * & besought hī, which made thē his people, & euer de- ‖ Ma.5. fended hys own portion with euident tokens, that he would preserue thē styl. So at the commaundement of the captayne, they remoued from thence, and came to a towne called Dessasan. And Simon Judas brother fel in hande wt Nicanor, but thorow the sodayne comming of the enemyes, he was afrayed.

Neuerthelesse, Nicanor hearyng the manlynesse of thē that wer with Judas, & the bolde stomakes ÿ they had to fighte for theyr natural coūtrey, durst not proue the matter with bloudshedyng.

Wherfore, he sent Possidonius, Theodotious, & Mathias before, to geue & to take peace. So when they had taken long aduisement therupon, & the captayne shewed it vnto ÿ multitude, they were agreed in one mynde: to haue peace. And thei appoynted a day to sit vpon these matters quietly among thēselues, the stooles also were brought & set forth. Neuerthelesse, Judas cōmaunded certayne mē of armes to wayte in conuenient places, least there should sodaynly arise any euil thorow the enemyes. And so thei communed reasonably together.

ordred himself not vnreasonably, but sent away the people that wer gathered together. He loued Judas euer wt his heart, & fauoured hym. He prayed him also to take a wife, & to bryng forth children.

So he maried, lyued in rest, & they led a common life. But Alcimus perceauyng the loue that was betwyxt thē, and howe thei wer agreed together, came to Demetrius, and tolde hym that Nicanor had taken straunge matters in hand, and ordeyned Judas (an enemye of the realme) to be the kynges successour. Then ÿ king was sore displeased, & thorow ÿ wicked accusations cusations, which Alcimus made of Nica-nor, he was so prouoked yͤ he wrote vnto Nicanor, saying: yͤ he was very angry for the frendship & agrement, which he had made wͭ Machabeus. Neuerthelesse, he cōmaunded him in all yͤ hast, yͤ he shoulde take Machabeus prisoner, & send him to Antioch.

Which letters when Nicanor had sene E he was at his wittes end, & sore greued, yͭ he should breake the things wherin they had agreed: specially, seing Machabeus was the mā yͭ neuer did hym harme. But bycause he myght not withstand yͤ kyng, he sought oportunity to fulfill his cōmaūdement. Notwithstanding whē Machabeus saw yͭ Nicanor beganne to be churlishe vnto hym, & that he entreated hym more roughly thā he was wonte, he perceaued that such vnkindnesse came not of good, & therfore he gathered a few of hys mē, & withdrew hiselfe frō Nicanor. Which when he knew yͭ Machabeus had man-fully preuented him, he came into yͤ great & most holy temple: And cōmaunded the Priestes (which wer doing their vsual of-ferynges) to deliuer him yͤ mā. And when they sware yͭ they coulde not tel wher the 1.Ma.7.c his hand, *and made an othe, saying: yf ye wil not deliuer me Judas captiue, J shal remoue this tēple of god into a plain field. J shal breake down yͤ aultar, & consecrate this temple vnto Bacchus. After these wordes he departed.

Then the Priestes lift vp their handes F toward heauē, & besought him yͭ was euer yͤ defēder of their people, saying: Thou, O Lorde of all, which hast nede of nothyng, wouldest yͭ the temple of thy habitation should be amōg vs. Therfore now, O most holy lord, kepe this house euer vndefiled, *which lately was clēsed. Now was ther 1.Ma.4.c accused vnto Nicanor one Razis, an alder man of Jerusalē, a louer of yͤ holy citie, & a mā of good report, which for yͤ kind hart yͭ he bare vnto yͤ people, was called a father of the Jewes. Thys mā oftetimes, whē the Jewes wer minded to kepe themselues vndefiled, defended & deliuered thē, being content stedfastly to spend his body & hys life for his people.

So Nicanor willing to declare yͤ hate yͭ G he bare to yͤ Jewes, sent fiue hundred mē of warre to take him: for he thought, yf he gat him, he should bring yͤ Jewes in great decay. Now whē yͤ people began to rushe in at his house, to breake yͤ dore, and to set fire on it: he being now takē, would haue defended himself wͭ his swearde, chosyng rather to dye mā fully, thā to yelde himselfe to those wicked doers: & bicause of his noble stocke, he had rather to haue bene put to yͤ extreme cruelty. Notwithstandyng, what tyme as he myssed of hys stroke for hast, and yͤ multitude fel in violently betwixt yͤ dores, he ranne boldlye to yͤ wall, & cast himself down manfully among the heape of them, which gaue soone place to his fal, so yͭ he fel vpō his belly. Neuerthelesse, whyle there was yet breath within him, he was kyndled in his mynd, & while his bloud gushed out excedyngly (for he was very sore woūded), he rāne thorow the middest of yͤ people, & gat him to yͤ top of a rocke. So whē his bloude was gone, he toke out his owne bowels wͭ both hys hands, & threw thē vpō the people, calling vpon the Lord of life & spirite to rewarde him thus agayne, and so he dyed.

Judas was in yͤ countrey of 1.Ma.7.d Samaria, he thought with al his power to strike a field wͭ him, vpō a sabboth day. Ne-uertheles the Jewes yͭ wer cōpelled to go wͭ him, sayd: O do not so cruelly & vnkindly, but hale wͭ yͤ saboth day, & worship him, yͭ seeth al thinges. For al thys, yet sayde yͤ vngracious person: *Js there a myghtye one in heauen, yͭ cōmaunded the sabboth 3.Mac.6.c day to be kept. And when they sayd: yea, yͤ liuyng God, yͤ mighty Lord in heauē *cōmaūded yͤ seuenth day to be kept, he said: Ex.20.b And J am mighty vpō earth to cōmaund thē, for to arme thēselues, & to perfourme the kinges busines. Notwithstandyng he might not haue his purpose.

Nicanor had deuised with great pride, to ouercome Judas, and to bring away yͤ victorye. But Machabeus had euer a fast confidence and a perfect hope in god, that he would helpe him, & exhorted hys people, not to be afrayed at the comming of the heathen: but alway to remembre yͤ helpe that that had bene shewed vnto them frō heauē: yea, & to be sure now also, ẏ almightye god would geue thē the victory. He spake vnto thē out of the law & Prophetes: puttyng thē in remembraunce of the battels B ẏ they had striken afore, & made thē to be of a good corage. So when their hearts wer plucte vp, he shewed thē also the disceatfulnes of ẏ heathē, & how they would kepe no couenaunte nor othe. Thus he weapened thē not with the armoure of shilde, & speare but with wholsom words, & exhortations. He shewed thē a dreame also wherthorow he made them al glad, which was thys: he thought ẏ he saw Onias (which had ben hye priest, a vertuous & louing mā, sad, & of an honest conuersacion, wel spoken, & one ẏ had ben exercised in Godlinesse frō a chyld) holding vp hys handes toward heauē, & praying for his people. After this ther appeared vnto him another man, which was aged: honorable, & glorious. And Onias sayde, This is a louer of the brethrē, and of the people of Israel. Thys is he that prayeth much for the people, & for al the holy city, Jeremy the Prophet of god. He thoughte also ẏ Jeremy held out hys ryght hand, & gaue vnto Judas a sweard of golde, sayng: take this holy sweard, a gifte frō god, wherwith thou shalt smite down the enemyes of the people of Israel.

And so they wer wel comforted thorow
C the wordes of Judas, & toke corage vnto thē, so ẏ the yong men were determined in their myndes to fyght, & to abide stifly at it: In somuch ẏ in the thynges, whiche they toke in hand, their boldnesse shewed the same, bycause ẏ holy citye & the temple wer in peril: for ẏ which they toke more care, thā for theyr wiues, chyldrē, brethrē and kynsfolkes.

Agayn they ẏ wer in the citye, wer most careful for those which wer to fight. Now whē thei were al in a hope that ẏ Judgement of ẏ matter was at hand, & the enemyes drewe nye, ẏ host being set in aray, ẏ Elephantes, & horsemen euery one standig in his place: Machabeus consideryng the cōmyng of the multitude, ẏ ordinaūce of diuers weapons, the cruelnes of the beastes, & held vp his hands toward heauen, callyng vpon ẏ Lord * that doth wō-2 Pa 14 c ders, which geueth not ẏ victorye after ẏ Jud, 7.b multitude of ẏ weapons, & power of ẏ host (but to thē that please hym) according to hys own wyl. Therfore in thys prayer he sayd these wordes, O Lorde, thou ẏ didest send thyne Angel in ẏ tyme of * Ezekiah king of Juda, & in ẏ host of Sennacherib slewest an. C. lxxx. & fyue thousand send now also thy good Angell before vs (O Lord of heauen) in the fearefulnesse & drede of thy myghtye arme, that they which come agaynst thy holy people to blaspheme thē, may be afraid. And so he made an end of hys wordes.

Then Nicanor & they ẏ wer with hym, drewe nye wt shawmes & songes: but Judas & hys company wt prayer and calling vpō God. With theyr handes they smote, but with theyr hearts they prayed vnto ẏ Lord, & slewe no lesse than. xxxv. M. men. For thorow ẏ present helpe of God, they wer gloriously comforted. Now whē they left of, & were tournyng agayn with ioye, they vnderstode ẏ Nicanor hymselfe was slayne with the other. Then they gaue a great shoute & a cry, praysyng ẏ almighty Lord wt a loude voyce. And Judas (which was euer ready to spende his body & lyfe for hys citizens) cōmaunded to smyte of Nicanors head, wt his arme, and hand, & to be brought to Jerusalē. When he came there, he called al ẏ people, & the Priestes to the aultar with those ẏ were in ẏ castel, and shewed thē Nicanors head, and hys wicked hand, which he had presumtuously holdē vp agaynst the temple of god. He caused the tong also of the vngodly Nicanor to be cut in litle peces, & to be cast vnto ẏ foules, and the cruel mans hande to be hanged vp before the temple.

So euery man gaue thankes vnto the Lord, saying: Blessed be he, ẏ hath kept hys place vndefiled. As for Nicanors, head, he hāged it vp vpō ẏ hy castel, for an euydent, and playne token of the helpe of God. And so they agreed altogether, to kepe ẏ day holy, namely the thyrtene day of the moneth Adar, which in ẏ Sirians language is called the nexte daye before Mardocheus day. Thus was Nicanor slayne, and frō that tyme forth, the Jewes had the city in possession. And here wyl I now make an ende.

The seconde Chapter.

¶ The tyme and place of Christes birth. The wise men offer their presentes. Christ flieth into Egipt, the young children are slaine, Christ turneth into Galile.

When ✠ Jesus was borne at A The gos-Bethleem a city of Jew- pel vpon ry, in the time of Herode twelf day the king: Beholde, there came wisemen from the East to Jerusalem, saying: where is he that is borne king of the Jewes? For we haue seen his starre in the East, and are come to worship him.
When Herode the king had heard these thinges, he was troubled, and al the citie of Jerusalem with him. And whẽ he had Nu:xxiiii a: gathered al the chiefe priestes & Scribes of the people together, he demaunded of them, where Christ should be borne: And they said vnto him: at Bethleem in Jewry. For thus it is written by the Prophet: And thou Bethleem in the land of Juda, art not the least among the Princes of Juda. For out of the shal there come vn- Mic:v:a Joh:vii: to me the capitaine, that shal gouerne my people Israell.
Then Herode (whẽ he had priuely called the wise men) he enquired of them diligently, what time the starre appeared, and he bad them go to Bethleem, and saide: Goe your way thither, and searche diligently for the childe. And when ye haue found him, bring me worde againe, that I may come and worship him also. B ✠ When they had heard the king, they departed: and loe, the starre which they saw in the East, went before them, till it came and stode ouer the place, wherin the child was, when they saw the starre, they were exceading glad: and went into the Ps.lxii.d house, and founde the childe with Marye Esai.lx.b his mother and fel down flat and worshipped him, and opened their treasures, and offred vnto him gifts: golde, frankẽ-warned of God in slepe (that they shoulde not goe againe to Herode) they returned C into their own countrey another way. ✝ The gos-pel vpõ Innocentes daye. ✝When they were departed: behold, the Angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in slepe, saying: Arise and take the child and his mother, and flye into Egipt, and be thou there, till I bryng thee worde. For it wil come to passe, that Herode shall seke the child to destroy him. So when he awoke, he toke the childe and his mother by night, and departed into Egipt, & was there vnto the death of Herode: that it might be fulfilled, which was spoken of ẏ Ose.xi.a lord by the Prophet, saying: out of Egipt Nu.xxiiii.c haue I called my sonne.

Then Herode, when he saw that he was mocked of the wisemen, he was exceding wroth, and sent forth men of warre, and slew all the children that were in Beth-leem, and in all the coastes (as many as were two yere old or vnder) according to the tyme, which he had diligẽtly knowen Je.xxxi.c of the wysemen.
Then was fulfilled that, which was spoken by the Prophet Jeremy: wheras he said: in Rama was there a voice heard lamentation, weping, and great mourning: Rachel weping for her children, and would not be comforted, bicause they wer not. ✝But when Herode was dead, be-D hold: ✝an Angell of the Lord appeared in slepe to Joseph in Egipt, saying: aryse & take the child and his mother, and go into the land of Israell. *For they are dead which sought the childes lyfe. And he arose, and toke the child and hys mother, & came into the land of Israell. But when Ex.iiii.c. he heard, that Archelaus did reigne in Jewry, in ẏ rowme of his father Herode, he was afrayd to go thither. Notwithstanding, after he was warned of God in a slepe, he turned asyde into the partyes of Galile, and went and dwelt in a citie, which is called Nazareth: that it might be fulfilled which was spokẽ by the Prophetes: he shalbe called a Nazarite. ✝

¶The fifth Chapter

¶In this chapter, and in the two next folowing, is cōraymente? Beholde the foules of the aire, for they sowe not, neither doe they reape, nor carie into the barnes: and your hea-uenly father fedeth thē. Are ye not muche better than they. D Whiche of you (by taking carefull Lu.xii.d. thoughte) can adde one cubite vnto his stature? And why care ye for raymente?

Consider the lilies of the field, howe they grow. They labour not, neither doe they spinne. And yet I saie vnto you, that euē Salomon in all his royaltie was not arayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grasse of the fielde (whiche though it stād to day, is to morow cast into the fornace) shal he not muche more do the same for you, O ye of litle faith?
Therefore take no thought, saying: what shall we eate, or what shall we drinke, or wherewith shall we be clothed? after all these thinges doe the Gentiles seke. For your heauenly father knoweth, that ye haue nede of al these thinges. But rather seke ye first the kingdome of god, and the righteousnes therof, and all these things shalbe ministred vnto you. ⊦

Care not then for the morowe, for to

And he spake manye thynges to them vpon stonye places, where they had not cause thei had no depenes of earth, & whē yͤ thornes sprong vp & choked them. But some fell into good ground and broughte the sede which was cast into stony places, thesame is he that heareth the worde, and anon with ioye receyueth it, yet hath he no roote in himself but dureth for a seasō: for when tribulation or persecution hapthornes, is he that heareth the word: and the care of this world, and the deceitful-nesse of riches choke vp the worde, and so is he made vnfruitful. But he that recei-ued sede into the good ground, is he that heareth the worde and vnderstandeth it: whiche also beareth fruit, and bryngeth forth, some an hundred folde, some sixtye folde: some thirtie folde.

Another similitude put he foorth vnto D them, saying: +The kyngdom of heauen The Gos is lykened vnto a manne, whiche sowed pel on the good sede in his fielde. But whyle men v. sonday after xii slept, his enemye came, and sowed tares daye. among the wheate, and wente his waie.
But when the blade was sprong vp and had brought forth fruite, there appeared the tares also. So the seruauntes of the housholder came, and said vnto him: Sir, diddest not thou sowe good seede in thy fielde? from whence then hath it tares?
He sayde vnto them: the enuious manne hath done this. The seruauntes sayde vnto vnto hym:wilt thou then that we go and wede them vp. But he said, nay:lest while ye gather vp the tares,ye plucke vp also the wheate with them,let both grow to= gether vntyl the haruest:and in tyme of haruest,I wil say to the reapers: gather ye first the tares,and bynd them together in sheues to be brent:but gather þ wheate into my barne. Another parable putt he Mar.iiii. c. forth vnto them, saying: The kingdome Lu.xiii.d of heauen is like vnto a grain of mustard sede,which a man toke and sowed in hys field, which is the least of al sedes. But when it is growen it is the gretest amōg herbes,and is a tree:so that the byrdes of the ayre come, and make theyr nestes in the braunches therof.

E Another similitude spake he vnto thē:*
Lu.xiii.d The kingdom of heauen is like vnto le= uen which a woman taketh & hydeth in three peckes of meale,tyl all be leuened.
All these thinges spake Iesus vnto the might be fulfilled, which was spoken by the Prophet, that sayth: I will open my Psalme lxxviii.a. mouth in parables: I will speake forth thinges which haue been kept secrete frō the beginning of the world.

When the people were sent away, then Mar.iiii. c. came Iesus into the house. And his disci= vs the parable of the tares of the field.He answered and sayd vnto them: He that soweth the good sede,is þ sonne of man.

byeth the field.
Again, the kingdom of heauen is lyke vnto a marchaūt mā, seking goodly pear= les,which (when he found one precious pearle)went and solde all that he had and bought it.
Again the kingdom of heauē is like vn= to a net,þ was cast into the sea and gathe= was full,mē drew to land,and sate down and gathered the good into vessels, but G cast the bad away. So shall it be at thend of the world. The Angels shall come and Mat.xxii. b.

And it came to passe, that when Iesus Mar.vi.a

The.xiiii.Chapter.

¶ Iohn is taken and headed. Christ fedeth fiue thou=

AT that time*Herode the Mar.vi.b Tetrarch herd of þ fame Luk.ix.a

For Iohn sayd vnto hym:it is not lawful for thee to haue her. And when he would Le.xviii. c.

But when Herodes birth day was kept, the daughter of Herodias daunsed before Mar.vi.c them, and pleased Herode. Wherfore he promised with an oth, that he would geue her whatsoeuer she would aske. And she beyng instruct of her mother before, sayd: geue me here John Baptistes head in a platter. And the kyng was sory. Neuer-thelesse, for the othes sake, and the which sate also at the table, he commaunded it to be geuen her: and sent tormenters, and beheaded John in the pryson, & his head was brought in a platter, and geuen to ye damsel, and she brought it to her mother.

And his disciples came and toke vp his body, and buryed it: and went and tolde Jesus.
B When Jesus heard of it, he departed Luk.ix.a thence in a ship vnto a desert place out of Joh.vi.a the way. And when the people had heard Mar.vi.d therof, they folowed hym on fote and left the cities. And Jesus went forth, & saw much people, and was moued with mercy toward them, and he healed of them, those that were sycke. And when the euen drew on, his disciples came to hym, saying: this is a desert place, and the houre is now past, let the people depart, yt they C may go into the townes, and bie them vi-tailes. But Jesus sayd vnto them: They haue no nede to go away. Geue ye thē to eate. They sayd vnto hym: we haue here but fyue loaues and two fyshes. He sayd: bring them hither to me. And he cōmaunded the people to sit down on the grasse, & he toke the fyue loaues and ye two fishes, and lift vp his eyes toward heauen and blessed: And when he had brokē them, he did all eate, and were suffised. And they gathered vp (of the fragmentes that remained) twelue baskets full, and they yt did eate wer about. v. M. men, beside we-

Mar.vi.d And straight way Jesus made his dis-Joh vi.b ciples to get vp into a ship, and to goe before him vnto the other syde, while he sēt the people away. And when the people were sent away, he went vp into a moun-Luk.ix.c taine to pray alone. And whē night was come, he was there himselfe alone. But ye ship was now in the middes of the sea and was tost with waues, for it was a contrary wind. And in the fourth watche of the nighte. Jesus went vnto them walking on the sea. And when the disciples saw him walking on the sea, they were troubled, saying: it is some spirit, and they cried out for feare. But straight way, Jesus spake vnto them, saying: be of good chere it is I, be not afrayd.
Peter answered him, and sayd: Lord if it be thou, bid me come vnto thee on the water. And he sayd: come. And when Pe- D ter was come down out of ye ship, he walked on the water, to goe to Jesus. But when he saw a mightie winde, he was a-frayd. And whē he began to sinke, he cried, saying: Lord saue me: And immediatly Jesus stretched forth his hande and caught him, and sayd vnto hym. O thou of lytle fayth, wherefore didst thou doute?
And when they were come into the ship, the wind ceased. Then they that were in the ship came and worshipped him, saying Mar.vi.g of truthe thou art the sonne of God. And when they were gone ouer, they came into the lande of Genesareth. And when the men of ye place had knowledge of him, they sent out messengers into al that coū-trey rounde about the coast, and brought vnto him al that were sicke, and besought him that they might touch the hem of his vesture onely: And as many as touched it were made safe.

The.xv.Chapter.

Christ excuseth his disciples, and rebuketh the Scribes and Pharises, for trāsgressing Gods commaunde-mentes, through their own traditions. The thyng that goeth into the mouth defileth not the man. He deliue-reth the woman of Cananees daughter, healeth the multitude, and with seuen loaues and a fewe litle fishes, fedeth foure thousande men, beside women and children.

THē came to Jesus Scri- A traditions of the elders? for they washe not their Hypocrites, full well dyd Esaye pronye vnto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lippes, howbeit, theyr heartes are farr from me, but in vayn do they serue me teaching the doctrines and preceptes of men.

And he called the people vnto hym, and sayd vnto them: heare and vnderstande.
That which goeth into the mouth, defy-out of the mouth, defyleth the man.

Then came hys disciples, and sayd vnto hym: knowest thou not, ỳ the Pharises were offended at thys saying? But he answered and sayd. Euery plant which my heauenly father hath not planted, shalbe pluct vp by the rootes. Let them alone, they be the blynde leaders of the blynde.
If the blinde leade the blinde, both shall fall into the dytche.
Then answered Peter and sayd vnto him: declare vnto vs this parable. Iesus sayd: are ye also yet without vnderstandyng? Do ye not yet vnderstande, that whatsoeuer entreth in at ỳ mouth, goeth into ỳ belly, & is cast out into ỳ draught?
But those thyngs which procede out of ỳ mouth, come forth from the heart, and they defyle the man. For out of the heart procedeth euill thoughtes, murthers, bre-king of wedlocke, whoredoms, theftes, false witnesse, blasphemies. These are the things, which defile a man. But to take meate with vnwashen handes, defyleth not a man. ✠

The gospel on S. peters daye. +When Jesus came into the coastes of ẏ

The. xvii. Chapter.

The transfiguration of Christ. He healeth the luna-

AND after six daies, Jesus A taketh Peter, James and Mar.ix.
John his brother, and Luk.ix. bringeth them vp into an hye mountaine out of the

Then answered Peter, and sayd vnto Jesus: Lord here is good being for vs. If thou wilt let vs make here thre tabernacharged them, saying: shew the vision to

+And his disciples asked him, saying: why then say the Scribes, that Helias must first come? Jesus answered, & sayd and restore all thinges. But I say vnto Mat.xi. you that Helias is come already, and they knew him not: but haue done vnto hym

E whatsoeuer they lusted. In likewise shal also the sonne of man suffer of them. Then the disciples understode, that he spake unto them of John Baptist. And whē they were come to the people, there came to him a certain man kneling down to him, and saying: Master, haue mercy on my sonne, for he is lunatike and sore vexed: for oft tymes he falleth into the fyre, and

And when they were come to the citie of Capernaum, they that use to receiue tribute money, came to Peter, and sayd: Doth your master pay tribute? He sayth: yea. And when he was come into y house Jesus preuented him, saying: What thinkest thou Simō? of whom do the kinges of the earth take tribute or toll, of theyr children, or of straungers? Peter sayth unto him: of straungers. Jesus sayth unto him: Then are the children free. Notwithstanding, lest we should offende the, go thou to the sea, and cast an angle, and take the fish that first cometh up, & when thou hast opened his mouth, thou shalt fynde a pyece of twentye pence: that take, and geue it unto them for me and thee.

The. xviii. Chapter.

He teacheth his disciples to be humble and harmelesse: to auoide occasions of euill, and one to forgeue anothers offence.

A At the same tyme came y disciples unto Jesus, saying: who is the greatest in the kingdom of heauē? The .xx. Chapter.

Christ teacheth by a similitude that God is detter vnto no man. He teacheth his disciples to be lowly, & geueth two blindemen their sight.

A For the kingdome of heauen is like vnto a man that is an householder, which went out early in the mornyng to hire labourers into his vineyarde. And when the agrement was made with the labourers for a peny a day, he sent them into his vineyarde. And he went out about the third houre, and saw other standing ydle in the market place, and sayd vnto them: go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoeuer is right, I wil geue you. And they went their way. Again he went out about the sixth & ninth houre, and did likewise. And about ÿ eleuenth houre he went out, and found other standing ydle, and sayd vnto them: Why stande ye here all the day ydle? They say vnto him: bicause no man hath hired vs. He sayth vnto them: go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoeuer is right, that shall ye receiue.

B So when euen was come, the Lord of the vineyard sayth vnto his steward: call the laborers, and geue them their hire, beginning at the last, vntil the first. And when they did come, that came about the eleuenth houre, they receiued euery man a peny. But when the first came also, they supposed that they should haue receiued more, and they likewise receiued euery man a peny. And when they had receiued it, they murmured against the good man of the house, saying: these last haue wrought but one houre, & thou hast made them equal vnto vs, which haue borne ÿ burthen and heate of the day.

But he answered vnto one of them, and sayd: frend, I do thee no wrong: didest ÿ not agree with me for a peny? Take that thine is, and go thy way: I wil geue vnto this last, euē as vnto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do as me listeth with myne own goodes? Is thine eye euill, bicause I am good? So the last shalbe first, and the first shalbe last. For many be called, but few be chosen.

THe kingdome of heauen is like vnto a* mã ÿ was a king which made a mariage for his sonne, & sent forth his seruauntes, to call them that were bid to the weddyng: and they would not come. Agayn he sent forth other seruauntes saying: Tell them which are bidde: Behold, I haue prepared my diner: myne oxen & my fatlings are killed, & all things are ready: come vnto the mariage. But they made light of it, & went their waies one to his farm place, another to his mar-and slew them. But when the king heard therof, he was wrothe, and sent foorth

Then said he to his seruauntes: The

But when the Pharises had heard sweareth by the altare, sweareth by it, and by all thynges that are theron. And who ¶ Chriſt ſheweth his diſciples the deſtruction of the Temple, the ende of the worlde, and the tokens of the latter daies, and warneth them to wake, for the world ſhall ſodeinly periſh.

floud came and tooke them all away: so shal also the comming of the sonne of man be. Then shall two be in the field, the one Luk.xvii.g received, and ÿ other refused: * two women shall be grinding at the mill, the one received, and the other refused. Two in a bed, the one shall be received, and the Mat.xxv.b other refused. Watche therefore, for ye know not what houre your Lorde wyll Luk.xii.e man of the house knewe what houre the Apo.xvi.c theefe would come, he would surely watch and not suffer his house to be broken up.

Therfore, be ye also ready, for in such an houre as ye thinke not: will the sonne of man come.

Who is a faithfull and wyse servaunt whom his Lorde hath made ruler over his housholde, to geue them meate in seasone. Blessed is that servaunt, whom his Lord (when he commeth) shall find so doyng. Verely I say unto you, that he shall make hym ruler over all hys goodes. But and if that evyll servaunte saie in his heart: my Lorde will be long a comming (and so beginne to smite his felowes, yea, and to eate and drynke with the dronken) the same servauntes Lorde shall come in a day when he looketh not for hym, and in an houre that he is not ware of, and shall hew him in peces, and geue him his portion with the Ipocrites, there shall be wepyng and gnashyng of teeth.

The. xxv. Chapter.

¶ The ten virgins. The talentes delivered to the servauntes, and of the generall iudgement.

A Then shall the kingdom of heaven be like unto ten virgins, which toke their lampes and went to mete the bridegrome (and the bride.) But five of them wer foolish, and five wer wyse. They that wer foolish, tooke theyr lampes, but tooke none oyle with them.
But the wise tooke oyle with them in their vessels, with the lampes also. While the bridegrome taried, they all slumbred and slept. And even at mydnight, there was a crye made: behold, the bridegrome commeth, go out to mete hym. Then all those virgins arose, and prepared theyr B lampes. So the foolish sayde unto the wise, geue us of your oile: for our lampes are gone out. But the wise aunswered, saying: not so, lest there be not ynough for us and you: but go ye rather to them that sell, and bye for your selues. And while they went to bye, the bridegrome came, and they that were ready, went in Mat.vii.c with hym to the Mariage, and the gate was shut up. Afterward came also the other virgins, saying: * Lord Lord, open to us. But he aunswered and sayd: Vere-ly I say unto you: I know you not. Watch Mat.xxiiii.d. therfore, for ye know neither the day nor Mar.xiii.d. yet the houre, wherin the sonne of mā shal come. ✝ Luk.xii.e

✝ Likewise a certain man ready to take his iourney to a straunge countrey, called his servauntes, and delivered unto them his goodes. And unto one he gave Mat.xiii.d.
v. talēts, to another two, and to another, one: to every man after his habilitye, and Lu.xix.b. straight way departed. Then he that had receaued the five talents, went and occupied with the same, and wanne other five talents. Likewise also, he that recei-ued two, gayned other two. But he that received that one, went and dygged in the earth, and hid his lordes mony. After a long season, the Lord of those servauntes came, and reckned with them.
And so he that had received five talents, came and brought other fyve talentes, saying: Sir, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I haue gayned wyth them, five talentes mo. His Lord sayde unto hym: well thou good and faythfull servaunt, thou hast been faythfull over fewe thynges, I will make the ruler over many thyngs: enter thou into the ioy of thy lord. He also that had received two talents, came and sayd: Sir thou delyve-redst unto me two talents, behold I have wonne two other talents wyth them. His Lord said unto him: wel ÿ good and faith-full servaunt, thou hast bene faithfull over few thynges, I will make thee ruler over many thinges: Enter thou into the ioy of the Lord.

Then he which had received the one talent, came and said: Sir, I knewe thee C that thou art an hard man, reaping wher thou hast not sowen, and gathering wher thou hast not strawed, and therfore was I afraide, and went and hyd thy talent in the earth: loe, there thou haste that thine is. His Lorde aunswered and said unto him: thou evyll and slouthfull servaunt, that knewest that I reape where I sowed not, and gather where I haue not strawed: thou oughtest therefore to haue

haue deliuered my money to the exchangers, and then at my commyng should I haue receiued myne own with vauntage. Take therfore the talente from hym, and geue it vnto hym whiche hath Mat.xiii. c. tenne talentes.* For vnto euery one that hath, shall be geuen, and he shall haue Mar.iiii.c aboundaunce. But he that hath not, from hym shall be taken away euen that which he hath. And cast the vnprofitable seruant into vtter darkenesse,*there Mat.xiii. g. shall be weping and gnashing of teeth.
When the sonne of man commeth in seate of his glorye, and before him shall be gathered all nations.* And he shall seperate them one from an other, as a

¶The.xxvi. Chapter. ✠

¶Mary Magdalene annoynteth Christe, they eate the Easter lamb, Christ prayeth in the gardein. Judas betrayeth hym. Peter smiteth of Malchus eare. Christ is accused by false wytnesses. Peter denyeth him.

And it came to passe, whē Jesus had finyshed al Mar.xiiii. a. these sayings, he sayd vnto his Disciples, ye know Lu.xxii.a that after two daies shal be Easter, and the sonne of man shal be deliuered ouer to be crucified.* Then assembled to- Joh.xi.f. gether the chief Priestes, and ẏ Scrybes and the elders of the people vnto the palace of the hie Priest (which was called Caiphas) and held a counsell, that they myght take Jesus by subtiltye, and kyll hym. But they sayde not on the holye day, lest there be an vprore among the people.
*When Jesus was in Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, there came vn- Mar.xiiii a. to him a woman, hauyng an Alabaster boxe of precious oyntment, and powred Joh.xii.a it on his head, as he sat at the bourde. Luk.vii.f But when his disciples saw it, they had indignation, saying: Whereto serueth this wast? This oyntment myght haue been well solde and geuen to the poore.
When Jesus vnderstoode that, he sayde vnto them: why trouble ye the woman?
For she hath wrought a good work vpon me.* For ye haue poore alwaies with you: De.xv.b. but me shall ye not haue alwayes. And in that she hath cast this oyntmēt on my body, she did it to bury me. Uerely I say vnto you: wheresoeuer this Gospell shall bee preached in all the world, there shall also this that she hath done, be told for a me-moriall of her.

Then one of the twelue (whiche was Mar.xiiii called Judas Iscarioth) went vnto the b. chief Priestes, and said vnto them: what Lu.xxii.a wyll ye geue me and I wyll delyuer him Joh.xiii.a vnto you? And they appointed vnto hym B thyrtie peces of syluer. And from that time foorth, he soughte oportunitie to betraye hym.* The fyrste daye of swete bread, the Dysciples came to Jesus, say- Mar.xiiii b. ing vnto hym: where wylt thou that we prepare Lu.xxii.a

prepare for thee, to eate the Passeouer?
And he saide: go into the citie, to suche a man, and saie vnto him: the Mayster sayeth my time is at hande, I will kepe mine Easter by thee, with my Disciples.
And the Disciples did as Iesus had ap= pointed them, and they made ready the Passeouer.
[Mar.xiiii c.] *When the euen was come he sat downe with the twelue. And as they did eate, [Lu.xxii.b] he sayde: Verely I saie vnto you, that [Joh.xiii.c] one of you shall betraye me. And they were exceading sorowfull, and beganne euerye one of them to saye vnto hym: Lorde is it I? He aunswered and sayde, he that dyppeth his hande with me in the dishe, the same shall betraye me. *
[Psa.xli.b] The sonne of man truelye goeth as it is wrytten of hym, but woe vnto that man, by whom the sonne of man is be= trayed. It had been good for that man, if he had not been borne. Then Iudas whiche betrayed him, aunswered and saide: Maister is it I? He said vnto him: thou haste saide. When they were ea= ting, Iesus tooke bread, and when he had geuen thankes, he brake it, and gaue it to the disciples, and saide: Take, eate, [I.Cor.xi.e] this is my body. And he tooke the cuppe, [Lu.xxii.b] and thanked, and gaue it them, saying: [Mar.xiiii c.] Drinke ye all of this. For this is my D bloude (whiche is of the newe testament) that is shed for manie, for the remyssion of synnes. But I saie vnto you, I wyll not drinke hencefoorth of this fruit of the Vine tree, vntill that daie, when I [Mar.xiiii c.] shall drinke it newe *with you in my Fa= thers kingdome. And when they had said grace, they went oute vnto mounte Oli= uete. Then sayth Iesus vnto them: all ye shall bee offended because of me thys [Zach.xiii. c.] nyght. For it is wrytten: * I wyll smyte [Mar.xiiii c.] the shepeheard, and the shepe of the flock shall bee scattered abroade. But after I am rysen agayne, I wyll goe before you into Galile. Peter aunswered, and sayde vnto hym: thoughe all men bee [Mar.xiiii c.] offended because of thee, yet wyll not I [Lu.xxii.d] bee offended: Iesus sayde vnto hym: Verely, I saye vnto thee, that in thys same nyght, before the Cocke crow, thou shalt denye me thrice. Peter sayde vnto hym. Yea, though I should die with thee, yet will I not denye thee. Lykewyse also saide all the disciples.
[Mar.xiiii d.] *Then came Iesus with them vnto a farm place (which is called Gethsamany) and sayd vnto the disciples: Sitte ye here while I go and pray yonder. And he toke to him Peter & the two sonnes of Zebede and began to ware sorowfull and heauy.
Then saide Iesus vnto them: * my soule [Mar.xiiii d.] is heauy euen vnto the death. Tary ye [Joh.xii.d] here, and watche with me. And he went a litle farther, and fell flat on his face, and prayed, saying: O my Father, if it be pos= sible, * let this cup passe from me: neuer= [Mar.xiiii d.] thelesse, not as I will, but as thou wilte. [Lu.xxii.d] And he came vnto the disciples, and foūd them a slepe, and sayth vnto Peter: What could ye not watche with me one houre? watch and pray, that ye enter not into tē= tation. *The spirite is willing but ẏ flesh [Gala.v.c] is weake.
*He went away once again and prai= [Mar.xiiii e.] ed, saying: O my Father yf this cup may not passe away from me, except I drynke of it, thy wyll be fulfilled. And he came and found them a slepe agayne, for their eyes wer heauy. And he left them and wēt again and prayed the thirde tyme, saying the same woordes. Then commeth he to his disciples, and saith vnto them: Slepe on now, and take your rest. Beholde, the houre is at hande, and the sonne of man is betrayed into the handes of synners: E Rise, let vs bee goyng: beholde, he is at hand, that doth betray me. *Whyle he yet spake: loe, Iudas one of the noumber of [Mar.xiiii e.] the twelue came, and with hym a great [Lu.xxii.e] multitude, with swerdes and staues, sēt from the chief Priestes and elders of the people. But he that betrayed him gaue them a token, saying: Whomsoeuer I kisse, that same is he: hold hym fast. And foorthwith he came to Iesus, and sayd: haile maister, and kissed him. And Iesus said vnto him: frend, wherfore art thou come? Then came they and layde handes on Iesus and tooke him.
And beholde one of them which wer with Iesus stretched out his hande and drew his swerd, and stroke a seruaunt of the hye Prieste and smote of his eare.
Then sayde Iesus vnto hym: put vp thy swerd into his sheath. *For all they that take the swerde shall peryshe wyth the [Gen.ix.a] nowe praie to my father, and he shall [Apo.xiii.c] geue me (euen nowe) more than .xii. legi= [Esa.liii.b] scriptures be fulfilled? *for thus muste it be. In that same houre said Iesus to the multitude: *ye be come out as it wer vn= [Lu.xxiii b.]

to take me: I sat dayly with you, teaching Psal.xxi in the temple, and ye toke me not. But and .xlix. all this is done that the scriptures of the Mar.xiiii f. Prophetes might be fulfilled. *Then all Lu.xxii.f the disciples forsooke hym, and fled. And Joh.xviii e. they tooke Jesus, and led him to Caiphas the hie Priest, where the Scribes and the elders were assembled. But Peter folo-

Mar.xiiii f. *The chief Priestes and the elders, and all the counseil soughte false witnesse a-last came two false witnesses, and sayde:

And the chief Priest aunswered and sayd vnto him: I charge the by the liuing god, Mar.xiiii f. that thou tell vs, whither thou be Christ the sonne of God. Jesus sayth vnto hym: thou hast sayd. Neverthelesse I say vnto Mar.xiiii e. you: *hereafter shall ye see the sonne of man sitting on the right hande of power Lu.xxii g and commyng in the cloudes of the skie.
Marke. xiiii g. *Then the hie priest rent his clothes saiyng: he hath spoken blasphemye, what G nede we of any moe witnesses? Beholde, now ye haue heard his blasphemy: what thinke ye? They aunswered and sayde: he Esay.l.c. is worthy to dye. Then dyd they spytte in his face, and buffeted hym with fistes.
And other smote him on the face with the palme of their handes, saying: Tell vs thou Christ, who is he that smote thee?
Peter sat without in the Palace. And a damosel came to hym, saying: Thou also wast with Jesus of Galile: but he denied before them all, saying: I wot not what thou sayest. When he was gone out into the porch, another wenche saw hym, and said vnto them that wer there: Thys Mar.xiiii g felow was also with Jesus of Nazereth.
Lu.xxii.g And agayn he denyed with an othe (say-Joh.xviii f. ing) I do not know the man. And after a whyle came vnto hym they (that stoode by) and sayd vnto Peter: surely thou art euen one of them, for thy speach bewrayeth thee. Then began he to curse and to sweare; that he knew not the man. And immediately the Cocke crew. And Peter Mat.xxvi c. remembred the woorde of Jesu, whiche said vnto him: before the Cock crow, thou shalt deny me thrise; and he went out, and wept bitterly.

¶The.xxvii.Chapter.

¶Christ is deliuered vnto Pilate. Judas hangeth him self. Christ is crucified among theues. He dieth and is buried. watchemen kepe the graue.

When the mornyng was f come, all the chief priestes Psa.ii.a. and elders of the people, Mar.xv.a held a counsel against Je- Lu.xxiii. a. sus to put him to death, & brought him bound and Joh.xviii c. deliuered him vnto Pon- Acte.iii.c cius Pilate the debitie.
Thē Judas (which had betrayed hym) seyng that he was condemned, repented himself, and brought agayn ŷ .xxx. plates of siluer, to the chief Priestes and elders, saying: I haue synned, betraying the innocent bloud. And they sayd, what is that to vs? See thou to that. And he cast down the siluer plates in the temple, and departed, and went and hanged himself.
*And the chief priestes toke the syluer 2.Kinges xvii.d. plates, and said: it is not lawful for to put Actes.i.c them into the treasure, because it is the price of bloud. And they toke counsell and bought with them a potters fielde to bury straungers in. Wherfore that field is called (Haceldema, that is) the fielde of bloude, vntill this day. Then was fulfylled that which was spoken by Jeremy ŷ prophet, saying: And they tooke .xxx. siluer plates, Jer.xii.a. the price of him that was valued, whom B they bought of the children of Israel, and gaue them for the potters field, as ŷ lord appointed me. Jesus stode before the de-bity, and the debity asked him, saying: Art Mar.xv.a thou the kyng of the Jewes? Jesus sayth Lu.xxiii. a. vnto him: Thou saiest. And when he was Jh.xviii f accused of the chief Priestes and elders, he aunswered nothyng. Then saith Pylate vnto him: Hearest thou not how many witnesses they laie against thee? And Esa.liii.c he aunswered him to neuer a woorde, insomuch that the debitie maruayled greatly. At that feast, the debitie was wont to Mar.xv.a deliuer vnto the people a prisoner, whom they would desier. He had then a notable prisoner, called Barrabas. Therefore when they wer gathered together, Pylate saide: Whyther wyll ye that I geue loose vnto you, Barrabas, or Jesus, Mar.xv.a Joh.xviii g. whiche is called Christ? For he knew that for enuy they had deliuered him.
When he was set down to geue iudge-ment, his wyfe sent vnto hym, saying:

haue thou nothing to do with that iuste man. For I haue suffred many thinges Mar.xv.c this day in my slepe bicause of him. But Lu.xxiii.b the thief Priestes and elders perswaded C the people that they should aske Barra-bas, and destroy Jesus. The debitie answered, and sayd vnto them: Whither of the twaine wil ye that I let louse vnto you? They sayd: Barrabas. Pilate sayd Mar.iii.c vnto them: What shal I do then with Je-Mar.xv.a sus, which is called Christ? They also said vnto him, let him be crucified. The debi-tie said: What euil hath he done? But they cryed the more, saying: let him be crucified. When Pilate saw that he could preuaile nothing, but that more businesse was made, he toke water and washed his handes befor the people, saying: I am innocent of the bloud of this iust person, ye shall see. Then answered all the people, Actes.v.e and sayd: His bloud be on vs, and on our Mar.xv.a children. Then let he Barrabas louse Lu.xxiii.d vnto them, and scourged Jesus, and de-liuered him to be crucified.
Mar.xv.b Then the souldioures of the debitie toke Jesus into the commō hall, and gathered vnto him all the company. And they strip ped him, and put on him a purple robbe, & platted a crown of thornes, and put it vpon his head, & a reede in his right hand, and bowed the knee before him, and mocked him, saying: Haile king of ye Jewes.
And when they had spit vpon him, they toke the rede and smote him on the head.
And after that they had mocked him, they toke the robe of him again, and put his own raiment on him, and led him away to crucifie him. And as they came out, * Mar.xv.b they founde a man of Ciren named Si-Lu.xxiii.d mon, him they compelled to beare his Mar.xv.d crosse. And they came vnto ye place which Joh.xix.d is called Golgatha (that is to say, a place of dead mennes sculles) and gaue him vineger to drinke, mingled with gall. And when he had tasted therof, he would not drinke.
When they had crucified him, they parted his garments, and did cast lottes: that D it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Ps.xxii.d. the Prophet. They parted my garmētes Mar.xv.c among them, and vpon my vesture did Lu.xxiii.e they cast lottes. And they sat and wat-Lu.xxiii.e ched him there, and set vp ouer his head ye Joh.xix.d cause of his death written: This is Jesus the king of the Jewes.
Then were there two theues crucified with him, one on the right hande, and another on the left. They that passed by reuiled him wagging their heades, and Mar.xv.c saying: Thou that destroyest the temple Lu.xxiii.d of God, and buildest it in three dayes, Esai.liii.c saue thy selfe. If thou be the sonne of Mar.xv.c God, come down from the crosse. Like- Lu.xxiii.f wise also the hye Priestes, mocking hym E with the Scribes and elders, said: He sa- Sa.ii.b ued other, himselfe can he not saue. If he be the king of Israell, let him now come down from the crosse, and we will beleue him. He trusted in God, let him deliuer Ps.xxii.b him now if he will haue him, for he sayd: I am the sonne of God. The theues also which were crucified with him, cast the same in his teeth. From the sixth houre Mar.xv.c was there darkenesse ouer all the lande, Lu.xxiii.a vnto the ninth houre. And about ye ninth houre Jesus cryed with a loude voyce, Mar.xv.c saying: Eli, Eli, Lamasabathani. That Ps.xxii.a is to say my God my God, why hast thou F forsaken me? Some of them that stode Mar.xv.d there, when they hard that, sayd: This Joh.xix.f man calleth for Helias. And straighte way one of them ranne and toke a spong, and when he had filled it full of vineger, he put it on a rede, and gaue hym to drink Other sayd, let be, let vs see whither He-lias will come and deliuer him. Jesus when he had cryed againe with a loude voice, yelded vp the ghost.
And beholde the vaile of the temple Mar.xv.d did rent in two partes, from the top to the Lu.xxiii.f bottome, and the earth did quake, and the stones rent, and graues did open: and many bodies of Saintes which slept arose, and went out of the graues after his resurrection, and came into the holy citie:
and appeared vnto many. When the Cē-turion and they that were with him, wat- Mar.xv.d ching Jesus, saw the earth quake, and Lu.xxiii.g those thinges which happened, they feared greatly saying: Truely this was the sonne of God.
And many wemen were there (beholding him a farre of) which folowed Jesus from Galile, ministring vnto him. Among which was Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James and Joses, and the mother of Zebedes children. When the euen was come, ther came a riche man Mar.xv.d of Aramathia named Joseph, which also Lu.xxiii.g was Jesus disciple. He went to Pilate, & G begged the body of Jesus. Then Pilate Mar.xv.d commaunded the body to be deliuered. Lu.xxiii.g And when Joseph had taken the body, Joh.xix.g he wrapped it in a cleane linnen cloth, and layed it in his newe tombe, which he had hewen out, euen in the rocke, and rolled

Mar.xv.d a great stone to the doore of the sepulchre and departed. And there was Mary Magdalene and the other Mary sitting ouer against the sepulchre.
The next day that folowed the day of preparing, the hie Priestes and Pharises came together vnto Pilate, saying: Sir, we remember that this deceauer sayd Mat.xvi.c while he was yet aliue. After three dayes e.xvii.b. I wil rise again. Commaunde therefore Mar.ix.a that the sepulchre be made sure vntill the Lu.xviii, thirde day, least the disciples come and
f. steale him away, and say vnto the people he is risen from the dead, and the last error shalbe worse than the first. Pilate said vnto them: Ye haue the watch, goe your way, make it as sure as ye can, So they went, and made the sepulchre sure with yͤ watchmen, and sealed the stone.

¶ The.xxviii. Chapter.

¶ The resurrection of Christ. The hie Priestes geue the souldiars money to say that Christ was stollen oute of hys graue. Christ appeareth vnto his disciples and sendeth them forth to preache and to Baptise.

A Vpon an euening of the * Mat.xv, Sabbothes which daw-
a. neth the firste day of the Luke. Sabbothes, came Mary xxiiii, a. Magdalene, and yͤ other Joh, xx, a. Mary to see yͤ sepulchre.
And behold, there was a great earthquake. For the Angell of the Lord descended from heauen, and came & rolled backe the stone from the dore, and sat vpon it. His countenaunce was like lightening, and his raimēt white as snow.
And for feare of him the kepers were astonied, and became as dead men.
The Angell answered, and sayd vnto yͤ Mar.xvi, wemen feare ye not. For I know that ye
b. seke Jesus which was crucified he is not Luke. here: he is risen as he sayd. Come see the xxiiii.a. place where that the Lord was layd, and go quickly, and tel his disciples, that he is risen again from the dead. And behold, he goeth before you into Galile, there ye shal see him. Lo I haue told you.
B And they departed quickly from the se-Mar.xvi. pulchre, with feare and great ioy, and did b. run to bring his disciples worde. And as Lu xxiiii. they went to tel his disciples: behold, Jeb. sus met them, saying: Al haile. And they came, and held him by the fete, and worshipped him. Then sayd Jesus vnto them be not afrayd. Go tel my brethren, yͤ they go into Galile, and there shal they see me.

When they were gone, behold some of the kepers came into yͤ citie and shewed vn- C to the hye Priestes all the thinges that had happened. And they gathered them together with the elders, and toke counsell, and gaue large money vnto the souldiours, saying: Say ye, that his disciples came by night, and stole him away, while ye slept. And if this come to the rulers eares, we will persuade him, and saue you harmlesse. So they toke the money, and did as they were taught. And this saying is noysed among the Jewes vnto this day. ⁜ ⁜ Then the eleuen disciples went awaye D into Galile into a mountaine where Jesus had appointed them. And when they saw him, they worshipped him. But some doubted. And Jesus came and spake vn- Mar.xvi me in heauen, and in earth. Go ye therfor a. and teach all nations, Baptising them in the name of the father and of the sonne, & Mar.x of the holy ghost: Teaching them to ob- c.

Here endeth the Gospell of S. Mathew.

¶ The Gospel of S. Marke.

The first Chapter.

¶ The office of John the Baptist. The Baptisme of Christ, his fasting, his preaching, and the calling of Peter, Andrew, James, and John. Christ healeth the man with the vncleane spirite, helpeth Peters mother in law, and clenseth the leper.

A. Mal. iii. a. Mat. xi. b. Lu. vii. b. Esai. xl. a.

The beginning of the gospel of Jesu Christ the sonne of God, as it is written in ye Prophetes, * beholde I send my messenger before thy face which shall prepare thy way before thee. The voyce of a crier in ye wildernesse prepare ye the way of the lord, and make his pathes straight.

Mat. iii. a. Luk. iii. a. Mat. iii. b. Luk. i. i. c.

* John did baptise in the wildernesse, and preached the Baptisme of repentaunce, for the remission of sinnes. And all the land of Jury, and they of Jerusalem went out vnto him, and were all Baptised of him in ye riuer of Jordan, confessing their sinnes.

B. Mat. iii. a.

John was clothed with camels heare and with a girdle of a skin about his loynes. And he did eate locustes and wylde honye, and preached saying. * He that is stronger than I, commeth after me: whose shoe latchet I am not worthy to stowpe down, and vnlose. I haue Baptised you with water: but he shall Baptise you with the holy gost.

Mat. iii. b. Luk. iii. c. John. i. d.

* And it came to passe in those dayes that Jesus came from Nazareth of Galile: and was Baptised of John in Jordan. And assone as he was come vp out of the water he sawe heauen open, and the spirite descending vpon him like a doue. And there came a voyce from heauen: Thou art my deare sonne in whom I delite. And immediatly the spirite droue him into wyldernesse and he was there in the wildernesse forty dayes, and was tempted of Satan, and was with wilde beastes. * And the Angels ministred vnto him.

Mat. iii. c. Mat. iii. d. Mat. iii. b. xvii. & xvii. b. Mat. iiii. a. Esa. xlii. a. Mar. ix. a.

After that John was taken Jesus came into Galile preaching the Ghospell of the kingdome of God and saying. The time is come, and the kyngdome of God is at hande repente, and beleue the Ghospell.

Mat. iiii. b. Mat. iiii. c. Lu. iiii. b. Mat. iiii. b. Mat. iiii. a. Jer. xvi. c.

* As he walked by the sea of Galile, he saw Simon and Andrew hys brother, casting nettes into the sea, for they were fyshers. And Jesus sayd vnto them: folow me, and I wil make * you to become fishers of men. And streight waye, they forsoke their nettes and folowed him. And when he had gone a little further thence, he saw James the sonne of Zebede, and John his brother, which also were in the shippe mending their nettes. And anon he called them. And they lefte their father Zebede in the shippe with his hired seruauntes, and followed him. And they came into Capernaum: and streight way on the Sabboth dayes, he entred into the Sinagoge, and taught. And they were astonied at his learning.

Mat. iiii. b. C. Mat. vii. d. Lu. iiii. e. Mat vii. d. Lu. iiii. e.

* For he taught them as one that had authoritie, and not as the Scribes. And there was in their Sinagoge a man vexed with an vncleane spirite, and he cryed, saying: Alas, what haue we to doe with thee thou Jesus of Nazareth? Art thou come to destroy vs? I knowe thee what thou arte, euen that holy one of God. And Jesus rebuked hym saying: holde thy peace, and come oute of the man. And when the vncleane spirite had torne him, and cryed with a loude voyce, he came out of hym. And they were all amased, in so much that they demaunded one of another among themselues, saying: what thyng is this? What newe doctryne is thys? For with authoritie commaundeth he the foule spirites, and they obey him. And immediatly his fame spred abrode throughout all the regions borde-Mat. viii. b. ring on Galile. And forthwith, whē they were come out of the sinagoge, they en-Luk. iiii. f tred into the house of Simon and Andrew with James and John. But Simons mother in law lay sicke of a feuer.

And anon they tell him of her. And he came and toke her by the hande, and lifte her vp: and immediatly the feuer forsoke D her: and she ministred vnto them. And at euen when the sunne was downe, they brought vnto him all that were diseased, and them that were vexed with deuils.
And al the citie was gathered together at the doore, and he healed many that were sicke of diuerse diseases, * & cast out ma-Lu. iiii. g ny deuils, and suffered not the deuils to Mar. iii. b speake, bicause they knew him.
And in the morning very early, Jesus (when he was risen vp) departed, and went out into a solitary place, and there prayed. And Simon and they that were with him, folowed after hym. And when they had foūd him, they sayd vnto hym: al men seke for thee. And he sayd vnto them let vs goe into the nexte townes, that I preach there also, for therfore am I come.
And he preached in their sinagoges, in al Galile, & cast the deuils out. * And there came a leper to him, beseching him, and Mat. viii a kneling downe and saying vnto him, if Luk. v. c thou wilte thou canst make me cleane.
And Jesus had compassion on hym, and put forth his hand, touched him, and sayeth vnto hi: I wil, be þ cleane. And assone as he had spoke, immediatly þ leprosy departed frō him, & he sēt him away forthw and sayth vnto him. * See þ say nothing to any man, but get thee hēce, shew thy E selfe to the Priest, and offer for thy clensing, those thinges, which Moses commaunded, for a witnesse vnto them. But he (assone as he was departed) began to Mar. viii d tell many thinges, and to publish the saying: insomuch that Jesus could no more openly enter into the citie, but was without in desert places: And they came to him from euery quarter.

The second Chapter.

¶ He healeth the man of the palseye, calleth Leui the customer, eateth with open synners, and excuseth his disciples.

A AFter a fewe dayes also he entred into Capernaum againe, and it was noysed that he was in the house.
And anon many were gathered together insomuch that now there was no rowme to receaue them, no not so muche as aboute the doore. And he preached the worde vnto thē. * And they came vnto him, bringing Mat. ix. a, one sicke of the palsey which was borne Luke. v. d of foure men. And when they could not come nye vnto him for preace, they vncouered the roofe of the house, that he was in. And when they had broken vp the roofe, they did (with coordes) lett downe the bedde wherein the sicke of the palseye laye. When Jesus sawe their faith, he sayd vnto the sicke of the palsey: * sonne thy sinnes be forgeuen thee. But there Luke. v. d were certayne of the Scrybes syttyng B there, and thynking in theyr heartes: Esa. xliii. c.
Why doth he speake these blasphemyes? & xliiii. d.
Who can forgeue synnes, but God onely?
And immediatly when Jesus perceiued, in his spirite, that they so thought within themselues, he sayeth vnto them: why thinke ye suche thinges in your heartes?
Whether is it easier to saye to the sycke of the palsey, thy sinnes be forgeuen thee: or to saye, aryse, take vp thy bed, and walke? But that ye may knowe, that the sonne of man hath power in earth to forgeue sinnes, he spake vnto the sycke of the palsey: I saye vnto thee: aryse, Mat. ix. a. and take vp thy bed, and get thee hence, Luke. v. e vnto thine owne house. John. v. b And immediatly he arose, toke vp the bed, and went forth before them all: in somuch that they were al amased, and glorified god, saying: we neuer saw it on this fashion.
* And he wente againe vnto the sea, Mat. ix. a. and all the people resorted vnto hym, and he taught them. And as Jesus passed by, he sawe Leui the sonne of Alphe, sitting at the receite of custome, and sayd vnto hym: folowe me. And he arose, and folowed him. And it came to passe, that when Jesus sate at meate in his house, many Publicanes and synners sate also together at meate with Jesus and hys disciples. For there were many, that folowed him. And when the Scribes and Phariseis sawe hym eate with Publy-cans and synners, they sayde vnto hys disciples: howe happeneth it, that he eateth and drynketh wyth Publycans and synners? When Jesus heard that, he sayd vnto them: They that be whole, haue no nede of the Phisition, but they that are sicke. * I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentaunce.
And the disciples of Johnand the Pha- I. Tim. i. c rises

rises did fast: and they come, and say vnto Mat.ix.b Luk.v.f him: Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharises fast, but thy disciples faste not? And Jesus sayd vnto them: can the children of the wedding fast while the bridegrome is with them? As long as they haue the brydegrome with thē, they can not fast. But the daies wil come, whē the bridegrome shalbe taken away from them, and then shall they faste in those dayes.
No man also soweth a piece of newe cloth vnto an old garment, els taketh he away the newe piece therof from the old, and so is the rent worse. And no mā powreth newe wine into olde botels: els the new wine doth burst the botels, and the wine runneth out, and the bottels are marred. But new wine must be put into new botels.
And it chaunced (againe) that he went D thorow the corne feldes on the Sabboth Mat.xii.a Luk.vi.a dayes, and his disciples began by ẏ waye to pluck the eares of corne. And the Pharises sayd vnto hym: behold, why do they on the Sabboth dayes, that which is not lawful? And he sayd vnto them: haue ye neuer red what Dauid did, when he had nede, and was an hungred, both he, and they that were with him? How he wēt in-
i. Kinges xxi.b. to the house of God, in the dayes of Abiathar the hie Priest, and did eate the shew bread (which is not lawfull to eate, but for the Priestes onely) and gaue also to them which were with him? And he sayd vnto them: the Sabboth was made for man, and not mā for the Sabboth. Therfore is the sonne of man Lord also of the Sabboth.

The third Chapter.

¶ He helpeth the man with the dried hand, choseth his Apostles, and casteth out the vncleane spirite, which the Pharises ascribe vnto the deuil. The brother, syster & mother of Christ.

Mat.xii.a Luk.vi.a AND he entred again into the sinagoge, and there was a man there whiche had a * withered hande.
And they watched him, whether he would heale him on ẏ Sabboth day, that they might accuse him. And he sayd vnto the mā which had ẏ withered hand: arise, and stande in the middes. And he sayth vnto them: whether is it lawful to do good on the Sabboth dayes, or to do euell? to saue lyfe, or to kill? But they held their peace. And when he had loked roūd about on them with anger, mourning on the blindnesse of their heartes, he sayeth Mat.xii.b to ẏ man: *stretch forth thy hand. And he Luk.vi.b stretched it out, and his hande was resto- 3. Kinges xiii.b. red, euen as whole as the other.
And the Pharises departed, & straight Mat.xii.b way gathered a coūcel (with thē that belonged to Herode) against him, that they might destroy him. But Jesus auoyded Mat.iiii.d with his disciples to the sea. And a great Lu.vi.c. multitude folowed him from Galile, and Mat.xiii from Jewry, and from Jerusalem, and Lu.ix.c. from Idumea, & from beyond Jordan, * Joh.vi.a and they ẏ dwelled about Tyre & Sidō, a B great multitude of men: which (whē they had heard what things he did) came vnto him. And Jesus cōmaūded his disciples that a ship should wait on him, bicause of the people, least they should throng him.
For he had healed many, in somuch ẏ they preased vpon him, for to touche him, as many as had plages. And when the vncleane spirites saw him, they fel down before him, and cryed saying: thou art the sonne of God. And he straitly charged them, ẏ they shuld not make him knowe.
And he went vp into a moūtain, & called vnto him whom he would, and they came vnto him. And he ordeined the .xii. ẏ they should be with him, & ẏ he might send thē Mat.x.a. forth to preach: and ẏ they might haue po- C wer to heale sicknesses, & to cast out deuils.
And he gaue vnto Simō to name Peter.
And he called James ẏ sone of Zebede & John James brother, and gaue them to name Boanarges, which is to say, ẏ son-nes of thōder. And Andrew & Philip, & Bartholomew, & Mathew, & Thomas, & James ẏ sone of Alphe, & Thaddeus, & Simon of Canaan, & Judas Iscarioth, which also betrayed him. And they came into ẏ house, & ẏ people assēbled together again, so ẏ they had not leasure, so muche as to eate bread. And whē they ẏ belonged vnto him heard of it, they went out to lay handes vpō him. For they sayd: he is mad. And ẏ Scribes which came downe frō Jerusalē, sayd: he hath Belzebub, & by the chief deuil, casteth he out deuils. And Mat.ix.d. and.xii.b. he called thē vnto him, & sayd vnto them Lu.xi.b. in parables. How cā Satā driue out Sa- D

The fourth Chapter.

¶ The parable of the sower. Christ stilleth the tempeste of the sea, which obeyed him.

A And he began againe, to teach by the sea side. And there gathered together vnto him much people, so greatly þ he entred into a ship* & sat in þ sea, & all þ Mat.xiii.a. people was by þ sea side on the shore. And he taught them many thinges by parables, and sayd vnto them in his doctrine: Herken to: beholde *there Lu.viii.a went out a sower to sow. And it fortuned as he sowed, that some fell by the way side, and the foules of the ayre came, and deuoured it vp: some fell on stony groūd where it had not much earth, and imme-diatly sprang vp, bicause it had not depth of earth: but as sone as the sunne was vp it caught heat: and bicause it had not roting, it withered away. And some fell among thornes, and the thornes grew vp and choked it, and it gaue no fruite. And some fel vpon good grounde, & did yelde fruite that sprang vp, & grewe, & brought forth, some thirty fold, and some sixty fold and some an hundred folde. And he sayde vnto them: he that hath eares to heare, let him heare.

And when he was alone, they that wer about him with the.xii. asked him of the mat.xiii. b. parable. And he sayd vnto thē: *To you is it geuen to knowe the mystery of the kingdom of god. But vnto them that are without, al thinges happen by parables: that when they see, they may see, and not B discerne: and when they heare, *they may Lu.viii.b Esa.vi.c then wil ye know all other parables? Ac.xxviii. f.

*The sower soweth the word. And they Ro.xi.b.

immediatly, and taketh away the worde that was sowen in their heartes. And like wise the other that receiue sede into the stony ground, are they, which when they heare the worde, at once receiue it with gladnesse, yet haue no roote in thēselues, and so endure but a time: and anone whē trouble & persecution ariseth for þ wordes sake, they fal immediatly. There be other also, that receiue sede into thornes, and those are such as heare the word, and the cares of this world, and þ deceitfulnesse of richesse, & the lustes of other thynges, enter in, and choke the worde, and it is made vnfruitfull: and other there be, that haue receiued seede into a good ground, they are such that heare the word, and receaue it, so that one corne doth brig forth thirty, some sixty, some an hundred.
And he sayd vnto them: *is the candel

And he sayd: so is the kingdom of God, and.xix.d euen as *if a man should sow sede in the mat.xiii.d mat.xiii.d ground and should slepe, & ryse vp nyght and day, and the sede should spring and grow vp, while he is not aware. For the earth bringeth forth fruit of her self: first the blade, then the eare, after that the ful corne in the eare. But whē the fruite is brought forth, anone he thrusteth in the sicle, bicause the haruest is come.
And he sayd: whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it? *It is Mat.xiii. d. lyke Lu.xiii.d

like a grain of mustardsede, which when it is sowen in the earth, is lesse than al sedes that be in the earth: when it is sowen it groweth vp, and is greater than all herbes: and beareth great braunches, so that the foules of ye aire may make their nestes, vnder the shadow of it.

Mat.xiii.c *And with many such parables spake he the word vnto them, after as they might heare it. But without a parable spake he nothing vnto them. But when they were

Mat.xiii.c alone, *he expounded all thinges to his disciples. And thesame day when euen was come, he said vnto them: let vs passe ouer vnto the other syde. And they left ye people, and toke him euen as he was in the ship. And there were also with him other shippes.

Mat.viii.c *And there arose a great storme of wind, and the waues dashed into ye ship,

Lu.viii.c so that it was now ful. And he was in the D sterne a slepe on a pilow. And they awaked him, and sayd vnto hym: Master, carest thou not, that we perishe? And he arose vp, and rebuked the wind, and sayd vnto the sea: peace be stil. And the windes ceased, and there folowed a great calme. And he sayd vnto them: why are ye so fearefull? How happeneth it that ye haue no faythe? And they feared exceadingly, & said one to another who is this? For both winde and sea obey hym.

The fifth Chapter. ✠

¶ Christ delivereth the possessed from the vncleane spirite, the woman from the bloudy yssue, and rayseth the captaines daughter.

A Mat.viii.d Lu.viii.d AND they came *ouer to the other side of the sea, into the coũtrey of the Gaderenits. And when he was come out of the ship, immediatly there met him out of the graues a man possessed of an vncleane spirite, which had his abiding among the graues. And no man could binde him, no not with cheines, bicause that when he was often bounde with fetters and cheynes, he plucked the cheines a sunder, and brake the fetters in peces. Neither could any man tame him. And alwayes night and day he was in the mountaines and in the graues, crying and beating himself with stones. But when he had spyed Jesus a farre of, he ran, and worshipped him, and cryed with Actes xvi.c hiest God, I require thee in the name of God, that thou torment me not. For he sayd vnto him: come out of the man thou foule spirite. And he asked him: what is thy name? And he answered and sayd vnto him: my name is Legion, for we are many. And he prayed him instantly that he would not sende them away out of the countrey.

B Mat.viii.d Lu.viii.d But there was there nye vnto the mountaines *a great heerd of swine feding, & all the deuils besought him, saying: sende vs into the heerd of swine, that we may enter into them. And anon Jesus gaue them leaue. And ye vncleane spirites went out, and entred into the swine. And the heerd was caried hedlong into the sea: They were almost two M. & were drowned in ye sea. And ye swineheerds fled, and tolde it vnto the citye, and in the fieldes. And they went out for to see, what had happened: and came to Jesus, and sawe him that was vexed with the fiende and had the Legion, sit, both clothed & in hys right minde, and they were afrayd. And they that saw it tolde them, how it had happened to him that was possessed with the deuil: and also of the swine. *And they

Lu.viii.e began to pray him, that he would depart out of their coast. ✠

Mat.viii.d *And when he was come into the shipp he that had the deuill prayed him, that he might be with hi. Howbeit, Jesus would not suffer him, but sayd vnto him: goe to thine own house and to thy frendes and shew them how great thinges the Lord hath done for thee, and how he hath had compassion on thee. And he departed, and begã to publish in the .x. cities, how great thinges Jesus had done for him, and all men did meruaile.

And whẽ Jesus was come ouer againe by ship vnto the other syde, muche people gathered vnto him, and he was nie vnto the sea. *And behold, there came one of

Mat.ix.c Lu.viii.f the rulers of the Sinagoge, whose name was Jairus: and when he saw him, he fell down at his fete, and besoughte hym greatly, saying: my daughter lyeth at point of death, I pray thee come and lay thy hand on her, that she may be safe and liue. And he went with him, and muche people folowed him, and thronged hym. *And there was a certain womã, which

Mat.ix.c Lu.viii.f had bene diseased of an yssue of bloud .xii. yeares, and had suffred many thynges of many Phisitions, and had spent all ye she had, and felt none amendment at all, but rather was worse and worse. When she had heard of Jesus, she came in the preace behind him, and touched his garmēt. For she sayd: if I may but touche his clothes, I shalbe whole. And streight way ŷ foūtayne of her bloud was dryed vp, and she felt in her body, that she was healed of ŷ plage. And Jesus immediatly feling in himselfe, that vertue proceded from him, turned him about in the preace, and sayd: who touched my clothes. And his disciples sayd vnto him: thou seest the people thrust thee, and askest thou who did touch me: And he loked rounde about for to see her that had done this thing. But ŷ woman fearing and trembling (knowing what was done within her) came and fel down before hym and tolde him all the Lu.iiii.g, truth. And he sayd vnto her: daughter * D thy fayth hath saued thee: go in peace, and mat.ix.e. be whole of the plage.

Lu.viii.g *While he yet spake, there came from the ruler of the Sinagoges house, certayne which said: thy daughter is dead: why dis-easest thou the master any further? Assone as Jesus heard ŷ word that was spoken, he said vnto ŷ ruler of ŷ sinagoge be not afrayd, only beleue. And he suffred no mā to folow him, saue Peter and James, & mat.ix.c. John the brother of James. * And he Lu.viii.g came vnto the house of the ruler of the Sinagoge, and saw the wondring, and them that wept and wailed greatly, and went in and sayd vnto them: why make ye this a do, and wepe? The damosell is not dead, but slepeth. And they laughed him to scorne. But he put thē al out, and taketh the father and the mother of the damosell, and them that were with him, and entred in where the damosel lay, and taketh the damosell by the hande, & sayth vnto her: Tabita cumi, which is (if one do interprete it) damosell I say vnto thee, arise: And streight way the damosel arose, and walked. For she was of the age of .xii. yeres. And they wer astonied out of measure. And he charged thē straightly, that no man should know of it, and commaūded to geue her meate.

out and preached, that men should repēt and they cast out many deuils: and anointed many that were sicke with oyle, and Mat.xiiii, healed them. *And king Herode heard of Lu.ix.a. him (for his name was spred abrode) and he sayd: John Baptist is risen again frō the dead, & therfore miracles ar wrought by hym. Other sayd: it is Helias, some sayd: it is a Prophete as one of the Prophetes. But when Herode heard of hym, he sayd: it is John whom I beheaded, he is risen from death againe. C

⊢ For Herode himselfe had sent foorth men of warre, and layed handes vpon John and bounde hym, and cast him into pryson for Herodias sake hys brother her.) For John sayd vnto Herode: *It Le.xviii.

could not. For Herode feared John, knoheard him gladly. And when a conue-hye captayns, and chief estates of Galile, & when the daughter of the same Herodi-

& them that sate at bourde also: the kyng saide vnto the Damsell: aske of me what thou wilt, and I wyll geue it thee. * And mat,xiiij, a. he sware vnto her: whatsoeuer thou shalte aske of me I will geue it thee, euen vnto the one half of my kyngdome. And she went foorth, & sayd vnto her mother: what shall I aske? she sayd: John Baptistes head. And she came in streight way with hast vnto the kyng, and asked, saying: I will, that thou geue me by & by in a charger, the head of John Baptist. And the king was sorye: howbeit for his othes sake, and for their sakes whiche satte at supper also, he would not caste her of.
And immediately the king sent the hangman, and commaunded his head to bee C brought in.
And he went & beheaded him in the pri-sone, and brought his head in a charger, and gaue it to the Damsel, and the Dam-sell gaue it to her mother. And when his Disciples heard of it, they came, and toke vp his body, and laid it in a graue.
And the Apostles gathered themselues together vnto Jesus, and tolde him all thinges, bothe what they had doone, and what they had taught. And he saide vnto mat,xiiij, b. them *come ye alone out of the waye into Luk.ix.b, the wildernesse, & rest a while. For there Joh.vi.a. were many commers and goers, & they had no leysure so muche as to eate. mat,xiiij, b. * And he went by ship out of the waye into a desert place. And the people spyed them when they departed: & many knewe him, & ranne a foote thither out of all cities, and came thither before them, & came together vnto him. And Jesus went out mat,ix,d, e,xiiij,b, & saw much people, *& had compassion on time is farre passed, lette them depart that they may go into the countrey round about, and into the townes, and bye them breade, for they haue nothyng to eate. He aunswered and saide vnto them: geue ye them to eate. And they said vnto him: shall we go and bye two hundreth penyworth of bread, and geue them to eate? He said vnto them: *how many loa- mat,viiii a ues haue ye? Go and loke. And whe they had serched, they said, fiue, and two fishes.

And he commaunded them, to make the all sitte downe by companyes vppon the grene grasse. And they sat downe here a row and there a row, by hundreds, and by fifties.
And when he had taken the fiue loues & the two fishes, & looked vp to heauen, he blessed and brake the loues, and gaue them to his Disciples, to set before them: & the two fishes deuided he among them all. And they all did eate & wer satisfied.
And they tooke vp twelue baskettes full thereof, and of the fishes. And they that dyd eate, were about fiue thousande men.
*And streightway he caused his Dysci- F ples to go into the shyp, and to go ouer mat xiiii c the sea before vnto Bethsaida, while he sent away the people. * And as soone mat,xiiij, as he had sent them away, he departed c, into a mountayne to pray. And when Joh,vi, b euen was come, the ship was in the myd-des of the sea, and he alone on the land, and he saw them troubled in rowing, for the wynd was contrary vnto them. And about the fourth watche of the nyght, he came vnto them, walkyng vpon ye sea, and would haue passed by them. But when they saw hym walkyng vppon the sea, they supposed it had bene a spirite, and cryed out, for they all saw hym and were afraid. And anone he talked wyth them & said vnto them: be of good chere, it is I: be not afraid. * And he wet vp vn- mat,xiiij, they wer sore amased in theselues beyond measure, & maruayled. For they remem-bred not of the loaues, because their hart was blinded.

The seuenth Chapter

The disciples eate with vnwasshen handes. The cõ-maundement of God is transgressed by mennes traditions. Of the Woman of Syrophenissa. Of the Sabboth.

Mat.xv.a AND* the Pharises came together vnto hym, and dy-uerse of ye Scribes which came from Ierusalem. And when they sawe certaine of his Disciples eate breade with commen (that is to say with vnwas-shen handes,) they complayned. For the Pharises and all the Iewes, except they washe their handes often, eate not, obseruyng the traditions of the elders. And when they come from the market, except they wash they eate not. And many other thinges there be, which they haue taken vpon them to obserue, as the washyng of cuppes and cruses, and brasen vessels, & of tables.
Then asked him the Pharises & Scri-B bes: why walke not thy Disciples accor-dyng to the custome, ordayned by the elders, but eate breade with vnwashen handes? He answered and said vnto them: Esa.xxix.b. wel prophecied Esaias of you Ypocrites, as it is written: *This people honoureth Mat.xv.a me with their lippes, but theyr heart is farre from me: howbeit, in vayne do they serue me, teaching the doctrines & commaundementes of men. For ye lay the commaundement of god aparte, and ob-serue the constitutiõs of men, as the washyng of cruses and of cups, and many other such like thinges ye do.
And he said vnto them: wel, ye caste aside the commaundement of god to maintain your own constitutions. *For Moses said: honor thy father & thy mother: & Exo.xxi.b *whoso curseth father or mother, let him Deu.v.b. dye the death. But ye say: a man shall say Eph.vi.a to his father or mother, Corban: whiche Exo.xx.b is, what gift so euer commeth frõ me, shal Leu.xx.b. be for thy profit. And so ye suffer hym no Pro.xx.c more to doe oughte for his father or his mother, and make the worde of God of none effect, through your own constitutiõ which ye haue ordeined. And many suche C thinges do ye.
And when he had called all the people vnto him, he said vnto them: herken vnto Mat.xv.b me, euery one of you, & vnderstãd. *Ther is nothing without a man that can defile him, when it entreth into him: but the thinges which procede out of a man those are they that defile the man. If any man haue eares to heare, let hym heare. And when he came into the house away from the people, his disciples asked him of ye similitude. And he said vnto thẽ, are ye also so greatly without vnderstanding? Do ye not yet perceyue, that whatsoeuer thing from withoute entreth into a man, it can not defyle hym, because it entreth not into his hart, but into the belly, & goeth out into the draught, purging out al meates.
And he saide, that whiche commeth out of a man defileth the man. For frõ within euen out of the heart of men, procede euel thoughtes, aduoutrye, fornication, mur-ther, theft, couetousnesse, fraude, deceyte, vnclennesse, a wicked eye, blasphemyes, pride, folishnesse: al these euell things com Mat.xv.b from within, and defile a man. *And frõ thence he rose, and went into the borders of Tyre and Sidon: and entred into an house, & would that no man shoulde haue knowen. But he could not be hid. For a certaine woman (whose daughter had a foule spirit) as soone as she heard of him, came & fel at his feete. The woman was a Greke out of the nation of Syrophenis-tia, and she besought hym, that he would cast out the deuel from her daughter. But Iesus said vnto her: let the children fyrst be fed. For it is not mete, to take the childrens bread, and to cast it vnto whelpes.
She answered and said vnto him: euen so lord, *neuerthelesse the whelpes also eate Mat.xv.c vnder the table of the childrens croumes. D And he said vnto her: for this saying goe thy way, the Deuell is gone oute of thy daughter. And when she was come home to her house she found that the deuel was departed, and her daughter lying on the bed.
 And he departed agayne from the Mat.xv.c costes of Tire & Sidon, & came vnto the sea of Galile, through the middes of the Mat.xv.c coastes of the.x.cities. *And thei brought vnto him one yt was deaf and had an impediment in his speache, and they prayed him to put his hand vpon hym. And whẽ he had taken hym asyde from the people, he put his fingers into his eares, and dyd spit, and touched his tong, and looked vp to heauen, and sighed, and said vnto him: Ephata, that is to saye, bee opened. And streight way his eares were opened, and the stryng of his tong was losed, and he spake playn. *And he commaunded them Mar.xi.d. that thei should tel no man. But the more he forbad them, so much the more a great deale they published, saying: he hath done

done all thynges well, he hath made both the deaf to heare, & the dumme to speak.

The eight Chapter.

¶ The miracle of the seuen loues. The Pharises aske a signe. The leuen of the Pharises. The blind receaueth his sight.

A mat.xv.d
IN those daies whē there was a great companye, & had nothing to eate, Jesus called his Disciples to him, & said vnto them: I haue compassion on ẏ people, because thei haue now bene with me thre daies & haue nothyng to eate: & if I send them away fastyng to their owne houses, they shall faint by the Esai.lx.a way. * For diuerse of them came frō far.
Lo.xiii.b And his disciples aunswered vnto hym: where should a man haue bread here in ẏ wyldernesse to satisfie these? And he asked them, how many loues haue ye? Thei said: seuen. And he commaunded the people to sit downe on the grounde. And he tooke the seuen loaues: & whē he had geuen thankes, he brake, & gaue to his Disciples to set before them. And they did set them before the people. And they had a few smal fishes. And when he had blessed he commaunded them also to be set before them. And they did eate & were suffyced. And they tooke vp of the broken meate ẏ was left, seuen baskets ful. And thei that did eate were about foure thousand. And he sent them away.

B And anone he entred into a ship with mat. xvi. a. his Disciples, & came into the parties of Dalmanutha. * And the Pharises came Luk.xi.d foorth & beganne to dyspute with hym, Joh.vi.d seking of him a signe from heauen, tempting him. And when he had syghed in his spirite, he saieth: why doth this generation seke a signe? Verely I saye vnto you, there shal no signe be geuen vnto this generation. And he left them & went into ẏ ship again, and departed ouer the water.

And they had forgotten to take bread with them, neither had they in the shyppe with them more than one loafe. And he mat xvi b charged them, saying. * Take hede, be-Lu.xii.a ware of the leuē of the Pharises, & of the leuē of Herode. And they reasoned amōg themselues, saying: we haue no bread. And Jesus knew it, & saith vnto thē: Why take ye thoughte, because ye haue no bread? perceiue ye not yet neyther vnderstande? Haue ye your heart yet blynded? Haue ye eyes, & see not? & haue ye eares, and heare not? Do ye not also remember?
* When I brake fyue loaues among fyue mat.xiiii. c.

mong foure thousande, howe manye baskets of the leauynges of the broken meat tooke ye vp? They said seuen. And he said vnto them: how happeneth it that ye doe not vnderstand?

And he came to Bethsaida, and they brought a blynde man vnto him, & de- C sired hym to touche hym. And he caught the blynde by the hande & led him out of the towne: and when he had spit in hys eyes, and put his handes vppon hym, he asked him if he saw ought. And he looked vp & saide: I see the men, for I perceiue them walke as they were trees. After that he put his handes again vppon his eyes, & made hym see. And he was restored, & sawe euery man clearlye. And he sent hym home to his house, saying: neither go into the towne, nor tel it to any in the towne.

* And Jesus went out, and his Disci- mat.xvi ples into the townes that long to the citie Luk.ix. called Cesarea Philippi. And by the way he asked his Disciples, saying vnto them: whom doe men say that I am? And they aunswered: some saie that thou art Ihon Baptiste, & some saye Helyas. Agayne some saye thou arte one of the number of the Prophetes. And he saide vnto them: But whom say ye that I am? Peter aunswereth & saieth vnto him: * thou art ve- mat xvi ry Christ. And he charged them, that they Luk.ix. should tell no man of hym. And he began Joh.vi. to teache them * howe that the sonne of D man must suffer many thynges, & bee re- mat.xvi proued of the elders, & of the hie priestes, and.xx.
& Scribes, and be kylled, and after thre Luk.ix. daies rise again. And he spake that saying openly.

And Peter tooke him asyde, and began to chyde hym. But he tourned aboute, and looked on his Disciples, and rebuked Peter, saying: Goe after me Sathan. For thou sauorest not the thynges that bee of God, but the thynges that bee of men.

* And when he had called the people mat xvi vnto him with his Disciples also, he sayde and.x. vnto them: Whosoeuer will folowe me, Luk.ix. let him forsake himselfe, and take vp his ano.xiiii. crosse, and folow me. For whosoeuer wyll saue his life, shall lose it. But whosoeuer shal lose his life for my sake & the gospels, the

the same shal saue it. For what shal it pro-fite a man if he win al the world, and lose his owne soule? or what shall a man geue to redeme his owne soule with all agayne?
Mat.x.e. Lu.xii.b. ✣Whosoeuer therfore shall be ashamed of me & of my wordes, in this aduouterous and sinful generation: of him also shal the sonne of man be ashamed, when he commeth in the glory of his father with ye ho-

The ninth Chapter. ✠

¶ The transfiguration. The Lunatike is healed. The disputation who should be the greatest. Offences are forbidden.

A Mat.xvi. d. Luk.ix.c. And he saide vnto them: verely I saie vnto you: ✣ There are some among them, that stande here, whiche shall not taste of death, till they haue seen the kingdom of god come with power.
Mat.xvii. Lu.ix.c. ✣And after sixe dayes Jesus taketh Peter and James, and John, & ledeth them vp into an hye mountaine out of the way alone. & he was transfigured before thē.
And his raiment did shyne and became very white, euen as snowe: so white as no fuller can make vpon the earth. And ther appeared vnto them Helias with Moses and they talked with Jesu. And Peter answered, and sayth to Jesu. Maister, here is good being for vs: let vs make also .iii. tabernacles, one for thee, one for Moses, and one for Helias. For he wist not what he said, for they were afrayde. And there was a cloud that shadowed them. And a Mat.iii.d. xvii.b. voice came out of ye cloude, saying: ✣ This Lu.iii.c. is my beloued sonne heare hym. And so-and .ix.e. deinly when they had looked round about Mark.i.b. they saw no man more than Jesus onely Esa.xlii.a with them.
Mathew. xvii.b. ✣And as they came down from the hyll Mark.i.d he charged them, that they should tell no man those thynges that they had seen tyll the sonne of man were rysen from death agayne. And they kept that saying with them, and demaunded one of another, what the risyng from death again should meane: And they asked hym, saying: why then say the Scribes that Heli-B as must first come? He answered and said Mal.iiii.b vnto them: ✣Helias verely when he commeth first, restoreth all thynges. And the Esa.liii.a sonne of man (as it is ✣ written of hym) shall suffer many thinges, and be sette at nought. But I saye vnto you that Helyas is come, and they haue done vnto hym whatsoeuer they woulde, as it is written of him. And whē he came to his disciples, he sawe much people about them, and the Scribes disputing with thē. And streight way al the people (when thei beheld him) were amased and ran to him, and saluted him. And he asked the Scribes, what dispute ye among them? C ✣✣And one of the companye aunswe- Mat.xvii. c. red and sayde: Mayster, I haue brought vnto thee my sonne, which hath a dumme Luk.ix.e spirite. And whensoeuer he taketh hym, he teareth hym, and he fometh, and gna-sheth with his teeth, and pyneth awaye.
And I spake to thy Disciples that they should cast him out, and they coulde not.
He aunswereth him and sayeth: O faythlesse nation, how long shal I be with you?
How long shall I suffer you? Bring hym vnto me. And thei brought him vnto him.
And as soone as the spirite sawe hym, he tare him. And he fell down on the ground walowyng and foming. And he asked his father, how long is it ago, since this hapned him? And he said: of a childe, and ofte tymes it hath cast him into the fyre & into the water to destroy hym. But if thou canst do any thing, haue mercy on vs and help vs. Jesus saide vnto him: if thou couldest Mat.xvii d. beleue ✣ all thinges are possible to hym that beleueth. And streight way ye father of the chylde cryed with teares, saying: Lorde, I beleue, helpe thou myne vnbelief.
When Jesus saw that the people came D running together vnto hym, he rebuked the foule spirite, saying vnto hym: Thou dumme and deafe spirite, I charge thee come out of him, and enter no more into him: And the spirite (when he had cryed & rente him sore) came out of hym, and he was as one that had bene dead, insomuch that many sayde: he is dead. But Jesus caught his hand & lifte him vp: & he rose. Mat.xvii. d.
And when he was come into the house ✳ his disciples asked him secretly: why could not we cast hym oute? And he sayde vnto them, this kynde can come foorth by nothyng, but by praier and fasting. ✣ ✣And they departed thence, & tooke theyr iourney through Galile, & he would not ye any man should knowe it. For he taughte E his disciples, & said vnto them: ✣ the sonne Mat.xvii d of mā shalbe deliuered into the handes of Luk.ix.e. men, and thei shal kill him: and after that he is killed: he shall ryse agayn the thyrd day. But they wist not what he saide, and were afrayde to aske hym. And he came to to Capernaum. And when he was come into the house, he asked them: what was it that you disputed among youre selues by the way? And they helde theyr peace, for by the way they had reasoned among themselues who should be the chiefest.

And when he was set downe, he called the twelue to hym, and sayd vnto them: if any man desier to be first, thesame shall Mat.xviii. a. be last of al, and seruaunt to all. * And he Luk.ix.f. tooke a child, and set him in the middes of them: and when he had taken hym in his armes, he said vnto them: whosoeuer receiueth any suche a childe in my name, receiueth me. And whosoeuer receiueth me receiueth not me, but him that sent me.
F John answered him, saying: * Master, we saw one cast out deuels in thy name, and he foloweth not vs: and we forbad him, because he foloweth vs not. But Je-i.Cor.xii. c. sus said: forbid him not. For * there is no mā which (if he do a miracle in my name) can lightly speake euel of me. For he that is not against vs, is on our part.
Math.x.d. * Whosoeuer shall in my name geue you long to Christ, verely I saye vnto you: he Mat.xviii. a. shall not lose his rewarde. * And whosoeuer shall offende one of these litle ones, that beleue in me, it were better for hym, if a milstone wer hanged about his neck, and he were cast into the sea.

Mat.xviii. b. * Wherefore yf thy hand hynder thee, cut it of. It is better for thee, to enter into life maymed, than (hauyng two handes) G to goe into hell, into fier that neuer shall Esa.lxvi. g. be quenched, where * there worme dyeth not, and the fier goeth not out. And if thy foote be an hynderaunce vnto thee, cutte ched: where their worme dyeth not, and Math.v.e. the fier goeth not out. * And if thyne eye hynder thee, plucke it out. It is better for thee to go into the kyngdome of God with one eye, than (hauing two eyes) to be cast into hell fyer: where there worme dyeth not, and the fyer goeth not out.

Leui.ii.b. Euery man shalbe salted with fier. * And Mat.v.b. euery sacrifice shalbe seasoned with salte.
Lu.xiiii g. * Salt is good. But if the salte be vnsauory, what shall ye season therwith? haue salt in youre selues: & haue peace among your selues one with another.

went into ye coastes the people resorted as he was wont, he taught them agayn. And the Pharises came, and asked him: Is it lawfull for a man to put away his wyfe, to proue hym?

And he aunswered, & said vnto them: * De.xxiiii. a. what did Moses bid you doe? & they sayd Moses suffred to wryte a testimoniall of Mat.xix a.

And in the house his Disciples asked him those that brought them. But when Jevnto them: Suffer the chyldren to come him: master, all these haue I obserued fro him, & saide vnto him: one thing ye lackest.

Mat. xix. b Lu. xviii. d.
*Go thy way, sell all that thou hast, and geue to the poore, & thou shalt haue treasure in heauen, and come, and folow me, and take vp my crosse vpō thy shoulders. But he was discomforted bycause of that saying, and went away mourning, for he had great possessions.

Mat. xix. c Lu. xviii. c.
And whē Jesus had loked round about he said vnto his disciples. *Howe vneasy shal they that haue money, enter into the kingdome of god. And the disciples were astonied at his wordes. But Jesus answereth again, and saith vnto them: children, howe hard is it for them that trust in money, to enter into the kingdome of God? It is easier for a camel to go thorow the eye of a nedle, than for the ryche to enter into the kingdom of God. And they were astonied out of measure, saying betwene themselues: who thē can be saued? Jesus loked vpon them, and said: with men it is vnpossible, but not with God: for *with God all thinges are possible.

And the third day he shall rise again.

Mat. xx. c.
*And James and John ẏ sonnes of Zebede came vnto him, saying: Maister, we would ẏ thou shouldest do for vs whatsoeuer we desire. He said vnto them: what would ye ẏ J should do for you? They said vnto him: graunt vnto vs, that we may sit, one on thy right hande, & the other on thy left hande, in thy glory. But Jesus said vnto thē: ye wote not what ye aske, Mat. xx. d Lu. xviii. g.

And they came to Jericho: *And as he went out of the citie of Jericho wyth his disciples, and a great number of people: blinde Bartimeus the sonne of Timeus sat by the hye waies side, begging. And when he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to crie, and saye: Jesus thou sonne of Dauid haue mercy on me. And many rebuked him, ẏ he should hold his peace. But he cried the more a greate deale: thou sōne of Dauid haue mercy on me. And Jesus stode still, and commaunded hym to be called: and they called the blind, saying vnto him: be of good cōfort: rise, he calleth thee. And he threwe away his cloke, and rose, and came to Jesus. And Jesus answered, and said vnto him, what wilt thou that J do vnto thee? The blinde said vnto him: Master, ẏ J myght see. Jesus said vnto him: go thy way, thy faith hath saued thee. And immediatly he receiued his sight, and folowed Jesus in the way.

where two wayes met, & they losed hym.
And diuerse of them that stode there, said vnto them: * what doe ye losing the colt?
Joh.xii.b. And they said vnto them, euen as Jesus

And they brought the colte to Jesus and

And the Lord entred into Jerusalem a figgetree a farre of, hauing leaues, he came to see, if he mighte finde any thyng nothing but leaues: for the time of figges said vnto the figge tree: neuer man eate standeth. And his disciples heard it.

they feared him, because all the people marualled at his doctrine. And when euē

* And in the mornyng as they passed by,

And Jesus answered & saide vnto them: haue confidence in God. * Verely I saye

And they came agayne to Jerusalem.
* And as he walked in the temple, there Luk xx.a. came to him the hie Priestes and the Mat.xxi.c Scribes, and the Elders, and saide vn-

The baptisme of John, whither was it they thought in themselues, saying: if we say from heauen: he wil say, why then did ye not beleue him? but if they had sayed, of mē they feared the people. For all men counted John, that he was a very Pro-

Jesu: we cannot tell. And Jesus aunswe-red, and saide vnto them: neither wyll I tell you by what authoritie, I doe these

The ende of the Gospell of S. Marke.

The Gospel of S. Luke.

FOr as muche as many haue taken in hande to set forth the declaratiõ of those thinges, which are most surely to be beleued among vs euen as they deliuered them vnto vs, whiche from the beginning sawe them themselues with their eies, & wer ministers of the thinges that they declared : I determined also (assone as I had searched out diligently al thinges from the beginning) that then I would write vnto thee, good Theophilus : that thou mightest know the certaintie of those thinges wherof thou hast ben infourmed.

The first Chapter.

¶ The conception and birth of John the Baptyst. The conception of Christ. The thankfull songes of Mary and Zachary.

There was in the dayes A of Herode ý king of Jury, a certaine Priest named Zacharias * of the i.Pa.xxiv b. course of Abia. And his wife was of the daughters of Aaron : and her name was Elizabeth: they wer both righ teous before God, and walked in all the lawes and ordinaunces of the Lord, that no man could finde fault with them. And they had no child, bicause that Elizabeth was barren: and they both were now wel striken in age.

And it came to passe, that when Zachary executed the Priestes office before god as his course came (according to the custome of the Priestes office) his lot fel to burne incẽse. And he * went into the tem- Ex.xxx.b ple of the Lord, and the whole multitude Heb.ix.b of the people were without in prayer, while the incense was a burning . And there appeared vnto him an Angel of the Lord, standing on the right side of ý aul-tar of incense. And when Zacharias saw him, he was abashed, and feare came on him.

But the Angell sayd vnto him: feare not Zachary, for thy prayer is heard. And thy wife Elizabeth shall beare thee a sõne and thou shalt call his name John : and B thou shalt haue ioy and gladnesse, and many shall reioyce at his birth . For he shalbe great in the sight of the Lord, and shal neither drinke wine nor strong drink And he shalbe filled with the holy ghost, euen from his mothers wombe: and many of the children of Israel shal he turne to their Lord God. And he shal go before him in the spirite and power of * Helias mat xi.b. to turne the heartes of the fathers to the children, and the vnbeleuers to the wise-dome of the iust mẽ, to make ready a perfect people for the Lord.

And Zacharias sayd vnto the Angell: by what token shall I know thys? For * Ge.xvii & I am olde, and my wife well striken in x.xviii.b. yeres. And the Angell answered, and sayd vnto him: I am Gabriel, that stande in the presence of God, and am sent to speake vnto thee: and to shew thee these glad tidinges. And behold it shal come to passe that thou shalt be dumme, and not be able to speake, vntill the day that these thinges be perfourmed, bicause thou beleuedst not my wordes, which shalbe fulfilled in their season. And the people waited for Zacharias, and marueiled that he tarryed taryed in the temple. And when he came out he could not speake vnto them. And they perceiued that he had sene a vision in the temple. And he beckened vnto them, and remained spechlesse.

C ✠And it fortuned, that assone as the dayes of his office were out, he departed into his owne house. And after those dayes, his wife Elizabeth conceiued, and hid her selfe fiue monethes, saying: This wise hath God dealt with me, in the day-es wherin he hath loked on me, to take from me my rebuke among men. And in the sixt moneth the Angel Gabriell was sent from God vnto a citie of Galile, named Nazareth, to a virgin spoused to a man, whose name was Joseph, of the house of Dauid, and the virgins name was Mary. And the Angell went in vnto her, and sayd: Haile full of grace, the Lord is with thee, blessed art thou amõg women: when she saw him, she was abashed at his saying: and cast in her minde, what maner of salutation that should be.
And the Angell sayd vnto her: feare not Mary: for thou hast founde grace wyth Esa.vii.c. God. Behold * thou shalt conceiue in thy Math.i.c wombe, and beare a sonne, and *shalt cal Luk.ii.c. hys name Jesus. He shalbe great, and Esai.ix.b. shalbe called the sonne of the highest.
Dan.vii.d And the Lord God shal geue vnto hym Mic.iiii.b the seate of his father Dauid, & *he shall raigne ouer the house of Jacob for euer, *and of his kingdome there shalbe none ende.

D Then sayd Mary vnto the Angel: how shall this be, seing I know not a man.
And the Angel answered and sayd vnto her: The holy ghost shal come vpon thee, and the power of the highest shall ouer-shadow thee. Therfore also that holy thĩg which shalbe borne, shalbe called the sõne of God. And behold, thy cosin Elizabeth, she hath also conceiued a sonne in her age And this is her sixt moneth which was Zac.viii.b. called barreyn: for * with God shal no-Mat.xix.c thing be vnpossible: And Mary sayd: be-Mar.x.b holde the handmayden of the Lorde, be it Lu.xviii.e vnto me according to thy worde. ✠And ye Angel departed from her.

✠And Mary arose in those dayes, and went into the mountaines with hast into the citie of Jury, and entred into ye house of Zachary, and saluted Elizabeth. And it fortuned, that when Elizabeth heard the salutation of Mary, the babe sprang in her wombe. And Elizabeth was filled with the holy ghost, & cryed with a loude voyce, and sayd: Blessed art thou among E women, and blessed is the fruite of thy wombe: And whence happeneth this to me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me? For loe, as sone as the voice of thy salutation sounded in mine eares, the babe sprang in my wombe for ioye.
And blessed art thou that hast beleued, for those thinges shalbe perfourmed, which were tolde thee from the Lord.
And Mary sayd.

*My soule magnifieth the Lord. And Esa.lxi.d my spirite hath reioysed in God my Sa-uiour. ✠For he hath loked on the low degree of his handmaiden: for loe, now frõ henceforth shall generations cal me blessed. Bicause he that is mightie, hath done to me great things, and holy is his name.
And his mercy is on them that feare him from generation to generation. He hath shewed strength with his arme, he hath scattered them that are proude in ye ymagination of their heart. * He hath putt down the mightie from their seates, and i.Kinges ii.b. exalted them of low degree. He hath filled Eccle.x.c the hongry with good thinges: and sente away the riche emptie. He hath helped his seruaunt Israell, in remembraũce of his mercy.

*Euen as he promised to our fathers Ge.xvii.c Abraham, and his sede for euer. And Mary abode with her about a three monethes, and returned again to her owne house.

✠Elizabethes time came that she should F be deliuered, and she brought forth a sonne. And her neighbours and her cosins heard how the Lord had shewed great mercy vpon her, and they reioysed with her.

And it fortuned that in the eight daye, they came *to circumcise the childe: and Ge.xvii.b called his name Zacharias, after ye name and xxi.a of his father. And his mother answered Leu.xii.a and sayd: not so, but he shall be called John. And they sayd vnto her. There is none in thy kinred, that is named wyth this name. And they made signes to his father, how he would haue him called.
And he asked for writing tables, and wrote sayĩg: his name is John. And they G marueiled all. And his mouth was opened immediatly and his tong also, and he spake, and praysed God. And feare came on all them that dwelt nye vnto them. And all these sayinges were noysed abrode throughout all the hill countreys of Jury: and all they that heard them layd thē up in their hearts, saying: What maner of childe shall this be? And ŷ hand of the Lord was with him. And his father Zacharias was filled with the holye ghost, and prophecyed, saying.

Prayed be the Lord God of Israell, for he hath visited and redemed his people. ✝

Ps.cxxxii c. And hath raysed up *an horne of saluation unto us in the house of hys seruaunt Dauid.

Euen as he promysed by the mouth of his holy Prophetes, which were since the world began.

That we should be saued from our enemies, and from the hande of all that hate us.

That he would deale mercifully wyth our fathers, and remēber his holy couenaunt.

Ge.xxiij c. * And that he should perfourme the oth which he sware to our father Abraham, for to geue us.

Ge.xxviij c. That we deliuered out of the handes of our enemies, might serue him without feare, al the dayes of our lyfe, in such holinesse and righteousnesse as are accepte before him. And thou childe shalt be called the Prophet of the highest: for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his wayes: to geue knowledge of saluation unto hys people for the remission of their synnes. Through the tender mercy of our God, wherby the day spring from an hye hath visited us.

Esay.ix.c Mat.iiii c. * To geue light to them that sate in darkenesse and in the shadow of death, to guide our fete into the way of peace. And the child grew and waxed strong in spirit and was in wildernesse till the day came, when he should shewe himselfe unto the Israelites.

The seconde Chapter.

The birth and circumcisiō of Christ. How he was receiued into the temple, how Simeon and Anna prophecie of him, and now he was founde in the temple among the doctours.

A And it chaunced in those dayes: that there wēt out a commaundement from Augustus ŷ Emperoure, that al the world should be taxed. And this taxing was the first, and executed when Sirenius was liefetenant in Siria. And euery man went unto his own citie to be taxed. And Joseph also ascended from Galile, out of a citie called Nazareth, into Jewry: unto *the citie of i Kinges xx.b. Dauid, which is called Bethleem, bicause he was of the house and linage of Dauid to be taxed with Mary his spoused wife, which was with childe.

And it fortuned that while they were there, her tyme was come that she should be deliuered. And she brought forth her first begotten sonne, and wrapped hym in swadling clothes, and layd him in a maūger, bicause there was no roum for them in the Inne. B

And there were in the same regiō shepherdes, watching and keping their flocke by night. And lo, the Angel of the Lorde stode hard by them, and the brightnesse of the Lord shone rounde about them, & they were sore afrayd. And the Angell sayd unto them: Be not afrayd, for beholde, I bryng you tidinges of great ioy, that shall come to all people: for unto you is borne this day in the citie of Dauid, a Sauiour, which is Christ the Lord. And take this for a signe: ye shall finde ŷ child wrapped in swadling clothes, and layd in a maunger. And straight way there was with the Angell a multitude of heauēlye souldiars, praysing god, and saying: Glory to God on hie, and peace on the earth: and unto men a good wil. ✝

C And it fortuned, assone as the Angels were gone away from them into heauē, ✝ ŷ shepeheardes sayd one to another: let us go now euen unto Bethleem and see this thing that we heare say is happened which the Lorde hath shewed unto us. And they came with hast, and foūde Mary and Joseph, and the babe layd in a maunger. And whē they had sene it, they published abrode the saying, whiche was tolde them of that child. And all they that heard it, wondred at those thinges which were told them of the shepeheardes. But Mary kept all those sayinges, and pondred thē in her heart. And ŷ shepeheardes returned, praysing and lauding God for all the thinges that they had heard and sene, euen as it was tolde unto them. ✝

✝ And whē the eyght day was come that the childe should be circūcised * his name Ge.xvii.b was called Jesus * which was named of Math.i.c the Angell before he was conceiued in Luke.i.c. the wombe. ✝

D ✝ And when the tyme of their purification *(after the law of Moses) was come, Leui.xii.d they * brought him to Jerusalem, to pre-i.Kinges. i.b: sent hym to the Lorde (as it is wrytten in Ex.xiii.a. the lawe of the Lorde: * every manchilde i.xii.d. that first openeth ẏ matrix, shall be called Nu.viii, holy to the lorde:) and to offer (as it is sayd

g. in the lawe of the Lord) a paire of turtle doues, or two yong pigions. And behold, ther was a man in Jerusalē, whose name was Simeon. And the same mā was iust and godly & looked for the consolation of Israel, & the holy ghost was in hym. And an answer had he receiued of ẏ holy ghost that he should not see death, except he first saw the Lordes Christe. And he came by inspiration into the temple.

And when the father & mother brought in the child Jesus: to do for him after the custome of the law, *then tooke he hym Le.xxii.d vp in his armes, & said: Lord, now lettest thou thy seruaunt depart in peace, according to thy promisse. For mine eyes haue seen the saluation, whiche thou haste pre-Esa.xlix, pared before ẏ face of all people. * A light b. to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of Act.xiii,g thy people Israel. ✠

✠And his father & mother marueiled at those thinges, whiche were spoken of him. And Simeon blessed them and sayd E vnto Marye his mother: beholde, this childe is set to be the fall and vprising again of many in Israell, and for a signe whiche is spoken against. And moreouer the swerde shall pearce thy soule, that the thoughtes of many heartes maye be opened. And ther was a Prophetisse, one Anna the daughter of Phanuel of the trybe of Aser, whiche was of a great age, & had liued with an husband seuen yeres from her virginitie. And she had bene a widow about.iiii.score & .iiii. yere which departed F not from the temple: but serued god with fastinges and prayers nighte and daye.
And she came foorth at that same houre, & praised the Lorde, and spake of hym to al them that looked for redemtion in Jerusalem. And when they had perfourmed al thinges according to the lawe of the lord, they returned into Galile, to their owne i.Kinges citie Nazareth. And * the child grew and ii.c waxed strong in spirit, & was fylled wyth wisdō & the grace of God was vpō him. ✠ And his father and mother went to Je-Ex.xii.c. rusalem euery yeare * at the feast of Ea-i.xxiiii.b. e.xvi.i,ster.
Le.xxiii a ✠And when he was.xii.yere olde, they went vp to Jerusalem after the custome of the feast daye. And when they had fulfilled the dayes: as they retourned home the chyld Jesus abode still in Jerusalem, G and his father and mother knewe not of it, but they supposing him to haue ben in the company, came a dayes iourney and sought him among their kinsfolk and ac-quaintaunce. And when they founde him not, they went backe again to Jerusalem and sought him. And it fortuned ẏ after thre daies, they founde him in the temple sitting in the middes of the doctors, hearing them, and posyng them. * And all Mat.vii.d that heard him were astonied at his vn- and.xiii.g derstanding and aunswers. Mar.i.c. Lu.iiii.c.

And when they saw him, they marueiled. And his mother said vnto hym: sonne: why hast thou thus dealt with vs? Behold thy father & I haue sought thee, so-rowing. And he sayde vnto them, howe is it that ye sought me? Wiste ye not, that I must go about my fathers businesse? And * they vnderstoode not that saying which Luk.ix.e. he spake vnto them. And he went downe e.xviii.f. with them, and came to Nazareth, & was obediēt vnto them. But his mother kept all these sayinges together in her hearte.
And Jesus prospered in wisedome and in age, and in fauour with God and men. ✠

The preachyng, baptisme, and prisonment of John. The baptisme of Christ, and a rehearsall of the generation of the fathers.

In the fiftenth yeare of the Herode being Tetrarch of Lo.xiii.a a woman that was a widowe. * And many lepers wer in Israel in the time of Heliseus the Prophete: & none of them was clensed, sauing Naaman the Siriã. And al they in ÿ Sinagoge (when they heard these thinges,) were filled with wrathe: & rose vp, and thrust him out of the city, and led hym euen vnto the edge of the hyll (whereon their citie was builte) that they myght cast him downe headlong. But he departed and went his way, euen thorow the middes of them. ✠ ✠ And he came down to Capernaum (a citie of Galile) and there taught them on the Sabboth dayes. * And they were astonyed at his doctrine: for his preaching mat.vii.b and.xiii.g mark.x.c, mark.i.c. was with power. * And in ÿ Sinagoge there was a man which had an vncleane spirit of a deuill, & cried with a loud voyce, F saying: let me alone what hast thou to doe with vs, thou Iesus of Nazareth? Arte ÿ come to destroy vs? I knowe thee what thou arte, euen the holy of God. And Iesus rebuked him, saying: holde thy peace, and

and come out of him. And whē the Deuill had throwen him in the middes, he came out of him, & hurt him not. And feare cam on thē all, & they spake among thēselues, saying: What maner a thyng is this? For with authoritye & power he commaundeth the foule spirites, & they com out. And the fame of him was spread abrode throughout euery place of the countrey round a-mat viii:b bout. ✝ And when he was risen vp and mark.i.c. came out of the Synagoge, he entred into Simons house. And Simons mother in law was taken with a great feuer, & they made intercession to him for her. And he stode ouer her, & rebuked the feuer, and ȳ feuer left her. And immediately she arose and ministred vnto them. Whē the sunne G was doune, all they that had sicke, taken with diuerse diseases, brought them vnto him: & he laid his handes on euery one of mark .i:9: and,xiii d them, & healed them. * And Deuils also came out of many, crying & saying: thou art Christ the sonne of God. And he rebuked them, & suffred them not to speake: for they knew that he was Christ. Assone as it was day, he departed, and went into a desert place, and the people sought hym and came to hym, and kept hym that he should not depart from them. And he said vnto them: I must preach the kyngdome of God to other cities also. ✝ For therfore am I sent. And he preached in the Syna-goges of Galile.

The fifth Chapter.

Christ preacheth in the shyp. The disciples forsake all, and folow hym. He clenseth the leper: healeth the man of the palsey, calleth Mathew the customer, and eateth with open sinners.

A IT came to passe that (whē ȳ people preased vpō hym to heare the word of god) he stode by the lake of Ge nezareth: * and saw two mar.iiii.a shippes stande by the lake syde, but the fishermē wer gone out of them, and wer washing their nettes. And he entred into one of the Shippes (whiche perteyned to Symon) and prayed him, that he woulde thruste oute a lytle from the lande. And he sat downe, and taught the people out of the Shippe. When he had left speakyng, he sayd vnto Simon: Launche out into the depe, and let slip your nets to make a draught. And Simon aunswered, & saide vnto him: Maister, we haue laboured all night, and haue taken nothing. Neuer-thelesse, at thy commaundement I wyll B lose forth the net. And when thei had this done, they enclosed a great multitude of fishes. But their net brake, & they beckened to their felowes (which were in the other shippe) that they should come & help them. And they came & fylled bothe the ships, that they sonke again.

When Simon Peter sawe this, he fel downe at Jesus knees, saying: Lord, go from me, for I am a synnefull man. For he was astonyed and all that were wyth hym, at the draught of fishes, which they had taken: and so was also James and John the sonnes of Zebede, whiche were partners with Simon. And Jesus sayde vnto Simon: feare not, from hencefoorth thou shalt catche men. And they brought the ships to lande, * & forsooke all, and fo- mat.iiii:c: lowed him. ✝ C

* And it fortuned that when he was in mat.viii a marke:i:d a certain citie: beholde, there was a man full of Leprosye, & when he had spyed Jesus, he fell flatte on his face, and besought hym, saying: Lorde, yf thou wylte thou canst make me cleane. And he stretched foorth his hande, and touched hym, saying: I wyll, bee thou cleane. And immediately the Leprosy departed frō him.
And he charged him that he should tell no man: but go (saith he) * and shewe thy self to the Prieste, & offer for thy clensyng ac- Le.xiiii.a cordyng as Moses commaunded, for a witnesse vnto them.

But so muche the more went there a fame abrode of him, & muche people came together to heare, and to be healed of him from their infirmities. And he kepte hym out of the way in the wildernesse & gaue himself to praier.

✝ And it happened on a certain day, that D he taught, and there sat the Pharises, & Doctours of law, which wer come out of all the townes of Galile, & Jewry, & Jerusalem. And the power of the lorde was present, to heale them. * And behold, men math:ix:a mark.ii.a brought in a bed, a man which was taken with a palsey: and they sought meanes to bring him in, and to lay hym before hym.
And when they could not fynde on what syde they might bryng hym in (because of the preace) they went vpon the top of the house and let hym downe through the tiling, bed and al, euē in the myddes before Jesus. When he saw theyr fayth, he sayde vnto hym: man, thy sinnes bee forgeuen thee. And the scribes, & the pharises begā
to

to thinke, saying: What felow is this, Mar.ii.c Es.xliii.d i.Ihon.i.d. whiche speaketh blasphemy? *Who can forgeue synnes, but God onely? But whē Jesus perceyued theyr thoughtes, he answered and saide vnto them: What thinke ye in your heartes? Whether is easier to saye thy sinnes bee forgeuen thee, or to Mat.ix.a Mar.ii.c Actes.iii.a. and.ix.f. say: rise vp and walke? *But that ye may know that the sonne of man hath power to forgeue sinne on earth, he sayde vnto ÿ sicke of the palsey: I say vnto thee: aryse, take vp thy bed, and go vnto thy house.
And immediately he rose vp before them and toke vp his bed (whereon he lay) & departed to his owne house praising god.
And they were all amased, and they gaue the glory vnto god. And were filled with feare, saying: We haue seen strange thin-ges to day.

F *And after this, he went forth and sawe Mat.ix.a Mar.ii.b a publican named Leui, sitting at the receit of custome, and he saide vnto him: fo-lowe me. And he left all, and rose vp & folowed hym. And Leui made hym a great feast in his owne house. And there was a great company of publicans, and of other that sat at meate with them. *And the Mat.ix.a Mar.ii.b Luk.vii.c and.xv.a. Scribes & Pharises murmured against his Disciples, saying: Why doe ye eate and drynke wyth publicans and sinners?
And Jesus aunswered, and sayde vnto them: They that are whole, nede not the Phisition: but they that are sicke. I came not to cal the righteous, but sinners to repentaunce.

Mat.ix.b Mar.ii.c And they said vnto him. *Why do the disciples of John fast ofte & pray, and the Disciples of the Pharises also: but thine eate and drinke? He said vnto them.
Mat.ix.b Mar.ii.c *Can ye make the chyldren of the wedding faste, while the bridegrome is wyth them? The daies will come when ÿ bridegrome also shall bee taken awaye from them: then shall they faste in those dayes.

He spake vnto them a similitude: No man putteth a pece of a new garment into an olde vesture, for if he doe, then breaketh he the new, and the pece that was taken out of the new, agreeth not with the olde. And no man powreth new wine into olde bottels. For if he do, the new wine wil burst the bottels, & runne out it selfe, & the bottels shal perish. But newe wyne must be put into newe bottels, and bothe are preserued. No man also that drinketh olde wine, streight way can awaye wyth new, for he sayeth: the olde is better.

The sixth Chapter.

He excuseth the disciples, that plucke the eares of corn: he healeth the man with the withered hand, choseth his twelue Apostles, maketh a swete sermō, and teacheth to doe good for euyll.

IT happened on an after A principall Sabboth, that he went *through ÿ corne mat.xii.a. mark.ii.d fielde, and his Disciples plucked the eares of corn & did eate: and rubbed thē in their handes. And certaine of the Pharises said vnto them: Why doe ye that, which is not lawfull to do on the Sabboth daies? And Jesus aunswe-red them, & said: *Haue ye not read what Dauid did, when he himself was an hun- i. Kinges xxi.a.

he went into the house of God, and dyd are not lawfull to eate, but for the priests sonne of man is Lord also of the Sab-both day.

And it fortuned in an other Sabboth B also, that he entred into the Sinagoge, & mat.xii.a Mar.iii.a taught. And ther was a man whose right hand was dried vp. And the Scribes and Pharises watched him whither he would heale on ÿ Sabboth day, that they myght fynde howe to accuse hym. But he knewe their thoughtes, and sayde to the man whiche had the wythered hande: Ryse vp, and stand forth in the middes. And he arose & stode forth. Then sayd Jesus vnto them: I will aske you a question: Whither is it lawfull on the Sabboth dayes to do good, or to do euill? to saue ones lyfe, or to destroy it? And he beheld thē all in cōpasse and sayde vnto the man: Stretche foorth thy hande. And he did so: * and his hande iii. Kinges was restored againe as whole as ÿ other. xiii.b. mat.xii.b And they wer filled with madnes, & com- mar.iii.a.

they might do to Jesu.

And it fortuned in those daies* that he C went out into a mountayne for to praye, mat.xiiii.c and continued all night in prayer to God.
And assoone as it was daye, he called hys disciples* and of them he chose .xii. whom also he called Apostles. Simon whom he mat.x.a. mar.iii.b also named Peter, & Andrew his brother James & John, Philip & Bartholomew, Mathewe & Thomas, James the sonne of Alpheus, & Simō which is called Zelo-carioth, the same that was the traytoure.

And all the people preaced to touch him, for there went vertue out of him and healed them all.
D And he lift up his eyes upon the Dis-yours is the kyngdome of GOD. Blessed are ye that hunger now, for ye shalbe satisfied. Blessed are ye that wepe now, for ye shall laugh. Blessed shall ye be whē men hate you, and thrust you out of theyr company, and rayle on you, and abhorre your names as an euill thing, for yͤ sonne

Mat. v. g *And if ye loue them which loue you, what thanke haue ye? For sinners also loue their louers. And if ye do good for them, which do good for you, what thank haue ye? For sinners also doe euen the same. And if ye lend to them of whom ye sinners also lēd to sinners, to receyue such doe good and lende, lookyng for nothyng bet upon that house, and could not moue he that heareth and doth not, is like a mā fall of that house was great.

The seuenth Chapter.

He healeth the captaynes seruaunte, rayseth the wydowes sonne, enfourmeth the disciples whom John Baptiste sente unto hym, commendeth John, reproueth the Jewes, and eateth wyth the Pharise. The woman washeth his feete wyth her peril of death. And when he heard of Jebeseking him that he would come, & heale his seruaunt. And when they came to Jesus they besought him instantly, saying: he is worthy that thou shouldest doe this for him: for he loueth our nation, & hath built vs a Sinagoge. And Jesus went with them.

B And when he was now not farre from the house, the Centurion sent frendes to mat. viii. a him, saying vnto hym: *lord trouble not thy selfe: for J am not worthy, that thou shouldest enter vnder my roofe.
Wherfore, J thought not my self wor-worde & my seruant shalbe whole. For J also, am a man set vnder power, and haue vnder me souldiers, & J say vnto one: go

J saye vnto you, J haue not founde so great faith, no not in Jsraell. And they that were sent, turned backe home agayn

*And this rumour of him went forth

And the Disciples of John shewed him of al these things. *And John called vnto him two of his Disciples, & sent them Math. xi. a, to Jesus, saying: art thou he that should come: or shall we looke for another? When the men were come vnto hym, they sayd: John Baptist sent vs vnto thee, saying: art thou he that should come: or shall we waite for another? And in ẏ same houre he cured many of their infirmities & plages, & of euill spirites, and vnto many ẏ wer

*And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to speake vnto ẏ mat. xi. c. people concerning John. What went ye out into the wildernesse for to see? A rede shaken with the wind? But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in softe ray-ment? Beholde, they which are gorgeously apparelled & liue delicately, are in kinges courtes. But what went ye forth to see?
A Prophete? Yea, J say to you, and more than a Prophete. This is he of whom, it is written: *beholde, J send mine aungell lesse, he ẏ is lesse, in the kingdome of God

And all the people, and the publicanes that heard him, iustified god, & were bap- E tised with the baptisme of John. But the Pharises & lawyers despysed the counsell of god against themselues, and were not baptised of him. And the Lorde sayde: * whereunto shall J lyken the men of thys mat. xi. b.

They are lyke vnto chyldren syttyng in

✝And one of the Pharises desired hym of oyntment, and stode at his fete behind him weping, and began to wash his fete with teares, and did wipe them with the annoynted them with the ointment. Whẽ the Pharise (which had bidden hym) saw, he spake within himself saying: if this mã were a Prophete, he would surely know who, and what maner of woman thys is that touched hym, for she is a synner.

And Jesus answered and sayd unto him: Simon, I haue somewhat to saye unto thee. And he said: Maister say on. There was a certain lender which had two detters, the one ought fiue hundred pence, & the other fiftie. When they had nothing to pay, he forgaue them both. Tell me therefore, whiche of them will loue hym most? Simon aunswered and said: I suppose that he to whom he forgaue most.
And he sayd unto him: thou hast truely iudged.
G And he turned to the woman, and sayd unto Simon: seest thou this woman? I entred into thy house, thou gauest me no my fete with teares, and wiped thẽ wyth no kisse: but she, since the tyme I came in, hath not ceased to kysse my fete. Myne she hath annointed my fete with ointmẽt.

Wherfore I say unto thee: many sinnes

When euery man denied, Peter (and they that were with him) sayd: master, the peo-

❡ The eleuenth Chapter. ✝

He teacheth his disciples to pray, driueth out a deuil, and rebuketh the blasphemous Pharises. They require signes & tokens. He eateth with the Pharise, and reproueth the ypocrisy of the Pharyses, Scribes and ypocrites.

A AND it fortuned as he was praying in a certain place: when he ceased, one of his Disciples sayd vnto him: Lord, teach vs to praye, as John also taught his Disciples. And he sayd vnto them: when ye pray, say. * O our father which art in heauen, halowed be thy name. (Mat. vi, b) Thy kingdom come. Thy will be fulfilled, euē in earth also as it is in heauen. Our daily bread geue vs this day. & forgeue vs our sinnes: for euen we forgeue euery man that trespaseth vs. And leade vs not into temptation. But delyuer vs from euill.

B And he sayd vnto them: ✝ If any of you shal haue a frende, and shall go to him at midnight, and say vnto him: frende lende me thre loues, for a frend of mine is come out of the waye to me, & I haue nothing to set before him, and he within answere, and say: trouble me not, the dore is nowe shut, and my children are with me in the chamber, I can not rise and geue thee. I say vnto you, though he wil not arise and geue him bicause he is hys frende, yet bicause of his importunitie he will rise, and geue him as many as he nedeth. And I say vnto you: *aske, and it shalbe geuen you. (Mat. vii a; Joh. xvi, f; Jam. i, a) Seke, and ye shall finde: knocke, & it shalbe opened vnto you. For euery one that asketh, receiueth: and he that seketh, findeth: & vnto him that knocketh, shal it be opened. If the sonne shal aske bread of any of you that is a father, will he geue him a stone? Or if he aske fishe, wil he for fishe geue him a Serpente? Or if he aske an egge, will he offer him a Scorpion? If ye then beyng euill can geue good giftes vnto your children: how much more shal your father of heauen geue the holy spirite to them that desier it of him? ✝✝ * And he was casting out a deuil, and ÿ same was dumme. (Mat. ix. a; Mat vii d)

And when he had cast out the deuill, the dumme spake, and ÿ people wondred. But some of them sayd: * he casteth out deuils through Beelzebub the chiefe of ÿ deuils. (Mat. ix. b.; Mar, iii d) And other tēpted him, and required of him a signe from heauen. But he knowing their thoughtes, sayd vnto thē: C Euery kingdome deuided against it selfe, is desolate: and one house doth fall vpon another. If Satā also, be deuided agaist himselfe, how shal his kingdome endure? Bicause ye say, that I cast out deuils thorowe Beelzebub. If I, by the helpe of Beelzebub cast out deuils, by whose help do your children cast them out? Therfore shall they be your iudges. But if I, wyth the finger of god cast out deuils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come vpon you. *When a strong mā armed watcheth his house: (Mat. xii, c) the thinges that he possesseth are in peace. But when a stronger thā he cometh vpon him, and ouercommeth hym, he taketh from him al his harnesse (wherin he trusted) and deuideth his goods. He that is not with me is against me. And he that gathereth not with me, scattereth abrode.

D ✝ When the vncleane spirite is gone out of a man, he walketh thorow dry places, seking rest. (Mat. xii. d) And whē he findeth none he sayth: I wil returne againe vnto my house, whence I came out. And when he commeth, he findeth it swepte and garnished. Then goeth he and taketh to hym.

There are sixe daies in whiche men ought to worke, in them come, that ye maye bee healed, and not on the Sabboth day.

how muche owest thou vnto my maister?
And he said: an hundred tunnes of oyle.
And he sayde vnto hym: take thy bill, and sit downe quickly, and write fiftie.
Then said he to another: howe muche owest thou? And he said: an hundred quarters of wheate. He sayde vnto him: Take thy bill, and write foure score. And the Lorde commended the vniuste stewarde, bicause he had doone wysely. For the children of this worlde are in their natiō wyser than the children of lyght. And I say vnto you: make you frendes of ye vn-righteous Mammon, that when ye shal haue nede, thei may receue you into euerlasting habitations. + +He that is faithfull in that whiche C is leaste, is faithfull also in muche. And he that is vnrighteous in the least: is vn-righteous also in muche. So then, yf ye haue not been faithfull in the vnryghte-ous Mammon, who wyll beleue you in that whiche is true? And yf ye haue not been been faithfull in another mans businesse, who shall geue you that whiche is youre owne?

Mar,vi,c * No seruaunt can serue two masters: for eyther he shall hate the one, and loue the other: or els he shall leane to the one, & despise the other. Ye cannot serue god and Mammon.

All these thinges heard ÿ Pharises also which wer couetous, and they mocked hym. And he saide vnto them: Ye are they which iustify your selues before men: but D god knoweth your heartes. For ÿ which is highly estemed among mē, is abhominable in the sight of god. ☞

E * There was a certain riche man, which was clothed in purple and fyne whyte, & fared deliciously euery day: And ther was a certain begger named Lazarus, which lay at his gate full of sores, desyring to be refreshed with the crommes that fel from the riche mannes boorde, and no man gaue vnto hym. The dogges came also, and licked his sores.

And it fortuned that the begger dyed, & was caried by the angels into Abrahams F bosome. The riche man also died, and was buried. And beyng in hell in tormētes, he lift vp his eyes and saw Abraham a farre of, and Lazarus in his bosome, and he cried and saide: father Abraham haue mercy on me, and sende Lazarus that he may dippe the tippe of his fynger in water, & coole my tong: for I am tormēted in this flame. But Abraham saide: Gal.vi.a Sonne, remember that thou in thy lyfe time receiuedst thy pleasure, and contrary wise, Lazarus receiued paine. But nowe is he comforted, and thou art punyshed. Beyond all this, betwene vs & you, there is a great space set, so ÿ they whiche would go from hence to you, cannot, neither may come from thence to vs.

Then he said: I pray thee therfore father, sende him to my fathers house: (For G I haue fiue brethren) for to warne them least they also come into this place of torment. Abraham said vnto him, they haue Moses and the Prophetes, let them heare them. And he said: nay father Abraham: but if one come vnto them from the dead, they will repent. He sayde vnto hym: If they heare not Moses and the Prophets, neither will they beleue, though one rose from death again. ☞ again, he sent yet another seruaunt. And him did they beat, & entreated him shame-they cast hym out of the vyneyarde, and

The next day after, John stode again and two of his Disciples, and he behelde them: come and see. They came, and saw where he dwelt: and abode with him that day. For it was about the tenth houre.

hys brother Simon first, and sayeth vn-answered, and sayd vnto him: Bicause I them: verely, verely, I say vnto you: here-

The seconde Chapter.

Christ turneth the water into wine, and driueth the byers and sellers out of the temple.

A And the thirde day was there a mariage in Cana a citie of Galile, and ye mother of Jesus was there. And Jesus was called (and his Disciples) vnto the mariage. And whẽ the wine failed, ye mother of Jesus sayth vnto him: they haue no wine. Jesus sayth vnto her, woman what haue I to do Luk.ii.g. with thee? mine houre is not yet come.
His mother saieth vnto the ministers: whatsoeuer he saieth vnto you do it. And there were standing there sixe water pottes of stone, after the maner of the purifiyng of the Jewes, conteining two or thre firkins a piece.

Jesus sayth vnto them: fill the water pottes with water. And they filled them vp to the brimme. And he saith vnto thẽ, draw out now, and beare vnto ye gouernour of the feast. And they bare it. When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was turned into wine, and knew not whence it was (but the ministers whiche drew the water, knew:) He calleth the bridegrome, and sayth vnto him: Euery man at the beginning doth set forth good wine, and when men be dronke, thẽ that which is worse. But thou hast kept the good wine vntill now.

This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galile, and shewed his glory and his Disciples beleued on him. B

*After this he went downe to Caper- Mat.iiii.b

And when he had made (as it were) a scourge of smal cordes, he droue them al out of the temple, with the shepe and oxẽ and powred out the chaungers of mony, and ouerthrewe the table, and sayd vnto them that solde doues: Haue these things hence, and make not my fathers house an house of marchaundise. And his Disciples remembred it that it is written: *the zele Psal.lxix.b

answered the Jewes and sayd vnto hym what token shewest thou vnto vs, seing that thou doest these thinges? Jesus answered and sayd vnto them: *destroy this Mat.xxvi.f

vp. Then sayd ye Jewes, xlvi. yeres was this temple a building: and wilt thou reare it vp in three dayes. But he spake of the tẽple of his body. Assone therfore as he was risen from death again, his Disciples remembred that he thus had said. And they beleued the Scripture and the wordes which Jesus had sayd. When he was in Jerusalem at Easter in the feast day, many beleued on hys name, when they sawe his miracles which he did. But Jesus did not commit himselfe vnto them bicause he knew all men, and neded not, that any man should testifie of him. *For he knew Je.xvii.b what was in man. Apoc.i.c.

The thirde Chapter.

The communication of Christ with Nichodemus. The doctrine and Baptisme of John, and what witnesse he beareth of Christ.

A There was a man of the Pharises named Nichodemus, a ruler of the Je-wes. *Thesame came to Joh.vii.g Jesus by night, and sayd vnto hi: Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come frõ god, for no mã could do such miracles as ye doest, except god were wt him.

Jesus aunswered, and saide vnto hym: Verely, verely, I say vnto thee, excepte a man be borne from aboue, he can not see the kingdome of god. Nichodemus sayth vnto him: howe can a man be borne when he is olde? can he enter into his mothers wombe, and be borne agayne? Jesus aun-

B Nichodemus answered, and said vnto him: howe can these thinges bee? Jesus aunswered, and sayde vnto hym: art thou a maister in Israell, & knowest not these thinges? Verely, verely, I say vnto thee: we speake that we doe know, and testifye that we haue seen, and ye receiue not our witnesse. If I haue tolde you earthlye things, and ye beleue not: how shal ye beleue, if I tell you of heauenly thinges?

Luk xix a GOD sent not his sonne into the worlde to condemne the worlde, but that the world through him might be saued. He yͭ beleueth on hym, is not condemned. But he that beleueth not, is condemned alreadye, because he hath not beleued in the name of the onely begotten sonne of GOD. And this is the condemnation John.i.a. and.xi.f. that light is come into the worlde, and men loued darkenesse more than light, because their dedes were euill. For euery

After these thinges came Jesus & his disciples into the land of Jewrye, & there he taried with them *and baptised. And John also baptised in Enon, besides Salim, because there was much water there and they came and were baptised. *For John was not yet cast into prison. ¶ The fourth Chapter.

The louing communication of Christe with the woman of Samaria, by the welles side. Howe he healeth the rulers sonne.

A As soone as the lord knew howe the Phariseis hadde heard that Jesus made & baptised moe disciples thã John (though that Jesus hymselfe baptised not but his Disciples) *he lefte Jewry, and departed agayne into Galile. For it was so that he muste nedes goe through Samaria. A Mat iiii b

4. Kings. xvii. d. Joh. viii. b

*For the Jewes meddle not with the Samaritans. Jesus aunswered and sayde vnto her: if thou knewest the gift of GOD, and who it is that sayeth to thee, geue me drinke, thou wouldest haue asked of hym, and he woulde haue geuen *thee water of life.

Jere. ii. b. Joh. vii. b

The woman saith vnto hym: Sir, thou haste nothyng to drawe with, and the well is depe: from whence then haste thou that water of lyfe? Art thou greater than oure father Jacob, whiche gaue vs the well? and he hymselfe dranke therof, and his children, and hys cattell.

Jesus aunswered and sayd vnto her: whosoeuer drinketh of this water, shall thirst againe. But whosoeuer drinketh of the water that I shall geue hym, shal neuer be more a thirst: but the water that I shall geue him, shall be in him a well of water spryngyng vppe into euerlastyng lyfe. The woman sayeth vnto hym: Syr, geue me of that water, that I thirst not, neither come hither to drawe. Jesus saith vnto her: Goe call thy husbande, and come hither. The woman answered, and saide vnto him: I haue no husbande. Jesus sayde vnto her: Thou hast wel sayde: I haue no husbande. For thou haste had fiue husbandes, and he whom thou nowe haste, is not thy husband. In that saidest thou well.

C The woman sayeth vnto him: *Sir, I perceiue that thou art a prophet. Oure fathers woorshipped in this mountaine, and ye say that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship.

The woman sayth vnto hym: I wote that Messias shall come, which is called

D Christ. When he is come, he wyll tell vs all thinges. Jesus sayeth vnto her: *I ŷ speake vnto thee am he. And immediately came his disciples, and marueiled, that he talked with the woman. Yet no man said: what meanest thou, or why talkest thou with her? The woman then left her waterpot, and went her way into the citie, and saith to the men. Come, see a man whiche tolde all thinges that euer I dyd. Is not he Christ? Then they went out of the citie, and came vnto him.

Mat. xxvi f. Mar. xiiii g. Lu. xxii. c. Joh. ix. d. and x. e.

In the meane whyle his disciples praied him, saying: Maister, eate. He said vnto them: I haue meate to eate, ŷ ye know not of. Therfore said the disciples among themselues, hath any man broughte hym ought to eate? Jesus sayth vnto them: my meate is to doe the wyll of hym that sente me, and to finishe his woorke. Saye not ye, there are yet foure monethes, and thē commeth haruest? Beholde, I saye vnto you, lift vp your eyes: and looke on the regions for they are whyte alreadye vnto

And herein is the saying true, that one soweth and another reapeth. I sent you to reape that, whereon ye bestowed no labour. Other men laboured, and ye are entred into their labours. Many of the Samaritanes of that citye beleued on hym, for the saying of the woman, which testifyed that he tolde her all that euer she did. So when the Samaritanes were come vnto hym, they besoughte hym that he woulde tary with them. And he abode there two dayes. And many mo beleued because of his own wordes, and said vnto ŷ womā. *And there was a certain ruler,*whose sonne was sicke at Capernaū. As sone as thesame heard ỷ Jesus was come out of Jewry into Galile, he went unto him and besought him that he would come downe and heale his sonne. For he was euen at the point of death. Then saide Jesus unto him: except ye see signes & wonders, ye wyll not beleue. The ruler saieth unto him: Sir come downe, or euer ỷ my sonne dye. Jesus sayeth unto hym. Go thy way, thy sonne liueth. The man beleued the worde that Jesus had spoken unto him. And he went his waye. And as he was nowe goyng downe, the seruauntes met hym, and tolde hym, saying: thy sonne lyueth. The fifth Chapter.

He healeth the manne that was sicke eyght and thirtie yere. The Jewes accuse hym, he answereth for hymselfe, and reproueth them.

After this was ther a feast day of the Jewes, and Jesus went up to Jerusalē. And there is at Jerusalē, by the slaughter house, a poole (whiche is called in the Hebrue tong, Bethseda) hauing fiue porches, in whiche lay a great multitude of sicke folke, of blind, halt, and withered, waityng for the mouing of the water. For an angell went down at a certain season into the poole, and styred the water. Whosoeuer then firste (after the styrryng of the water) stepped in was made whole of whatsoeuer disease he had. And a certain man was there which had been diseased .xxxviii. yeres. Whē Jesus sawe him lye, and knew that he nowe long time had bene diseased, he sayth unto hym. Wilt thou bee made whole? Jesus sayth unto hym: *rise take up thy bed and walk. And immediately the man was made whole, and toke up his bed, and walked. And ỷ same day was the Sabboth. The Jewes therfore said unto hym that was made whole. It is the Sabboth daye, it is not lawful for the to cary thy bed. He answered them he ỷ made me whole, saide unto me, take up thy bed, & walke. Then asked they him what man is that, whiche said unto thee, take up thy bed and walk. And he ỷ was healed wyste not who it was. For Jesus had gotten hymselfe awaye, because that there was preace of people in that place.

And therefore the Jewes dyd persecute Jesus, and sought meanes to slaye hym, because he had done these thynges on the Sabboth day. And Jesus answered them.

My father worketh hitherto, and I worke. Therfore the Jewes soughte the more to kyl hym, not onely because he had broken the Sabboth, but sayde also that*god was his father, and made him selfe equall with god.

Then answered Jesus, & said unto the verely, verely, I say unto you: *ỷ sonne can do nothing of hymself, but that he seeth the father do. For whatsoeuer he doeth, that dothe the sonne also. For the father loueth the sonne, and sheweth him all thynges that he hymselfe doth.

The sixth Chapter. *

Jesus fedeth fyue thousande men, departeth away that they should not make hym kyng, and reproueth the fleshly hearers of his worde. The car-nall are offended at hym.

After these thinges *Jesus A went his way ouer the sea Mat.xiiii b of Galile whiche is the sea of Tiberias, *and a great Mar.vi.d Mat.iiii.b multitude folowed him, be- Lu.vi.c. cause they sawe his miracles which he did on them that wer diseased. And Jesus went vp into a mountain, and there he sat with his disciples. And Easter, a feast of the Jewes was nie. ⁊ When Jesus then lift vp his eyes, and sawe a greate companye come vnto Mat.xiiii b him, he sayth vnto Philip: whence shall Mar.vi.d we bye bread that these maye eate. This Luk.ix.b he sayde to proue him, for he himself knew what he would do.
*Philip aunswered hym: two hundred peny worth of bread are not sufficient for 3.Kinges iiii.g.
them, that euery man maye take a lytle.
One of his disciples (Andrew Simon Peters brother) sayeth vnto hym: There is a lad here, which hath fiue barly loues and two fishes: but what are they among so many? And Jesus saide. Make the people sit downe. There was much grasse B in the place. So yͤ men sat down, in number about fiue thousand. And Jesus toke the bread: ⁊ when he had geuen thankes, he gaue to the disciples, and the disciples to them that were set down: And likewise of the fishes asmuch as they would. Whẽ they had eaten ynough, he sayth vnto his disciples: gather vp the broken meate which remaineth, that nothing bee loste.
And they gathered it together, and fylled xii. baskets with the broken meate of the fiue barly loanes: which broken meate remayned vnto them that had eaten. Then those men (when they had seen the miracle that Jesus did) said: this is of a truth *the same Prophete that should come into the world. ⁊ Lu.vii.c.
When Jesus therfore perceiued yͭ they Joh iiii b woulde come ⁊ take him vp to make him king, *he departed again into a moũtain himself alone. *And when euẽ was now Luk.vi.d come, his disciples went downe vnto the Mat.xiiii sea, and gat vp into a ship, and came ouer c. the sea vnto Capernaũ: And it was now Mar.vi.f darke, and Jesus was not come to them.
And the sea arose with a great wind that blewe. So when they had rowen about a.xxv. or thirtie furlonges, they sawe Jesus walking on the sea, ⁊ drawyng nigh vnto the ship. ⁊ they were afraid. But he sayth vnto them: It is I, be not afrayde.
Then would they haue receiued him into the ship, ⁊ immediatly the ship was at the land

lande whither they went. The day folow-C ing when the people (which stoode on the other side of the sea) sawe that there was none other ship there, saue that one wher into his disciples were entred, and that Jesus went not in with his disciples into the shyppe, but that his disciples were gone away alone: (Howbeit, there came other shippes from Tiberias nygh vnto the place, where they did eate bread, after that the lorde had geuen thankes:) when the people therfore sawe that Jesus was not there, neyther his disciples, they also toke shipping, and came to Capernaum, seking for Jesus. And whē they had foūd him on the other syde of the sea, they said vnto him: Rabbi, when camest thou hy-ther? Jesus aunswered them, and sayd: verely, verely, I say vnto you: ye seke me, not because ye sawe the miracles, but because ye did eate of the loaues, and were filled. + Labour not for the meate whiche perisheth, but for ẏ whiche endureth vnto euerlasting life, which meate the sonne of man shall geue vnto you. For hym hath God the father sealed.

Then sayd they vnto hym: what shall D we doe, that we might worke the works of God? Jesus aunswered and sayd vnto them: This is the worke of God, ẏ ye beleue on him, whō he hath sent. They sayd mat.xii.c therefore vnto him * what signe shewest and.xvi.a thou then, that we maye see, and beleue Mar.viii.b. thee? What doest thou work? Our fathers Lu.xi,d. did eate Manna in the desert as it is wri-Ex.xvi.b. ten: He gaue them * bread from heauē to eate. Then Jesus said vnto them: verely, verely, I saye vnto you: Moses gaue you Mat.xvi.c not that bread frō heauē, * but my father geueth you the true bread from heauen.
For the bread of God is he, whiche commeth down from heauen, and geueth life vnto the worlde.

Then said they vnto hym: Lord euermore geue vs this bread. And Jesus said vnto them: I am the bread of lyfe. He ẏ commeth to me shall not hunger: and he that beleueth on me shall neuer thirste. + But I said vnto you: ẏ ye also haue seen me, & yet ye beleue not. All that the father geueth me shall come to me: and him that commeth to me, I cast not away. For I came downe from heauē: * not to do that Lu.xxii.e I wil, but that he wil, which hath sēt me.
And this is the fathers will whiche hath sent me, that of all whiche he hath geuen me I shall lose nothing: but raise thē againe at the last day. And this is the will of hym that sent me: that euery one which E seeth the sonne * & beleueth on hym, hath John.v.e euerlasting life. And I will raise hym vp at the last day. The Jewes then murmured at him, because he said: I am the bred (of life) whiche came downe from heauen.
And they saide: * Is not this Jesus the sonne of Joseph, whose father & mother mat.xiii.g we knowe? Howe is it then that he saith, Mar.vi.a I came down from heauē? Jesus answered and said vnto them: Murmure not among your selues. + * No man can come to me, except the father whiche hath sente Joh.vii.g me, drawe him: And I wyll rayse hym vp at the last day. It is written in the Prophetes, * & they shal be al taught of God. Esa.liiii.d, Euery man therfore that hath heard and 1.Joh.ii.d hath learned of the father commeth vnto me. * Not that any man hath seen the fa- De.iiii.b. ther, saue he whiche is of God: the same Ex.xxxiii.d. hath seen the father. Verelye, verely, I saye vnto you: he that putteth his truste Judg.vi.e in me, hath euerlasting life. I am ẏ bread and.xiii.d of life. Your fathers did eate Manna in ẏ John.i.c. wildernesse, and are dead: This is that 1.Joh.iiii.b. bread, which cōmeth down from heauen, that a man may eate therof, and not dye.
I am ẏ liuyng bread, whiche came down from heauen. If any man eate of this Lu.xxii,b bread he shall liue for euer. * And ẏ bread that I wyll geue, is my fleshe: whiche I will geue for the life of the worlde. + The Jewes therfore stroue among thēselues, saying: How can this felowe geue vs that fleshe of his to eate? Then Jesus said vn- F to them: + Verelye, verelye, I saye vnto you, excepte ye eate the fleshe of the sonne of manne, and drynke his bloude: ye haue no lyfe in you. Whoso eateth my fleshe, and drynketh my bloude, hath e-ternall lyfe: and I wyll rayse hym vp at the last daye. For my fleshe is meate in dede: and my bloude is drinke in dede. He that eateth my fleshe and drynketh my bloude, dwelleth in me and I in him. As the liuyng father hath sent me, and I liue for the father: Euen so he that eateth me shall liue by the meanes of me. This is that bread which came down from heauen: not as your fathers did eate Manna and are dead. He that eateth of this bred, shall liue euer. +

These thinges said he in ẏ Sinagoge, as he taught in Capernaum. Many therfore of his disciples (when they had heard this) sayde: this is an hard saying: who can abide the hearing of it? Jesus knewe in hymself, that his disciples murmured at

at it, and he saide vnto them: Dooeth this offende you? What and if ye shall see the sonne of man ascende vp thither where he was before? It is the spirit that quickneth the fleshe profiteth nothing. The wordes that I speake vnto you are spirite & lyfe.
But ther are some of you that beleue not.
For Jesus knewe from the beginning whiche they were that beleued not, & who should betray him. And he saide: therfore Joh.viii.c said I vnto you: that * no man can come vnto me, except it wer geuen vnto him of my father. From that time many of his disciples went backe, and forsooke him, & walked no more with him. Then said Jesus to the twelue: will ye also goe away.
Then Simon Peter aunswered him: lord to whom shal we go. Thou hast yͤ wordes mat.xvi.c of eternall life, * and we beleue, and are mar.viii.c sure that thou art Christ the sonne of the Luk.ix.c. liuing God. Jesus aunswereth them: Haue Joh.xi.c. Lu.xxii.a not I chosen you twelue, and * one of you Joh.xiii.c is a deuill? He spake of Judas Iscarioth, the sonne of Simon. For he it was that shoulde betraye hym, beyng one of the twelue.

The seuenth Chapter.

Jesus commeth to Jerusalem at the feast, teacheth the Jewes and reproueth them: There are diuerse opinions of him among the people. The Pharisees rebuke the officers, because they haue not brought hym, and chyd with Nichodemus for takyng his part.

A After these thinges Jesus went aboute in Galile: for he would not go about in Jewrye because that the Jewes sought to kil him.
The Jewes feast of taber-Le.xxiii.f nacles was at hand*: his Nu.xxix.b brethren therefore said vnto him: get thee iii.Es.v.e hence, and go into Jewry, that thy disciii.ma.v.f ples also maye see thy workes that thou doest. For there is no man that doeth any thing in secrete, and he himselfe seketh to be knowen openly. If thou do such things shew thy self to the world. For his brethrē beleued not in him.

Then Jesus said vnto them: My time is not yet come: but your time is alwaye Joh.xv.a ready. The world cannot hate you. * But me it hateth: because I testifie of it, that the workes thereof are euil. Go ye vp vnto this feast. I wil not go vp yet vnto this feast for my time is not yet ful come. Whē he had said these woordes vnto them: he abode still in Galile. But assoone as his brethren wer come, then went he also vp vnto the feast, not openly, but as it were B priuely. Then sought him the Jewes at yͤ feast, and said: * where is he? And much Joh.xi.f murmuring was there of him among the people. For some said: * He is good other mat.xxi.a said nay, but he disceiueth yͤ people. How Joh.iiii.c beit no man spake openly of him, for feare and.vi.c. of the Jewes. ⁊ Joh.xii.f.

* Now when half the feast was done, Jesus went vp into the temple, & taught.
And the Jewes marueiled, saying: Howe knoweth he the scriptures, seing that he neuer learned? Jesus answered them and saide: My doctrine is not mine, but his yͭ sent me. If any man wil be obedient vnto his wil, he shall knowe of his doctrine, whether it be of god, or whether I speake of my selfe. He that speaketh of him selfe, seketh his owne praise. But he yͭ seeketh his praise that sent him, the same is true, and no vnrighteousnesse is in him.

* Did not Moses geue you a law, and Exo.xx.a yet none of you kepeth the lawe? Why go Deu.v.a. ye about to kill me? The people aunswe- C red and saide: thou hast the deuil, who goeth about to kill thee? Jesus aunswered, and said vnto them: * I haue doone one

And yet ye on the Sabboth daie circum-receiue circumcision without breaking of the lawe of Moses, disdaine ye at me, because I haue made a man euerye whitte

Then said some of them of Jerusalē: is not this he whom they go about to kile But loe, he speaketh boldly, and they saie nothing to him. Doe the rulers knowe in dede yͭ this is very Christ? Howbeit * we mat.xiii.g knowe this man whence he is: but when mar.vi.a Christ commeth, no man knoweth whēce Joh.vi.c. he is.

Then cried Jesus in the temple (as he D taught) saying: ye bothe knowe me, and whence I am ye knowe. And I am not come of my selfe: but he that sente me, is true, whō ye know not. But I knowe him, (and if I say that I knowe him not I shalbe a lier like vnto you, but I know him) for I am of him, and he hath sent me.

* Then they sought to take him, but no mar.xi.c. commeth, will do mo miracles than these, that this man hath done? The Phariseis hearde that the people murmured suche thinges concerning him.

And the Phariseis and hie Priestes * Mat. xxii. b. sent ministers to take him. Then said Je-Mar. xii a. sus vnto the: Yet am I a litle while with Joh viii c and xiii. d me: & and where I am, thither can ye not come. Then saide ÿ Jewes among themselues: whither will he goe, that we shal not finde him? Wil he go among the gentiles (which are scattered abrode) & teach the Gentiles? What maner of saying is this that he said: ye shall seke me, and shal not find me, and where I am thither can ye not come.

In the last day, that great day of the Esa. lv a. feast, Jesus stoode, and cried, saying: * If F any man thirste, let him come vnto me, & drink. He that beleueth on me (as sayth ÿ scripture) out of his belly shal flow riuers of water of life. But this spake he of the spirite, whiche they that beleue on him should receiue. *

* For the holy ghost was not yet there, because Jesus was not yet glorified.

* Many of the people therefore (when they heard this saying) sayd of a truthe this is a Prophete: but other sayde * this Joh, iii, c, is Christe. But some saide: shall Christe and, vi, b, come out of Galile? * Saith not the scrip-

Mat. xxi b David, & out of the towne of Bethleem, Mich. v. a Mat. ii. a. where David was? So was there dissention among the people because of hym.
And some of them would haue taken him but no man laide handes on hym. Then came the ministers to the hie priests and Phariseis. And they sayde vnto the: why haue ye not brought hym? The ministers aunswered: neuer man spake as this man doeth. Then answered them the Phariseis: are ye also deceyued? Doeth any of the rulers of the Phariseis beleue on him? But this common people whiche knowe not the lawe, are cursed. Nicode-
i. Joh iii a mus saith vnto them (* he that came to Jesus by nyghte and was one of them:) doeth our lawe iudge any man, before it heare him, and know what he hath done?
They aunswered, and saide vnto hym: arte thou also of Galile? searche and looke, for out of Galile aryseth no Prophet. And euery man went vnto his own house. *

asking him, he lift himself vp, and said vnto them: let him that is among you with-

Ye are of this worlde, I am not of this worlde. I sayde therefore vnto you, that ye shall dye in your sinnes. * For if ye beleue not ÿ I am he, ye shall dye in your sinnes. Then sayd they vnto him: who art thou? And Jesus saith vnto them: euen the very same thing that I speake vnto you. I haue manye thinges to saie, and to iudge of you. Christe maketh the man to see, that was borne

A And as Iesus passed by, he saw a man which was blinde from hys byrth.
And his Disciples asked him, saying: master who did sinne, this man, or his father and mother, that he was borne blind? Iesus answered neither hath this man sinned, nor yet his father and mother: but that the workes of God should be shewed in hi. I must work the workes of him that sent me, while it is day. The night cometh, when no man can worke. As long as I am in ye world, Iohn.i.a e.xii g viii.b. *I am the light of the world. Assone as he had thus spoken, he spat on the ground and made clay of the spettle, and rubbed B the clay on the eyes of the blinde, & sayde Esa.viii. b unto him: go and wash thee in the pole of *Siloe, which (by interpretation) is as much to say as, Sent. He went his way therfore, and washed, and came agayne seeing. So the neighbours and they that had sene him before (how that he was a begger) sayd: is not this he that sat and begged? Some sayd: this is he: againe other sayd: (no but) he is like him. He him-C selfe sayd: I am euen he. Therefore sayd they unto him: how ar thine eies opened?
He answered and sayd: the man that is called Iesus, made clay, and annointed myne eyes, and sayd unto me: go to the pole Siloe, & wash. And when I went & washed, I receiued my sight. Then sayd they unto him: where is he? He sayd: I cã not tel. They brought to the Pharises, him that a litle before was blinde: and it Mat.xii.a Mar.ii.d. was ye *Sabboth day, when Iesus made the clay and opened his eyes. Thẽ again Luk.vi.a Iohn.v.b the Pharises also asked him, how he had and .vii.c receiued his sight. He sayd unto them: he put clay upon mine eyes, and I washed and do see. Therfore sayd some of ye Pharises: this man is not of God, bicause he kepeth not the Sabboth day. Other sayd *how can a man ye is a synner, do such Ioh.ix.g and.x.d. miracles? And there was a stryfe among them. They spake unto the blinde man again: what sayst thou of him, bicause he Ioh,vii,f hath opened thine eyes? He sayd: *he is a D Prophet.

But the Iewes did not beleue of ye man (how that he had bene blind, and receiued his sight) until they called the father and mother of him that had receiued his sight.

And they asked them saying: is this your sonne, whom ye say was born blind? How doth he now see then? His father and mother answered them, and sayd: we knowe that this is our sonne, and that he was borne blind, but by what meanes he now seeth, we can not tell: or who hath opened hys eyes cã not we tel. He is old enough aske him: let him answere for himselfe. E Such wordes spake his father and mother, bicause they feared the Iewes. For the Iewes had conspired already, that if any man did confesse ye he was Christ, * Ioh.xii.f. he should be excommunicate out of the Synagoge: Therfore sayd his father and mother: he is old enough ask hym. Then again called they the man ye was blynde, and sayd unto him: geue God the prayse: we know, that thys man is a synner. He answered therfore, and sayd: whether he be a synner or no, I can not tel: one thing I am sure of: ye wheras I was blind, now I see. Then sayd they to him again: what did he to thee? How opened he thine eies?
He answered them: I told you yer while F and ye did not heare. Wherfore would ye heare it againe? Will ye also be hys Disciples? Then rated they him, and sayde: be thou his Disciple. We are Moses Disciples. We are sure, that God spake unto Moses: as for this felow, we knowe not from whence he is. The man answered and sayd unto them: this is a maruellous thing, that ye wote not from whence he is, and yet hath he opened mine eies. For we be sure, ye God heareth not synners.
But if any man be a worshipper of God, and obedient unto his will, him heareth he. Sence the world began was it not heard, ye any man opened the eyes of one that was borne blinde. If this man wer not of God, he could haue doen nothyng.
They answered, and sayd unto hym: thou art altogether borne in sinne, and doest ye teache us? And they cast hym out. Iesus heard that they had excommunicate him: G and when he had founde him he sayd unto hym: doest thou beleue on the sonne of God? He answered and sayd,

Who is it Lord, that I might beleue on him? And Iesus sayd unto hym: thou hast Ioh.iiii.b sene him, *and he it is that talketh wyth thee. And he sayd: Lord I beleue, and he worshipped him. ✝ And Iesus sayd unto hym: I am come unto iudgemẽt into this world, that they which see not, might see: and that they which see, might be made blinde. And some of the Pharises which were with him, heard these wordes and sayd vnto him: are we blinde also? Jesus sayd vnto thē: if ye were blind, ye should Joh.xv.d haue no sinne. But now ye say we see: therfore your sinne remaineth.

The tenth Chapter.

Christ is the true shepehearde, and the doore of the shepe, he telleth the truthe, and therefore the Jewes take vp stones to cast at him, and cal his preaching blasphemie, and go about to take him.

A Verely, verely, I say vnto you: he that entereth not in, by the doore into the shepefold, but climeth vp some other way, thesame is a thefe and a murthe-rer. But he that entereth in by the dore, is the shepeherd of ye shepe: to him the porter openeth, and the sheepe heare hys voice, and he calleth his own Pro.x.d. shepe by name, and leadeth thē out. And when he hath sent forth his own shepe, he goeth before them, and the shepe folowe him: for they know his voice. A strāger wil they not folow but wil flie from him: for they know not ye voyce of strāgers.
This prouerbe spake Jesus vnto them, but they vnderstode not what thinges they were, which he spake vnto thē. Then B sayd Jesus vnto them again: verely, ve-Joh.xiiii.a. rely, I say vnto you: *I am the dore of ye shepe. Al (euē as mani as came before me) are theues and murtherers: but the shepe did not heare them. I am the dore by me if any man enter in, he shalbe safe, & shall go in and out, and finde pasture. A thefe commeth not but for to steale, kill and to destroy. I am come, that they might haue life, and that they might haue it more a-C boundauntly.
Eze.xxxiiii.f. I am *ye good shepeheard. A good shep-heard geueth his life for the shepe. An hi-Mic.v.a. red seruaunt, and he which is not ye shep-heard (neither the shepe are hys owne) seeth the wolfe comming, and leaueth the shepe, and flieth, and the wolfe catcheth, and scatereth the shepe. The hired ser-uaunt flyeth, bicause he is an hired ser-uaunt, and careth not for the shepe. I am ii.Ti.ii.c the good shepeheard *and know my shepe Mat.xi.d and am knowen of mine. *As my father Luk.x.d, knoweth me, euen so know I also my fa-Mat.x.f. ther. And *I geue my life for the shepe: D and other shepe I haue, which are not of thys folde.

Them also must I bring, and they shal heare my voyce, and there shalbe one fold and one shepeheard. Therfore doth my father loue me, bicause I put my life frō me, that I might take it again.

No man taketh it from me: but I put it away of my selfe. I haue power to put it from me, and I haue power to take it again. This commaundement haue I re-ceiued of my father. There was a dissention therefore againe among the Jewes for these sayinges, and many of thē sayd: *he hath ye deuill, and is mad, why heare ye him? Other sayd *these are not ye words Mat.xi.d of him ye hath the deuill. Can the deuill o- and .xii.b

*And it was at Jerusalem the feast of Joh.viii.f the dedication: and it was winter: and Je- Joh.viii.g sus walked in the temple, euen in *Sa- E lomons porche. Then came the Jewes iii.Kinges round about hym, and said vnto him: how vi.a. long doest thou make vs doubt? If thou Act.iii.b. be Christ, tel vs plainly. Jesus answered and.v.c. them: I tolde you and ye beleue not. The workes that I do in my fathers name, they beare witnesse of me.

But ye beleue not, bicause ye are not of my shepe. As I sayd vnto you: *my shepe heare my voyce: and I know them and Joh.viii.f they folow me, and I geue vnto them e- F ternal life: and they shal neuer perish, nether shal any man plucke them out of my hand. My father which gaue them me, is greater than all, and no man is able to take them out of my fathers hande. *I and my father are one.

*Thē the Jewes again toke vp stones Joh.xiiii.a. to stone him withall. Jesus answered thē: c.xvii.e. many good workes haue I shewed you Joh.viii.g from my father: for which of them do ye stone me? The Jewes answered hym, saying: for thy good workes sake we stone the not *but for thy blasphemy: and Joh.v.d. bicause that thou being a man makest thy selfe God. Jesus answered them: is it not written in your law *I sayd, ye are Ps.lxxxii Gods? If he called them Gods, vnto whō a. the worde of God was spoken (and the Ex.xxii.b Scripture can not be broken concerning G him whom the father hath sanctified, and sent into the world) do ye say that I blaspheme *bicause I sayd, I am the sonne of God? *If I doe not the workes of Mat.xxvi my father, beleue me not. But if I do, f. and if ye beleue not me, beleue the Mar.xiiii workes: that ye maye knowe and be- g.

went away again beyond Jordan, into ÿ John.i.b. place *where John before had Baptised, and there he abode. And many resorted vnto him, and sayd: John did no miracle, but *all thinges that John spake of thys there.

The eleuenth Chapter.

Christ rayseth Lazarus from death. The hye Priestes and Pharises gather a councell againste hym. He getteth hym out of the way.

A A Certain man was sycke named Lazarus, of Be-thania, the town of Mary, and her sister Martha. It was that Mary Luk.vii.f *which annointed Jesus with ointment, and wyped his fete with her heere, whose brother Lazarus was sicke. Therfore his systers sent vnto hym, saying: Lord, beholde, he whom thou louest, is sicke. When Jesus heard that, he sayd: this infirmitie is not vnto death, but for the prayse of god, that the sonne of God *might be praysed by ÿ Joh.ix.a. reason of it. Jesus loued Martha & her syster and Lazarus. When he had heard therfore, that he was sicke, he abode two dayes still in ÿ same place where he was.
B Then after that, sayd he to his Disciples let vs go into Jewry again. His Disciples sayd vnto him: master: the Jewes Joh.viii.d lately * sought to stone the, and wilt thou viii.g.x.r.f. goe thither againe: Jesus answered: are there not.xii.houres of ÿ day? If any man walke in the day he stombleth not, bicause he seeth the light of this world. But if a man walke in the night, he stombleth, bi-cause there is no light in hym. Thys said he, and after that he sayd vnto them: our Mat.ix.c. frẽd Lazarus *slepeth, but I go to wake Lu.viii.g hym out of slepe. Thẽ sayd hys Disciples: Mar.v.d. Lord, if he slepe, he shall do well enough.
Howbeit, Jesus spake of hys death: but they thought that he had spoke of the naturall slepe. Then sayd Jesus vnto them plainly: Lazarus is dead, and I am glad for your sakes, that I was not there, bi-cause ye may beleue: neuerthelesse, let vs go vnto him. Then said *Thomas which Joh.xx.f. is called Didimus, vnto the Disciples: let C vs also goe, that we may dye with him.
Then went Jesus, and founde that he had lyen in his graue foure dayes already. Bethany was nye vnto Jerusalem, about.xv. forlonges of, and many of the Jewes came to Martha and Mary to comfort them ouer their brother. Martha as-sone as she heard that Jesus was commyng, went and met hym but Mary sate still in the house.

Then sayd Martha vnto Jesus: lord if thou hadst bene here, my brother had John.xi.d not died, neuerthelesse, now I know that whatsoeuer thou askest of God, God will geue it thee. Jesus saith vnto her: thy brother shall ryse agayn.
Martha sayth vnto him: I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. Jesus sayth vnto her: I am the resurrectiõ and the *lyfe * he that beleueth on me, yea, though he were dead, John.i.a. yet shal he liue. and whosoeuer liueth and e.xiiii.a. beleueth on me, shall neuer dye: beleuest Joh.iii.b. thou this? She sayd vnto him: ye Lord, I Rom.i.b. Aba.ii.a. beleue that thou art Christ, the sonne of Heb.x.g.
God, which should come into the world. k And assone as she had so sayd, she wente her way, and called Mary her sister secretly saying: the master is come, and calleth for thee. Assone as she heard that: she arose quickly, and came vnto hym. Jesus was not yet come into the town: but was in that place where Martha mette hym. D The Jewes then which were with her in the house, and comforted her (when they saw Mary, that she rose vp hastyly and went out) folowed her, saying: she goeth vnto the graue, to wepe there.
Then when Mary was come where Jesus was, and saw him, she cõmeth nie vnto his fete, and sayth vnto him: Lord* if thou hadst bene here, my brother had John.xi.c not bene dead. When Jesus therfore saw her wepe (and the Jewes also weping which came with her) he groned in the spirite, and was troubled in himselfe, and sayd: where haue ye layd him? They sayd vnto him: Lorde, come and see. And *Je- Lu.xix.g. sus wept. Then sayd the Jewes: beholde how he loued hym. And some of thẽ sayd: could not he which * opened the eyes of the blinde, haue made also that this man Joh.ix.b. should not haue died? Jesus therefore a- E gaine groned in himselfe, and came to the graue. It was a caue, and a stone [illegible] on it.
Jesus sayd: take ye away the stone.
Martha the sister of him that was dead, sayd vnto him: Lord, by this time he stinketh, for he hath bene dead foure dayes.
Jesus sayeth vnto her: sayd I not vnto thee, that if thou didst beleue, thou shouldest see the glory of God? Then they toke away the stone from the place where he that had bene dead, was layed. And Jesus lift vp his eyes and sayde: father I thanke thee, ẏ thou hast heard me. Howbeit I knewe that thou hearest me al-Joh.xii.d wayes, but * bicause of the people which F stand by, I sayd it, that they may beleue, that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus had spoken, he cry-ed with a loude voice: Lazarus, come forth. * And he that was dead, came forth Joh.v.c. bounde hande and foote with graue clothes, & his face was bounde with a napkin. Jesus sayd vnto them: lose him, and let him goe. Then many of the Jewes which came to Mary (and had sene the Joh.vii.f thinges which Jesus did) * beleued on hi * But some of them went their wayes to the Pharises and told them what Jesus had done.

Mat.xxvi  Then gathered the hie Priestes and a the Pharises a counsel, and sayd: * what Mar.xiiii do we? For this man doth many miracles c If we let him scape thus, al men wil be-Lu.xxii.a leue on him, and the Romaines shal come Act.iiii.c. and take away both our roume and the people.

And one of them named Cayphas (being ẏ hie Priest that same yere) sayd vnto them: ye perceiue nothing at al, nor cō-Joh.xviii sider that * it is expedient for vs, that one
b. man dye for the people, and not that all G the people perish. Thys spake he not of himselfe, but being hie Priest that same yere, he prophecied that Jesus should die for the people, and not for the people one-ly, but that he shoulde gather together in one, the children of God, that wer scatte-Mat.xxvi red abroade. * Then from that day forth a. they toke coūsaill together for to put him Mar.xiiii to death.
a. Jesus therfore walked no more openly among the Jewes: but went his way thence vnto a countrey nye to a wildernesse into a citie which is called Ephraim and there continued with his Disciples.
* And the Jewes Easter was nie at hād, Mat.xxvi and many went out of the countrey vp to
b. Jerusalem before the Easter to purifie Mar.xiiii themselues. Then sought they for Jesus, a. and spake among themselues, as they Lu.xxii.a stode in the temple: * What thinke ye, se-ing he commeth not to the feast day? The Joh.vii.b hie Priestes and Pharises * had geuen a Joh.ix.c commaundement, that if any man knew where he were, he should shewe it, that they might take hym. *

The twelth Chapter. *

Mary annointeth Christes fete. Judas murmureth Christ excuseth her, and rideth into Jerusalē.

THen Jesus (sixe dayes be- A fore Easter) came to Be- Mat.xxvi thany, where Lazarus a. had bene dead, whom he Mar.xiiii raised from death. There a. they made him a supper, Lu.xxii.a and Martha serued but Lazarus was one of them that sate at the table with him. * Then toke Mary a pounde of oyntment (called Nardus, per- Lu.vii.f. fect and precious) and annointed Jesus fete, and wiped his fete with her heere, & the house was filled with the odour of the ointment. * Then sayd one of his Disci- Mat.xxvi ples (euen Judas Iscarioth Simons a. sonne, which afterward betrayed hym) Mar.xiiii why was not thys oyntment solde for a. three hundred pence, and geuen to the poore? Thys he sayd: not that he cared for the poore, but bicause he was a thefe, and * had the bagge and bare that which was Joh.xiii. geuen. Then sayd Jesus: let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept thys. For the poore alwayes shal ye haue with you, but me haue ye not alway. B Much people of the Jewes therfore had knowledge that he was there. And they came, not for Jesus sake onely, but that they might see Lazarus also, * whom he Joh.xi.b. raised from death. But the hie Priestes helde a counsell that they might put Lazarus to death also, bicause that for hys sake many of the Jewes went away, and beleued on Jesus. *

* On the next day much people ẏ were Mat.xxi.a come to the feast, when they heard that Mar.xi.a Jesus should come to Jerusalem, toke braunches of palme trees, & went forth to mete him, & cryed: Hosanna * blessed is Ps.cxviii he that in the name of the Lorde cōmeth d king of Israell. And Jesus got a yong Lu.xix.f. asse, and sat thereon, as it is wrytten * Esa.xliii feare not daughter of Sion: beholde, thy Zac.ix.b king commeth, sitting on an asses colte. Joh.xii.c These thinges vnderstode not his Disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembred they that suche thinges were written of him, and that suche thinges they had done vnto him.
The people that was with him (when he called Lazarus out of his graue, and raised him from death) bare recorde. Therefore met him the people also, bicause they heard that he had done suche a miracle.
The Pharises therfore sayd among themselues

selues: perceiue ye how we preuaile nothing? Beholde (all the whole) worlde goeth after him.
3.Kinges viii.c. 2.Pa.vi.f Act.viii.c *There were certaine grekes among them that came to worship at the feast: ye same came therfore to Philip (which was of Bethsaida a citie of Galile) & desired him, saying: sir, we would fain see Jesus.
Philip came and told Andrew, and again Andrew and Philip told Jesus. And Jesus answered them, saying: *the houre is Joh.xiii.d e.xvii.a. come, that the sonne of man must be glorified.
Esa.liii.d *Verely, verely, I say unto you: *ex-1.Cor.xv.e. cept the wheate corne fal into the ground and dye, it bideth alone. If it dye, it bringeth forth much fruite. * He that loueth Mat.x.d. his life, shal destroy it, and he that hateth and.xvi.d his life in this world, shall kepe it unto Mar.viii.d. lyfe eternall. If any man minister unto Lu.xii.b. me, let hym folow me, and *where I am, Joh.xiii.a e.xvii.d. there shall also my minister be. If any mã minister unto me, him wil my father honor.
Now is my soule troubled, and what shal I say? Father deliuer me from thys houre: but therefore came I unto this houre. Father glorifie thy name. Then came there a voice from heauen, saying: I haue both glorified it, and wil glorifie it againe. The people therfore that stode by and heard it, sayd that it thondred. Other sayd, an Angel spake to him. Jesus answered and sayd: this voice came not bi-Joh.xi.c. cause of me: *but for your sakes.
Joh.xv.d and.xvi.b Now is the iudgement of this world now shal the Prince of this world be cast out. And I (If I were lift up from the earth) wil draw al men unto me. This he said, signifying what death he should dye.
The people answered him: we haue heard out of the law, *that Christ bideth euer: & Psa.cx.a. how sayest thou, the sonne of man muste Esai.ix.b be lift up? Who is ye sonne of man? Then Da.vii.d Jesus sayd unto them: yet a litle while is Mich.v.a the light with you. *Walk while ye haue Eph.v.c. light, lest the darknesse come on you. He that walketh also in the darke, wotteth not whither he goeth. While ye haue light, beleue on the light, that ye maye be the children of the light.
These thinges spake Jesus, and depar-F ted, and hid himselfe frõ thẽ. But though he had done so many miracles before thẽ, yet beleued not they on him: that the saying of Esaias the Prophet might be ful-Esa.liii.a filled, which he spake: *Lord, who shall Rom.x.c. beleue our saying? And to whom is the arme of the Lorde declared? Therefore could they not beleue, bicause that Esai-as sayeth againe: *he hath blinded theyr Esa.vi.c. eyes, and hardened their heart, that they Mat.xiii.b. should not see with their eyes, and leaste Mar.iiii.b. they should understande with their heart and should be conuerted, and I shoulde Lu.viii.b heale them. Such thinges sayd Esaias, Ac.xxviii.f. when he saw his glory, & spake of hym.
Neuerthelesse among the chief rulers also, many beleued on him, But (bicause of ye Pharises) they would not be acknowen of it *lest they should be excommunicate. Joh.ix.e.
*For they loued the prayse of men, more Joh.v.g. than the praise of God.
Jesus cryed, and sayd: he that beleueth G on me, beleueth not on me, but on him that sent me. And he that seeth me, seeth him that sent me. *I am come *a light in Joh.i.a.iii to the world: that whosoeuer beleueth on c.viii.b me, should not bide in darknesse. And if a- and.ix.a. ny man heare my words, and beleue not,
I iudge hi not. For *I came not to iudge Joh.iii.b. the world: but to saue the world. He that refuseth me, and receiueth not my words hath one that iudgeth him. The worde ye I haue spoken, the same shall iudge hym in the last day. For I haue not spoken of my selfe: but the father which sent me, he gaue me a cõmaundemẽt what I should say, and what I should speake. And I knowe that his commaundemente is lyfe euerlasting. Whatsoeuer I speake therefore, euen as the Father bad me, so I speake.

The.xiii. Chapter.

Christ washeth the disciples fete, telleth them of Judas the traytoure, and commaundeth them earnestly to loue one another.

BEfore the feast of Easter, A when Jesus knewe that his houre was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father: when he loued hys which were in ye worlde, unto the ende he loued them. And when supper was ended, after that the Deuill had *put into the heart of Judas Iscarioth Simons sonne, to betray him Jesus Mat.xxvi knowing that *the father had geuen all b. thinges into hys handes, and ye he was Mar.xiiii come from God, and went to god, he rose b. from supper, and laied aside his upper Mat.xi.d garmentes, and when he had taken a to- e.xxviii. well, he girded himselfe. After that, he Luke.x.d powred water into a basen, and began to Joh.iii.a.

washe the Disciples fete, and to wype them with the towell, wherewith he was girded.
Then came he to Simon Peter. And Peter sayd vnto him: Lord doest thou wash my fete? Jesus answered, and sayd vnto him: what I do, thou wottest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter. Peter said vnto him: thou shalt neuer wash my fete. Jesus answered him: if I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me. Symon Peter saith vnto hym: Lord, not my fete onely: but also the handes, and the head. Jesus sayth vnto him: he that is washed nedeth not, saue to wash hys fete but is cleane eueri whit. And ye ar cleane Joh.vi.g. *but not all. For he knew who it was y should betray him. Therfore sayd he: ye are not all cleane. So after he had washed their fete, and receiued his clothes, and was set down he sayd vnto them again: wot ye what I haue done to you?
Ye call me master and Lorde, and ye saye wel, for so am I. If I then your Lord, & Eph.v.a, master haue washed your fete, ye also i.Pet.ii.d ought to wash one anothers fete. For * I Math.x.c haue geuen you an ensample, y ye should Luk.vi.f do, as I haue don to you: *Verely, veresenger greater than he that sent him.

Luk.xi.d If ye vnderstande these thyngs *happy are ye, if ye do them. I speake not of you all, I know whom I haue chosen.
Psa.xli.b But that the Scriptures may be fulfyl-

b. lift vp his hele against me. Now *tell I and xvi.a you before it come: that when it is come to passe, ye might beleue that I am he. Ve-rely, verely, I say vnto you: *He that re-Mat.x.d, ceiueth whomsoeuer I sende, receyueth Luk.ix.c me. And he that receiueth me, receiueth

And he sayth unto them: beholde the man. * When the hie Priestes therfore & Mathe ministers saw him, they cried, saying: cru- xxvii. c cify him, crucify him. Pilate saith unto the Mar.xv a Take ye him, and crucife him, for I finde Lu.xxiii d no cause in him.

The Iewes aunswered him: we haue * Le.xxiiii.c a lawe, and by our lawe he ought to dye: John.v.b because * he made himselfe the sonne of B God. When Pilate heard that saying, he was the more afrayd, and went again into the iudgement hall, and sayth unto Ie-sus: whence art thou? But Iesus gaue him none answer. Then said Pilate unto hym: Speakest thou not unto me? Knowest thou not that I haue power to crucifye thee, and haue power to lose thee? Ie-sus aunswered: Thou couldest haue no Sap.vi.a power at all against me, * except it were Joh.iii.d. geuen thee from aboue. Therfore he that Ro.xiii.a deliuered me unto thee, hath the more mat.xxvii sinne. * And from thencefoorth soughte d.
Pylate meanes to loose hym: but the Mar.xv.c Iewes cryed, saying: yf thou let hym go, Lu.xxiii.e thou art not Cesars frende. For * whoso- Ac.xvii.b euer maketh himselfe a kyng, is agaynst Cesar.

When Pylate hearde that saying, he brought Iesus foorth, and sat downe to C geue sentence, in a place that is called the pauemente: but in the Hebrue tong, Gabbatha. It was the preparyng day of the Easter, about the sixt houre. And he saith unto the Iewes: beholde your king.
They cryed, away with hym, awaie with hym, crucify him. Pylate sayeth unto them: shall I crucifye your kyng? The hie priestes aunswered we haue no kyng but Cesar: * Then deliuered he him un- Mathe to them to bee crucified. And they tooke xxvii.d Iesus, and led hym awaye. And he bare Mar.xv.e his crosse, * and went foorth into a place, Lu xxiii e whiche is called the place of dead mens Heb.xiii c sculles: But in Hebrue, Golgotha: where D they crucifyed hym, and two other with hym, on eyther syde one, and Ie-sus in the myddes. * And Pylate wrote a tytle and put it on the crosse. The wry- Mathe tyng was: Iesus of Nazareth kyng of xxvii.d the Iewes. Thys title read manye of Mar.xv.e the Iewes. For the place where Iesus Lu xxiii e was crucifyed, was nye to the citie. And it was written in Hebrue and Greeke, and Latin. Then saide the hye priestes of the Iewes to Pilate: wryte not kyng of the Iewes, but that he sayde, I am kyng of the Iewes. Pylate aunswered: what I haue written, that haue I wrytten.

Then

E Then the souldiers,*whē they had cru-Math. xxvii.d cified Jesus, they toke his garmentes and Mar.xv.c made foure partes, to euery souldyer a Lu.xxiii.e part, and also his coat. The coate was wt out seme, wrought vppon throughout.
They sayd therfore among themselues, Let vs not deuide it, but cast lottes for it, who shall haue it. That ye scripture might Ps.xxii.a be fulfilled, saying:* Thei parted my raiment among them, and for my coate dyd they cast lots. And the souldiers did suche thinges in dede. There stode by the crosse of Jesus, his mother, and his mothers sister, Mary the wyfe of Cleophas, & Mary Magdalene. When Jesus therefore Joh.xiii.a saw his mother, and the disciple standing *whom he loued, he sayeth vnto his mother: woman, beholde thy sonne. Then said he to the disciple: behold thy mother.
And from that houre the Disciple tooke her for his owne. After these thinges Jesus knowyng that all thinges were now F perfourmed: that*the scripture might bee Ps.lxix.c. fulfilled, he sayth: I thirst. So there stode a vessell by, full of Vineger.*Therefore mat.xxvii f. they filled a spunge with Vineger, and Mar.xv.d wounde it aboute with Isope, and putte it to his mouthe. As soone as Jesus then receyued of the Vineger, he sayde: Joh.xvii.a, *It is finished, and bowed his head, and gaue vp the Ghost. The Jewes therefore because it was the preparyng of the Sabboth, that the bodyes shoulde not remayne vppon the crosse on the Sab-both daye (for that Sabboth daye was an hye daye) besoughte Pilate, that their legges might be broken, and that they myghte bee taken downe. Then came the souldiers, and brake the legges of the firste, and of the other whiche was crucified with hym. But when they came to Jesus, and sawe that he was dead already, they brake not his legges: but one of G the souldiers with a speare, thrust hym in to the side, and forthwith came there out bloude and water. And he that sawe it, bare recorde, and his recorde is true.
And he knoweth that he saieth true, ye ye might beleue also. For these thynges were done that the scripture shoulde bee fulfilled.* ye shall not breake a bone of Ex.xii.g. hym. And agayne another scrypture Nu.ix.b sayeth:*they shall looke on hym, whom Zac.xii.c they pearsed.*After this, Joseph of Ara-Math xxvii.g. mathia (whiche was a disciple of Jesus: Mar.xv.d but secretely for feare of the Jewes) be-Lu.xxiii. sought Pylate, that he might take downe G the body of Jesus. And Pilate gaue hym licence. (He came therfore, and tooke the body of Jesus.) And there came also Nicodemus (whiche at the beginnyng came to Jesus by night) and brought of myrre & aloes mingled together, about an hundred pound weight. Then tooke they the body of Jesus, and wound it in linnē clothes with the odours, as the maner of ye Jewes is to bury. And in the place where he was crucified, there was a garden, and in the garden a newe Sepulchre, wherin was neuer man laid. There laid they Jesus therefore, because of the preparyng of the Sabboth of the Jewes, for the sepulchre was nie at hande.

The.xx. Chapter.

The resurrection of Christ, whiche appeareth to Mary Magdalene and to all his disciples, to theyr great comforte.

The firste day of the Sab- A bothes (came Mary Mag Math xxviii.a dalene earely whē it was Lu.xxiiij a yet dark) vnto ye sepulchre and sawe the stone taken Mar.xvi.a away from ye graue. Thē she ran, & came to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple* whō Je- Joh.xiii.c sus loued, & saieth vnto them: They haue and.xix.e taken away the lord out of the graue, and and.xxi.f, we cannot tel where they haue laid him.
Peter therfore went forth, and ye other disciple, and came to the sepulchre. They ran bothe together, and the other disciple did outrunne Peter, and came first to the sepulchre. And whē he had stouped down he sawe the linnen clothes lying, yet wēt Lu.xxiiii. a. he not in.* Then came Simon Peter folowing him, and went into the Sepulchre, and sawe the linnen clothes lye, and the napkin that was about his head, not lying with the linnen clothes, but wrap- B ped together in a place by it selfe. Then went in also that other disciple, whiche came first to the sepulchre and he saw and beleued. For as yet they knewe not the Ps.xvi.b. *scripture, that he should rise again from Acte.ii.b. death. xiii.e.xvii f, Then the disciples went away again vnto theyr owne house.
 Mary stoode withoute at the Se- Lu.xxiiii. a pulchre wepyng. So as she wepte, she bowed her selfe into the Sepulchre, and seeth two Aungels clothed in whyte, syttyng the one at the heade, and the other at the feete, where they had layde the bo- C dye of Jesus. They saye vnto her: woman, why wepest thou? She sayeth vnto them: for they haue taken awaye my Lorde,

Lorde, and I wote not where they haue layde hym. When she had thus sayde, she tourned her selfe backe, and sawe Jesus standyng, and knewe not that it was Jesus. Jesus sayeth vnto her, woman, why D wepest thou? whom sekest thou? She supposyng that he had bene a gardener, sayeth vnto hym: Syr, if thou haue borne him hence, tell me where thou haste layde hym, and I wyll fette hym. Jesus sayth vnto her: Mary. She tourned her selfe, and sayde vnto hym: Rabboni: whiche is to saye: Maister. Jesus sayeth vnto her: touche me not, for I am not yet ascended to my father. But go to * my brethren, & Ps. xxii. c saye vnto them: I ascende vnto my fa-Heb. ii. c. ther and your father: and to my god, and Joh. xvi. f your god. Mary Magdalene came and Lu. xxiiii. a tolde the disciples, that she had seen ye lord and that he had spoken such thinges vnto her.

Lu. xxiiii. f *Thesame daye at night, which was the fyrst daye of the Sabbothes, when ye E doores were shutte (where the disciples were assembled together for feare of the Jewes) came Jesus and stoode in the myddes, and sayeth vnto them: peace be vnto you. And when he had so sayde, he shewed vnto them his handes and his Joh. xvi. d syde. Then were the disciples gladde when they sawe the Lorde. Then saide Jesus to them againe: peace be vnto you.
Esa. lxi. a As my father * sente me, euen so sende I Mat. xi. a. you also. And when he had sayde those Lu. iiii. c. woordes, he breathed on them, and sayeth Joh. xvii. c vnto them: Receiue ye the holy ghost.
F Whosoeuers synnes ye remit, they are remitted vnto thē. And whosoeuers sinnes ye retein, they are reteined.

But * Thomas one of the twelue Joh. xi. b. (whiche is called Didimus) was not with them, when Jesus came. The other Disciples therefore sayde vnto him: we haue seen the Lorde. But he sayd vnto them: excepte I see in his handes the print of the nayles, and putte my finger into the printe of the nayles, and thruste my hande into hys syde, I wyl not beleue. And after eyght dayes, agayne his disciples were within, and Thomas with them. Then came Jesus when the dores were shut, and stode in the middes and sayde: peace be vnto you. After that G sayde he to Thomas, bryng thy fynger hyther, and see my handes, and reache hyther thy hande, and thruste it into my syde, and bee not faithlesse, but beleuyng.
Thomas aunswered, and sayde vnto him my lorde & my god: Jesus saith vnto him: Thomas, because thou hast seen me thou haste beleued: blessed: are they that haue not seen, and yet haue beleued.

And many other signes truely did Je- Joh. xxi. g sus in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this booke. These are written, that ye might beleue, that Jesus is Christ the sonne of god, and that (in beleuyng) ye myght haue life throughe hys name.

The. xxi. Chapter.

He appeareth to his disciples againe by the sea of Tiberias, and commaundeth Peter earnestly to fede his shepe.

Afterward did Jesus shew A him selfe againe, at the sea of Tiberias. And on thys wise shewed he himselfe.
There were together Symon Peter and Thomas (which is called Didimus) and * Nathanael of Cana in Galile, & the sonnes of John. i. f.
Zebede, & two other of his disciples. Symon Peter sayth vnto them: I wyll go a fisshyng. They saye vnto hym: we also wil goe with thee. They went their way and B entred into a shyp immediately, and that night caught thei nothing. But when the morning was now come, Jesus stode on the shore: neuerthelesse ye disciples knew not that it was Jesus. Jesus sayeth vnto them: Children, haue ye any meate? They answered him, no. And he sayth vnto thē: cast oute the net on the right syde of the Luk. v. a. shyp, and ye shall fynde. They caste out therfore, and anone they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fishes. Then said the disciple * whom Jesus loued vnto Peter, it is the lord: when Simon Pe- C ter hearde that it was the Lorde, he girde Joh. xiii. e his coate vnto him (for he was naked) and and. xix. e sprang into the sea. The other Disciples came by ship, for they were not farre from land, but as it were two hundred cubites and they drew the net with fishes. Assone then as they were come to land, they saw hoate coales, and fishe layde thereon, and bread. Jesus sayeth vnto them: * bring of Lu. xxiiii. the fishe which ye haue now caught. Sy- f. mon Peter went vp, and drew the net to D lande ful of great fishes, an hundred and liii. And for all there were so manye, yet was not the net broken. Jesus sayeth vnto them, come and dine. And none of the disciples durste aske hym: what art thou?
For they knewe that it was the lorde. Jesus

sus then came, and tooke bread, and gaue them, and fish likewise. This is now the third time that Jesus appeared to his disciples, after that he was risen again from C death. ¶
So when they had dined, Jesus sayth to Simon Peter: Simon Joanna, louest thou me more than these? He saide vnto hym: yea Lord, thou knowest, that I loue thee. He sayth vnto him: fede my lambes.
He sayeth to hym agayn the second time: Simon Joanna louest thou me? He saith vnto him: yea Lorde, thou knowest that I loue thee. He sayde vnto hym: feede my shepe. He said vnto him ye third time. Simon Joanna louest thou me? Peter was sorye because he sayde vnto hym the third time, louest thou me: & he sayd vnto him: Joh.xvi.g Lorde, thou * knowest all thinges: thou knowest that I loue thee. Jesus sayeth vnto hym: fede my shepe. Verelye, verely, I saye vnto thee: when thou waste yong, thou girdedst thy self, and walkedst why-ther thou wouldest: but when thou arte F Joh xiii d Act.xii.a. olde * thou shalt stretche foorth thy hands and another shal girde thee, and lead thee whither thou wouldest not. That spake he, signifying by what death he shoulde glorify god.
And when he had spoken this, he sayth vnto him: * folowe me. Peter tourned a-Joh.xiii.c xix.e. and xx.a. boute, and sawe the disciple * whom Jesus loued, folowyng (whiche also leaned on his breste at supper, and sayde: Lord: whiche is he that betrayeth thee?) When Peter therefore sawe him, he sayeth to Jesus: Lorde, what shall he here doe? Jesus sayeth vnto him: If I wyl haue him to tary til I come, what is that to thee? fo-G lowe thou me. Then went this saying abrode among the brethren, that the dysci-ple should not die: yet Jesus sayde not to hym, he shall not die: but if I will that he tary till I come, what is that to thee? The same disciple is he which testifieth of these thinges, and wrote these things. And we knowe that his testimony is true. ¶ Joh.xx.g. * There are also many other thinges which Jesus did, the which if they should be written euery one, I suppose ye worlde could not conteine the bookes ye shoulde be written.

pell of S. John.

¶ The Actes of the Apostles.

¶ The first Chapter.

The ascention of Christ. Mathias is chosen in the stede of Judas.

IN the former Treatyse A (deare Theophilus) wee sus began to do & teache, vntill the day in which he was taken vp, after that he through the holy ghost

¶The second Chapter.

The commyng of the holy ghost. The Sermon of Peter before the congregation at Jerusalem, & the increase of the faithfull.

When * the fiftye dayes A De.xvi.b Le.xxiii.c were come to an end, they were all with one accord together in one place. And sodainly there came a sounde from heauen, as it had bene the commyng of a mighty wynde, and it filled al y^e house where they sat. And there appeared vnto them clouen tonges, like as they had ben of fyer, and it sat vpon eche one of them: Act.iiii.d. xi.b. * and they wer filled with the holy ghost, and beganne to speake with other tonges euen as the same spirite gaue them vtteraunce.

There were dwelling at Jerusalem, B Jewes deuoute mē, out of euery natiō of them, that are vnder heauen. When this was noised about, the multitude came together, and were astonied, because that e-uery man heard thē speake with his own language. They wondred all, & marueyled, saying among themselues: beholde, are not all these whiche speake of Galile?
And howe heare we euery man his owne tong wherein wee were borne? Parthy-ans, and Medes and Elamites, and the inhabitors of Mesopotamia, and of Jewry, and of Capadocia, of Pontus and Asia Phrigia, and Pamphilia, of Egipt and of y^e parties of Libia which is beside Siren, and straungers of Rome, Jewes and * Procelites, Greekes and Arabians we Math xxiii b haue heard them speake in our own tōges the great workes of God. They wer all amased and wondred, saying one to another: what meaneth this? Other mocked, saying: these men are ful of new wyne.

*But

C ✢But Peter stepped foorth with the eleuen, and lift vp his voice, and sayde vnto them: ye men of Iewry, and all ye that dwel at Ierusalem, be this knowen vnto you, & with your eares heare my wordes. For these are not dronken, as ye suppose seing it is but the third houre of the daye. But this is that whiche was spoken by ẏ Prophete Ioel: and it shalbee in the laste daies, saith god: of my spirite I will poure out vpon all fleshe.

Ioel .ii.g *And your sonnes & your daughters, shall prophecy, and your yong men shall se visions, and your old men shall dreame dreames. And on my seruauntes and on my handmaidens, I wyll poure out of my spirite in those daies, and they shall Prophecy. And *I wil shew wonders in heauen aboue, and tokens in the earth beneath, bloude and fier, and the vapour of darkenesse, and the moone into bloud, before that great and notable daye of the Lord come.

Math. xxvii.e Lu xxiii.f

Rom.x.c. And it shall come to passe, that *whosoeuer shal call on the name of the lord, shal be saued.✢

D ✢Ye men of Israell, heare these woordes: Iesus of Nazareth a man approued of God among you with miracles, wonders and signes, whiche God did by him in the middes of you (as ye your selues knowe) him haue ye taken by the handes of vnrighteous persōs, after he was deliuered by ẏ determinate counsell and foreknowledge of god, and haue crucified and slain him, whom god hath raised vp: and losed the sorowes of death, because it was vnpossible, that he shoulde bee holden of it.

Psa.xvi.c For Dauid speaketh of him: *aforehand I sawe God alwaies before me, for he is on my right hande: that I shoulde not bee moued. Therfore did my hearte reioyce, and my tong was glad. Moreouer also my flesh shall reste in hope, because thou wilt not leaue my soule in hell, neyther wilt thou suffer thy holy to see corruptiō. Thou hast shewed me the waies of lyfe: thou shalt make me full of ioye with thy countenaunce.✢

E Ye men and brethrē, let me frely speake vnto you of the Patriarke Dauid. *For he is both dead and buried, and his sepulchre remaineth with vs vnto this daye. Therfore, seing he was a Prophete, and knewe that god had sworne with an othe to him, ẏ Christ (as concerning the fleshe) should come of the fruit of his loines, and shoulde sit on his seate: he knowing this before, spake of the resurrection of Christ that his soule should not be left in hel: nether his flesh should see corruption. This Iesus hath god raised vp, *wherof we all are witnesses.

3.Kinges ii.b

F Actes.i.a

Since nowe that he by the right hand of god is exalted, and hath receiued of the father the promise of ẏ holy ghost, he hath shed forth this (gifte) which ye now se and heare. For Dauid is not ascēded into heauen, but he saith: *the lord said to my lord sit thou on my right hande, vntill I make thy foes thy fotestoole. So therefore lette all the house of Israell knowe for a suertie, that GOD hath made that same Iesus (whom ye haue crucified) Lorde and Christ.

Psa.cx.a. Mat.xxii. d.

When they hearde this, they were pricked in their heartes, and sayde vnto Peter, and vnto the other Apostles: ye men and brethren, *what shall we doe? Peter saide vnto them, repente of youre sinnes, and be baptised euery one of you in ẏ name of Iesus Christ, for the remission of sinnes, and ye shal receiue the gifte of the holy ghost. For the promise was made vnto you and to your children, and to al that are a farre of, euen as many as the lord our god shal call. And with many other wordes bare he witnesse, and exhorted them, saying: saue youre selues from this vntowarde generation. Then they that gladly receiued his preachyng, were baptised, and ẏ same day, there wer added vnto them, about three thousande soules.

And they continued in the Apostles doctrine and felowship, and in breakyng of bread, and in praiers. And feare came ouer euery soule. And many wonders and signes were shewed by the Apostles: (at Ierusalem. And great feare came vpon al men.) And all that beleued, kept themselues together, and had all thinges common, and solde their possessions and goodes, and parted them to all men, as euerye man had nede. And they continued daily wyth one accord in the temple, and brake bread from house to house, and dyd eate their meate together, with gladnesse & singlenesse of heart, praising god, & had fauour with all the people. And the lord added to the congregation dailye, suche as shoulde be saued. G

The halt is restored to his fete. Peter preacheth Christ vnto the people.

A Peter and John went vp together into the temple at ẏ ninth houre of prayer. And a certaine man ẏ was halt from his mothers wōbe was brought whom they layed daily at the gate of the temple (which is called beutifull) to aske almes of them that entred into the temple. When he saw Peter and John, ẏ they would go into the temple, he desired to receiue an almes. And Peter fastned his eyes on him wt John, and sayd: loke on vs. And he gaue hede vnto them, trusting to receiue some thing of them. Then sayd Peter: siluer & golde haue I none, such as I haue, geue I thee in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth

The fourth Chapter.

The Apostles are taken and brought before the councell They are forbidden to preache, but they turne them vnto prayer, and are more obediēt vnto God than vnto men.

The.v.Chapter.

The dissembling of Ananias and Saphira is punished. Miracles are done by the Apostles, which are taken, but the Angel of God bringeth them out of prison. They are brought before the councell The sentence of Gamaliell. The Apostles are beaten, they reioyce in trouble.

A cer-

A A Certaine man named Ananias, with Saphira his wife, solde a possessiō and kept away part of ỹ price (his wife also being of councel) and brought a certaine part, and laied it down at the Apostles fete. But Peter said: Ananias, how is it, that Satā hath filled thine heart, that thou shouldest lye vnto the holy ghost, and kepe away part of the price of the lande? perteined it not vnto thee onely? and after it was solde, was it not in thine own power? Why hast thou conceiued this thing in thine heart? Thou hast not lied vnto men, but vnto God. When Ananias heard these wordes he fell down and gaue vp the ghost. And great feare came on all them, that heard these thinges. And the yong men rose vp and put him apart, and caried him out, and buried him.

B And it fortuned, that (as it were about the space of three houres after) his wife came in, ignoraunt of that which was done. And Peter said vnto her: tell me, sold ye not ỹ lād for so much? And she said yea, for so much. Then Peter sayd vnto her: why haue ye agreed together, to tēpt the spirite of the Lord? Behold the fete of them which haue buried thy husband, are at the dore, and shal cary thee out. Then fel she down straight way at his fete, and yelded vp the ghost. And the yong men came in, and founde her dead, and caried her out, and buried her by her husbande. And great feare came on all the congregation, and on as many as heard it.

C By the handes of the Apostles * were many signes and wonders shewed amōg the people. And they were altogether with one accorde in * Salomons porche. And of other, durst no man ioyne himself to them: neuerthelesse the people magnified them.

D There came also a multitude out of the cities roūd about, vnto Jerusalem, bringing sicke folkes, and them whiche were vexed with vncleane spirites. And they were healed euery one. * Then the chiefe Priest rose vp, and al they that were with him (which is the sect of the Sadduces) & were full of indignation, and laied hands on the Apostles, and put them in the common prison: * But the Angell of the Lord by night opened the prison dores, and brought them forth, and said, go and stād and speake in the temple to the people all the wordes of this life. C But when the tyme of the promise drewe nye which God had sworne to Abraham, [Exo. i. a. Ps. cvi. c.] * the people grew and multiplyed in Egipt, til another king arose which knewe not of Joseph. Thesame dealt subtelly with our kynred, and euill intreated our fathers, and made them to caste out their yong children, that they should not remain aliue.

[Exo. ii. a. Heb. xi. e.] * Thesame tyme was Moses borne, and was acceptable vnto God, and norished vp in his fathers house thre monethes. When he was cast out, Pharaos daughter toke him vp and norished hym vp for her own sonne. And Moses was learned in all maner wisedome of the Egiptians, and was mightie in dedes and in wordes.

And when he was full forty yeare olde it came into his heart, to visite hys brethren the children of Israell. And when he sawe one of them suffer wrong, he defended hym, and auenged hys quarell that had the harme done to hym, and smote the Egiptian. For he supposed his brethren would haue vnderstande, how that God by hys hande shoulde delyuer them. But they vnderstode not.

And the next day he shewed himselfe D vnto them as they stroue, and woulde haue set them at one agayne, saying: sirs ye are brethren, why hurte ye one another? But he that did his neighboure wrong thrust hym away, saying: * who made thee a ruler and a iudge ouer vs? [Ge. xix. b Exo. ii. c. * [Exo. iii. a] And when forty yeres were expired there appeared to hym in the wildernesse of mount Sinai, an Angell of the Lord, in a flame of fier, in a bushe. When Moses saw it, he wondred at the syghte. And as he drew neare to behold, ÿ voyce of the Lord came vnto hym: * I am the [Ex. iii. b. Mat. xxij c.] God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. [Mar. xii c Lu. xx. e] Moses trembled, and durst not beholde. Then sayd the Lord to hym. * Put of thy [Josu. v. d] shoes from thy fete, for the place where ÿ standest, is holy ground. I haue perfectly sene the affliction of my people whiche is in Egipt, and I haue heard their groning, and am come downe to deliuer the. And now come and I will sende thee into Egipt. Thys Moses whom they for- E soke (saying, * who made thee a ruler and [Exo. ii. c.] a iudge?) thesame dyd God sende to be a ruler, and a deliuerer by the hands of the Angel which apeared to him in the bushe. And thesame brought them out, shewing wonders and signes in Egipt, and in the read sea, and in the wildernesse fourtye yeares. Thys is that Moses, which sayd vnto the children of Israell: * a Prophete [Deu. xviii. c. Act. iii. d.] shall the Lord your God rayse vp vnto you of your brethren, like vnto me, hym shall ye heare.

Thys is he * that was in the congregation, in the wildernesse with the Angel [Exo. xix. xx. b. Gal. iii. e] (which spake to him in the mount Sinai) and with our fathers. Thys man receyued the worde of lyfe to geue vnto vs, to whom our fathers would not obey, but cast it from them, and in their heartes turned backe againe into Egipt, saying vnto Aaron: * make vs Gods to goe before vs. [Exodus. xxxii. a.] For as for thys Moses that brought vs out of the lande of Egipt, we wote not what is become of hi. Peter arose, and came with them. And when he was come, they brought him in-

Dorcas made, while she was wyth them.

Whyle Peter also mused in hymselfe what this vision (whiche he had seene)

While Peter thought on the vision, the spirite sayde vnto hym: beholde men seke and goe with them, and doubt not: for I haue sent them. Peter went downe to the men which were sent vnto hym from Cornelius, and sayde: Beholde, I am he

And Cornelius sayde: This daye now

For as muche then as GOD gaue them helde theyr peace, and glorifyed God, saying:

ing: then hath God also to the Gentyles graunted repentaunce vnto lyfe.

Ac.viii.a *They also whiche were scattered abrode through the affliction that arose about Steuen, walked throughout vnto Phenices, and Cipers, and Antioche, preaching the worde to no man, but vnto the Jewes onely. Some of them were men of Cipers and Siren: whiche when they were come to Antioche, spake vnto the Grekes, and preached the Lorde Jesus. And the hande of the Lord was with them, and a greate number beleued and turned vnto the Lorde.

D Tidinges of these thinges came vnto the eares of þ congregation, whiche was in Jerusalem. And they sent foorth Barnabas that he should goe vnto Antioche. Whiche when he came, and had sene the grace of GOD, was glad, and *exhorted them all that with purpose of hearte, they would continually cleaue vnto the lorde. (Act.xiii.c) For he was a good man, and full of the holy ghost and of faith, and muche people was added vnto the lorde. Then departed Barnabas to Tharsus, for to seeke Saule. And when he had founde hym, he brought him vnto Antioch. And it chaunsed, that a whole yeare thei had their conuersation with the congregation there, & taught muche people, insomuche that the disciples of Antioche, were the firste that were called Christen.

Act.xxi.b *In those daies came Prophets from the citie of Jerusalem vnto Antioche. Whiche thing they also dyd, and sent it to the Elders by þ handes of Barnabas & Saule.

The twelfth Chapter.

Herode persecuteth the Christen, killeth James and putteth Peter in prison, whom the lord deliuereth by an Angell. The shamefull death of Herode.

AT the same tyme Herode the king stretched foorth his handes to vexe certayn of the congregation. And he killed *James þ brother of John with the swerd. And because he saw that it pleased þ Jewes, he proceded further, & toke Peter also. Then wer the daies of swete bread. And when he had caught him, he put him in prison also and deliuered him to.iiii. quaternions of souldiers to be kept: intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people. And Peter was kept in prisō. But praier was made without ceasing of the congregation vnto God for him. And when Herod would haue broughte hym out vnto the people the same night slepte Peter betwene two souldiers, bounde with two chaines, and the kepers before the dore kept the prison.

And beholde, *the angell of the Lord was there presente, and a lyghte shyned in þ habitation. (Acte.v.b) And he smote Peter on þ syde, and styrred hym vp, saying: arise vp quickly. And his chaynes fell of from his handes. And the angell sayde vnto hym: gyrde thyselfe, and bynde on thy sandales: and so he dyd. And he sayth vnto him cast thy garmente about thee, and folowe me. And he came oute and folowed him and wiste not that it was truthe whiche was done by the aungell, but thought he had sene a vision. B When they were past þ first and the second watch, they came vnto the yron gate, that leadeth vnto the city *whiche opened to them by the owne accord. (Acte.v.b. & xvi.c.) And they wente out, and passed thorowe one strete, and forthwith the angel departed from him. And when Peter was come to himself, he said: now I knowe of a suretie, that the Lorde hath sent his angell, and hath deliuered me out of þ hand of Herode: and frō al the waiting for of þ people of the Jewes.

C *And as he considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of one John (whose sirname was Marke) where many were gathered together *in prayer. (Acte.i.b.) As Peter knocked at þ entry dore, a damsel came forth to hearken, named Rhoda. And whē she knew Peters voice, she opened not the entry for gladnesse, but ran in, and tolde how Peter stode before the entry. And they said vnto her: thou art mad. But she affirmed that it was eue so. Then sayd they, it is his angell. But Peter continued knocking: and when they had opened the doore, and sawe hym, they were astonyed.

*And when he had beckened vnto them wyth the hende, that they myght holde theyr peace, he tolde them by what meanes the Lorde had brought hym oute of the prison. (Act.iii.c.)

And

And he sayde: go shewe these thynges vnto James and to the brethren. And he departed, and went into another place.
Assoone as it was daye, there was no ly-become of Peter. When Herode had sought for him, and found hym not, he examined the kepers, and commaunded thē Jewry to Cesarea, and there abode. He-to him, & made intercession vnto Blastus because theyr countrey was nourished by the kynges prouision. And vppon a daye appointed, Herode arayed him in royall apparel, and set him in his seat, and made an oration vnto them. And the people

Paule and Barnabas are called to preach amōg the heathen. Of Sergius Paulus and Elimas the sorcerer. Paule preacheth at Antioche.

their minister. When they had gone tho-certayn sorcerer (a false Prophet, a Jew) whose name was Barjesu, whiche was with the ruler of the countrey, one Sergius Paulus, a prudent man. The same ruler called vnto him Barnabas & Saul, and desired to heare the worde of God.

But Elimas * the sorcerer (for so is hys name by interpretation) withstode them, Ex.vii.a. & viii.b. and sought to turne away the ruler from Ac.viii.b the faith. Then Saule (which also is called Paule) being full of the holy ghost, set his eyes on him, and sayde: O full of al sutteltie and disceitfulnesse, thou child of the deuill, thou enemy of all righteous-nesse: wilt thou not ceasse to peruerte the straight waies of the Lorde.
And nowe behold, the hand of the lord is vpon thee, and thou shalt be blinde, and not see the sunne for a season. And imme-ruler, when he sawe what had happened

The.xv.Chapter.

Variaunce about circumcision. The Apostles pacifye the matter at Jerusalem. Paule and Barnabas preache at Antioche.

And certain mē whiche cam down frō Jury, taught ỳ brethren * excepte ye bee circumcised after the maner of Moses, ye cannot be saued. So when there was risen dissention and disputing, not a litle, vnto Paule & Barnabas against them, thei determined that Paule & * Barnabas, & certain other of thē should go vp to Jerusalem vnto ỳ Apostles and elders, about this question. A Gala.v.a Gala.ii.a

And after they were brought on theyr way by the congregatiō, thei passed ouer Phenices and Samaria, declaryng the conuersion of the Gentiles, and they brought great ioy vnto all the brethren. And when they wer come to Jerusalem, they were receiued of the congregation, and of the Apostles and elders. And they declared all thynges that God had done by them. Then rose vp certayn of the secte of the Pharises, which did beleue: saying that it was nedefull to circumcise thē, and to commaunde them to kepe the lawe of Moses.

And whē they held their peace, James answered, saying: Men & brethren hearken vnto me. Simeon tolde, how God at ẏ beginning did visite the Gentiles to receiue of them a people in his name. And to this agree ẏ wordes of the Prophetes,

We haue sente therfore Judas and Silas, whiche shall also tell you the same thynges by mouth. From whiche if ye kepe youre selues, ye shall doe well. So fare ye well.

When they therefore were departed, they came to Antioche, and gathered the

Which when they had read, they reioyced of ẏ consolation. And Judas and Silas beyng Prophetes, exhorted the brethren with muche preachyng, and strengthed them. And after they had taryed there a space, they were let go in peace of the brethren vnto the Apostles. Notwithstanding it pleased Silas to abide there styl, (but Judas departed alone to Jerusalem.) Paule and Barnabas continued in Antyoche, teachyng and preachyng the word of the Lorde with other many.

But after a certeyn space, Paule said vnto Barnabas: Let vs go agayne, and visite oure brethren in euerye citie where we haue shewed the worde of the Lorde, and se how they do. And Barnabas gaue counsell to take with them John, whose sirname was Marke. But Paule would not take him vnto their company * which

And Paule chose Silas and departed, beyng committed of the brethren vnto the grace of God. And he went through Siria and Cilicia, stablishing the congregations: commaundyng to kepe the preceptes of the Apostles and elders.

Crispus the chiefe ruler of the Sinagoge *beleued on the Lord with all his houshold: and many of the Corinthians whē Joh.iiii.g they gaue audience, beleued and were Baptised. Then spake the Lord to Paul in the night*by a vision: be not afraed, but speake, and holde not thy peace: for I B am with thee, and no man shall inuade Ac.xvii.b thee that shal hurt the. For I haue much people in this citie. And he cōtinued there a yere and six monethes, and taught thē the worde of God.
When Gallio was ruler of the coūtrey of Achaia, the Jewes made insurrection with one accorde against Paul, and brought him to the iudgement seate, saying: this felow counsaileth men to worship God contrary to the law. And when Paul now was about to open his mouth Gallio sayd vnto the Jewes: if it were a matter of wrong, or an euill dede, (O ye C Jewes) reason would that I shuld heare you: but if it be a question of wordes, or of names, or of your law, loke ye to it youre selues: for I wil be no iudge of such matters: and he draue them from the seate.
Then all the Grekes toke Sostenes the chiefe ruler of the Sinagoge, and smote hym before the iudges seate. And Gallio cared for none of those thinges. Paul after thys, taryed there yet a good whyle, and then toke hys leaue of the brethren, and sayled thence into Siria, Priscilla & Aquila accōpanying hym. And*he shore Nu.vi.b. hys head in Cencrea, for he had a vowe.
And he came to Ephesus, and lefte them there: but he himselfe entred into the Sinagoge, and reasoned with the Jewes.
When they desired hym to tary longer tyme wyth them, he cōsented not, but bad them fare well, saying: I must nedes (at thys feast that commeth) be in Jerusalem,

lem, but I will returne agayne unto you *if God wil. And he departed from E-Heb.vi.b phesus: and when he was come unto Ce-Iac.iiii.c sarea, and ascended up, and saluted the cõ-gregation, he departed unto Antioche: & when he had taried there a while, he departed, and went ouer al the countrey of Galatia and Phrigia by order, strengthning al the Disciples.

D And a certaine Jewe named *Apollos, 1 Cor.i.b borne at Alexandria, came to Ephesus, iii.a.xvi.c an eloquent mã, and mightie in ye Scripture. Thesame was informed in the way of the Lord, and spake feruently in the spi-rite, and taught diligently the thinges of the Lord, and knew but the Baptisme of John only. And thesame began to speake boldly in the Sinagoge. Whom when Priscilla and Aquila had heard, they toke him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly. And when he was disposed to go into Achaia, the brethrẽ wrote, exhorting ye Disciples to receiue him. Which when he was come, helped them muche which had beleued through grace: For he ouercame the Je-wes mightily, and that openly: shewyng by the Scriptures, that Jesus was Christ.

The.xix. Chapter.

Of the twelue men that wer Baptised at Ephesus, and what miracles wer done by Paul. Demetrius moued sedition in the citie.

A IT fortuned that whyle Apollo was at Corinthũ, Paul passed through the upper coastes, and came to Ephesus and founde certaine Disciples, and sayd unto them: haue ye receiued the holy ghost, since ye beleued?
And they sayd unto hym: now, we haue not heard whether ther be any holy ghost or no.

And he sayd unto them: wherwith wer ye then Baptised? And they sayd: with Mat.iii.b Johns Baptisme. Thẽ said Paul: *John Luk.iii.c pentaunce, saying unto the people that John.i.d they should beleue on him, which should

When diuers waxed harde hearted and Acte.ii.a

(and that before the multitude) he departed from them, and seperated the Disciples. And he disputed daily in the schole of one called Tirannus. And this continued by the space of two yeres: so that all they which dwelt in Asia, heard the worde of the Lord Jesu, both Jewes and grekes.
And God *wrought special miracles by C the handes of Paul: so that from hys bo- Mat.xvi and partelettes, and the diseases depar- Acte.v.c went out of them. Then certaine of the Mat.xvi. vagabounde Jewes, exorcistes, toke upõ d them to cal ouer them (which had euil spi-rites) the name of the Lord Jesus, saying: We adiure you by *Jesu, whõ Paul Mat.vii. preacheth. And there were seuen sonnes c of one Sceua a Jewe, and chiefe of the Priestes which did so. And the euil spi-rite answered and sayd: Jesus I knowe. D and Paul I know, but who are ye?

And the man in whom the euill spirite was, ran on them, and ouercame them, and preuailed against them, so that they fled out of that house naked & wounded.
And this was knowen to all the Jewes and grekes also, which dwelt at Ephesus, and feare came on them al: and the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified. And many that beleued, came, *and confessed Mar.i.a and shewed their workes. Many of them Act.xvi.d which used curious craftes, brought their bokes, and burned them before all men, and they counted the pryce of them, and founde it fiftie thousande siluerlynges.

So mightily grew the worde of God, and preuailed.

After these thinges were ended, Paul purposed in the spirite (when he had passed ouer Macedonia and Achaia) to go to Jerusalem, saying: After I haue been there, I must also see Rome. So sent he into Macedonia two of them that ministred unto hym, euen Timotheus and Erastus: but he himselfe remained in Asia for a season.

Thesame tyme there arose no litell a- E do about that way. For a certaine man named Demetrius a siluersmith (whyche made siluer shrines for Diana) was not a litell beneficiall unto the craftes men.
Whom he called together with the workmen of like occupation, and said: Sirs ye knowe that by thys craft *we haue ad-rage. Moreouer, ye se and heare that not alone at Ephesus, but almost throughout all Asia, thys Paul hath perswaded and turned away much people, saying: that *they be not Gods which are made Psa.cxv, a. with handes, So that not onely thys our craft commeth into perill to be set at nought: but also that the temple of the great Goddesse Diana should be despysed, and her magnificence should be destroyed, whō all Asia and the world worshippeth.

When they heard these sayinges, they were ful of wrath, and cryed out, saying:
great is Diana of the Ephesians.

And al the citie was on a rore, and they russhed into the commune hall with one assent, and caught Gaius and Aristarcus, men of Macedonia, Paules companions. When Paul would haue entred in vnto the people, the Disciples suffred him not, But certain of the chiefe of Asia (which were hys frendes) sent vnto hym F desiring hym that he would not preace in to the common hall. Some therfore cry-ed one thing, and some another, and the congregation was al out of quiet: & the more part knew not wherfore they were come together.

Some of the company drew forth Alexander, the Jewes thrusting him forwardes. Alexander beckened with ẏ hand Act.xxi.g and would haue geuen the people an an-swere. When they knew that he was a Jew, there arose a shoute almost for the space of two houres, of all men, crying:
great is Diana of the Ephesians.

When the town clarke had ceased the G people, he sayd: ye men of Ephesus, what man is it that knoweth not how that the citie of the Ephesians is a worshipper of the great goddesse Diana, of the ymage which came from heauen. Seing then ẏ no man sayeth here against, ye ought to be content, and to do nothing rashly: for ye haue brought hither these men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet despisers of your Goddesse. Wherfore, if Demetrius and the craftes men which ar with him, haue a matter against any man the law is open, and there are rulers, let them accuse one another. But if ye go about any other thyng, it shalbe determined in a lawfull congregation. For we ar in ieopardy to be accused of this dayes vproure, forasmuch as there is no cause wherby we may geue a rekenyng of thys concourse of people, And when he had thus spoken, he let the congregation depart.

The.xx.Chapter.

Paul goeth into Macedonia and into Grece. At Troas he rayseth vp a dead body. At Ephesus he calleth the elders of the congregation together, cō-mytteth the keping of Gods flocke vnto them, war neth them of false teachers, maketh his praier with them, and departeth to ship.

After that the rage A

And vpon one of the Sabboth dayes, when the Disciples came together for to (ready to depart on the morow) and continued the preaching vnto midnight.

And there were many lightes in the had he appointed, and would himselfe go a fote. When we were come together at Asson we toke him in, and came to Mitilenes. And we sayled thēce, and came the next day ouer against Chios. And the D next day we arived at Samos, and taryed at Trogilon. The next day we came to Mileton, for Paul had determined to sayle ouer by Ephesus, bicause he would not spend the tyme in Asia. For he hasted (if it were possible for hym) to kepe at Jerusalem the day of Penthecost. And from Mileton he sent messangers to Ephesus and called the elders of the congregatiō. Which when they were come to hym, he sayd vnto them: ye know from the firste day ẏ I came into Asia, after what maner I haue bene with you, at al seasons seruing the Lord with all humblenesse of mynde, and with many teares and temptations which happened vnto me by the layinges awaite of the Jewes, bicause I would kepe backe nothing that was profitable vnto you: but to shew you, and teach you openly and throughout euery house, witnessing both to the Jewes, and also to the Grekes, the ✦ repentaunce Paules iorney by ship. Of Philip the Euangeliste, and Agabus the Prophete, whiche warned Paul not to go to Jerusalē. He remained stedfaste in his purpose, and is taken in the temple.

A And when it chaunced ẏ we had laūced forth, and were departed frō them, we came with a straighte course vnto Choon, and the day folowing vnto ẏ Rhodes, and from thence vnto Patara. And when we had gotten a ship that would sayle vnto Phenices, we went abrode into it, and set forth. But when Ciprus began to appere vnto vs, we left it on the left hande, and sailed vnto Siria, and came vnto Tire. For there the ship vnladed the burthen.

And when we had founde brethrē, we taried there seuen dayes. And they tolde Acte.xx.c Paul through the spirit * that he should not go vp to Jerusalem. And when the dayes were ended we departed and went our way: and they all brought vs on our way, with wiues and childrē, til we were come out of ẏ citie. And we kneled down Acte.xx.g in the shore, ✦ and prayed. And when we B had taken our leaue one of another, we toke ship, and they returned home agayne.

When we had full ended the course

C The same man had foure daughters, Mnason of Cipers, an old Disciple with whom we should lodge. And when we were come to Jerusalem: the brethren re-ceiued vs gladly. And on ÿ morow, Paul went in with vs to James.

And all the elders came together. And when he had saluted them, he tolde by order all things, that God had wrought among the Gentiles by his ministration.
And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said vnto him: Thou seest brother, how many thousande Jewes there are, which beleue, and they are al earnest folowers of the law.

And they are informed of thee, that thou teachest all the Jewes which are among the Gentiles, to forsake Moses, and sayest that they ought not to circum-cise their children, neither to lyue after ÿ

As they went about to kill hym, tidinges

Which immediatly toke souldiours and

When they saw the vpper captaine and ÿ

And as they cryed, and cast of their clothes, and threw dust into the ayre, the captain commaunded him to be brought into the castle, and bad that he shoulde be scourged, and to be examined, (that he might know) wherefore they cryed so on him. And when they bounde him with thonges, Paul sayd vnto the Centurion that stode by hym: Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Romain and vncondemned? sayd: yea. And the captaine answered: with a great summe obteined I this fredom. And Paul sayd: I was free born. Then straight way departed from hym they which should haue examined hym.

was day, certain of the Jewes gathered themselues together, and made a vowe, saying that they would neither eate nor drinke till they had killed Paul. They were moe than.xl.men, which had made thys conspiration. And they came to the chiefe Priestes and elders, and sayd: we haue bounde our selues with a vow, that we wil eate nothing, vntill we haue slain Paul. Now therfore geue ye knowledge to the vpper captain and to the counsell, D that he bring him forth vnto vs tomorow as though we would know some thyng more perfitly of him. But we (or euer he come nere) are ready to kil him. When Paules sisters sonne heard of their laying awayte, he went and entred into the castle, and tolde Paul. And Paul called one of the vnder captaines vnto him and sayd: bring this yong man vnto the hye captaine, for he hath a certaine thing to shew hym. And he toke hym, and brought him to the hie captain, and sayd: Paul the prisoner called me vnto hym, and prayed me to bryng thys yong man vnto thee, which hath a certain matter to shew the.
The hye captain toke hym by the hande, and went with hym out of the way: and E asked him, what is it that thou hast to tel me? And he sayd: the Jewes are determined to desire thee, that thou wouldest bring forth Paul to morow into the cou͂- sell, as though they would enquire somewhat of him more perfectly. But folowe not thou their mindes: for there lye in which haue bounde themselues with a vow, that they wil neither eate nor drink ready, and loke that thou shouldest promise. The vpper captain then let the yo͂g man depart, and charged him, saying: see thou tell it out to no man, that thou hast shewed these thinges to me. And he cal- F led vnto him two vnder captaines, saying: make ready two hundred souldiors to go to Cesarea, and horsemen.lxx. and speare men two hundred at ẏ third houre of the night. And deliuer them beastes, that they may set Paul on, and bryng hym safe vnto Felix the hye debytye.

(For he did feare lest happily the Jewes should take hym away and kil him, & he himself should be afterwarde blamed as though he would take money) and he wrote a letter after this maner.
Claudius Lisias vnto the most mightie ruler Felix, sendeth gretinges:* Thys

The .xxv. Chapter.

The Jewes accuse Paule before Festus, he appealeth vnto the Emperour, and is sent vnto Rome.

A WHen Festus had receiued the office, after thre daies he ascended from Cesarea vnto Jerusalem. Then informed him þ hie priests and the chief of þ Jewes, of Paule. And they besought him, & desired fauour against him, þ he would send for him to Jerusalem: & they layd await for him in the way, to kil him. Festus answered, þ Paule should be kept at Cesarea: but that he hym selfe woulde shortely departe thyther: Lette them therefore (sayde he) whiche among you are hable, come downe with vs, and accuse hym yf there be any faulte in the man.
B When he had taried there amōg them more than ten daies, he went down vnto Cesarea, & the next day sat downe in the iudgement seat, & commaunded Paul to be brought. Whiche when he was come, the Jewes which were come from Jerusalem, stoode about hym, and layed many & grieuous complaintes against Paule, whiche they could not proue as long as Ac.xxiiii.c he answered for himself* that he had nei-c.xxviii.d ther against the lawe of the Jewes, neyther agaynst the temple, nor yet agaynst Cesar offended any thyng at all.
Ac.xxiii.f. Festus* wyllyng to doe the Jewes a pleasure, aunswered Paule and said: wilt thou go vp to Jerusalem, & there be iudged of these thinges before me? Thē sayd Paul: I stand at Cesars iudgement seat, where I ought to be iudged. To the Je-wes haue I no harme done, as thou very well knowest. If I haue hurt them, or committed any thyng worthy of death, I refuse not to dye. If none of these things are, whereof they accuse me, no man may deliuer me vnto thē. I appeale to Cesar.
Then spake Festus with deliberation, & aunswered. Thou haste appealed vnto Cesar: vnto Cesar shalte thou goe. And after a certayn dayes kyng Agrippa and Bernice came vnto Cesarea to salute Festus. And whē they had bene ther a good season, Festus rehearsed Pauls cause vnto the Kyng, saying: * there is a certain D Ac.xxiiii.f man left in prison of Felix, about whom when I came to Jerusalem þ hye priestes and elders of the Jewes enfourmed Ac.xxiiii. a. me, and desired to haue iudgemēt against him. To whom I answered: It is not the maner of the Romaines, for fauor to de-liuer any man: that he should perishe, before that he whiche is accused, haue the accusers before him, and haue lycence to aunswere for hymselfe, concernyng the crime layde agaynst him. Therfore when they were come hither without any delay on the morowe I sat to geue iudgement and commaunded the man to be brought forth. Against whom when the accusers stode vp they brought none accusation Ac.xxiiii.f of suche thynges as I supposed: but had certayne questions agaynst hym of theyr owne superstition, and of one Jesus whiche was dead, whom Paule affirmed to be aliue. And because I douted of such maner of questions, I asked hym why-ther he would go to Jerusalem, and ther bee iudged of these matters. But when Paule had appealed to be kepte vnto the knowledge of Cesar, I commaunded him to be kept, tyll I myght send him to Ce- F sar. Agrippa sayd vnto Festus: I woulde also heare the man my selfe. To morowe (said he) thou shalt heare him. And on the morow when Agrippa was come & Bernice with great pompe, and were entred into the counsell house, with the captains and chiefe men of the citie, at Festus commaundement was Paule brought forth.
And Festus sayde: Kyng Agrippa, and all ye men whiche are here presente with vs: ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jewes haue entreated me bothe at Jerusalem and also here: cry- G ing that he ought not to lyue any longer.
Yet founde I nothing woorthy of death, that he had committed. Neuerthelesse, seyng that he hath appealed to Cesar, I haue determined to sende him: Of whom I haue no certayne thyng to wryte vnto my Lord. Wherfore I haue brought hym vnto you, and specially vnto thee. O king Agrippa, that after examination had, I might haue somewhat to write. For me thinketh it vnreasonable for to send a prisoner, and not to shewe the causes whiche are layde against him.

The .xxvi. Chapter.

Kyng Agrippa heareth Paule, whiche telleth him his calling from the beginnyng.

A AGrippa sayd vnto Paule: ye art permitted to speake for thy self. Then Paule stretched forth the hande & answered for himself: I thinke my self happy (king Agrippa) because I shal aunswer this daye before thee, of all the thynges wherof I am accused of ye Jewes: namely, because thou art expert in all customes and questions, which are among the Jewes. Wherefore I beseche thee to heare me paciently.

C many contrary thynges, cleane against Act.viii.a the name of Jesus of Nazareth: * which ix.a.&.xxii thing I also did in Jerusalem. And many a. of the sainctes did I shut vp in prison, and i.Cor.xv. had receiued authoritie of the hie priests.
b. And when they were put to death, I gaue Gala.i.c. the sentence. And I punished them oft in euery Sinagoge, and compelled them to blaspheme: and was yet more madde vppon them, and persecuted them, euen vnto straunge cities. About whiche thinges as I went to Damasco with authoritie and licence of the hie priestes, euen at myddaye (O kyng) I sawe in the waye a lyghte from heauen, aboue the brightnesse of the sunne, shine rounde about me, and them which iourneyed with me.

When we were fallen to the earth, I D heard a voice speaking vnto me, and say-Acte.ix.a ing in the Hebrue tong: * Saule Saule, and.xxii c why persecutest thou me? It is harde for thee to kicke agaynst the prickes. And I said: who art thou lorde? And he sayde: I am Jesus whom thou persecutest: but rise and stand vp on thy fete. For I haue appeared vnto thee for this purpose, to make thee a minister & a witnesse both of those things which thou hast sene, and of those thinges in the which I will appere vnto thee, deliuering thee from ye people, and from the Gentiles: vnto whom now I sende thee, to open theyr eyes, that they may be tourned from darkenesse to lyght, and from the power of Sathan, vnto God, that they may receiue forgeuenesse of synnes, and enheritaunce among them whiche are sanctified by faith, that is toward me.

Wherefore (O king Agrippa) I was not disobediente vnto the heauenlye vision: but shewed firste vnto them of Da- E masco, and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coastes of Jewry, and then to the Gentiles, that they shoulde repente, and turne to God, and doe such workes as become them that repente. For this cause the Jewes caught me in ye temple, and went about to kill me. Seing therefore that I haue obteyned helpe of God, I continue vnto this daye, witnessyng bothe to small and to great, saying none other thinges, than those which the Prophetes and Moses did saye should come: that Christ should suffer, & that he should be the first that shoulde ryse from death, and should shewe lyghte vnto the people, and to the Gentiles. As he thus spake for himself: Festus saide with a loude voyce: Paule, thou arte besyde thy selfe. Muche learnyng dooeth make thee madde. And Paule sayde: I am not madde (most dere Festus) but speake foorth the woordes of truthe & sobernesse. For ye king knoweth of these things, before whō also I speake frely, neither think I ye any of these thinges are hidden from him. For this thyng was not done in a corner. Kyng Agryppa, beleuest thou the Prophetes? I wote well that thou beleuest. Agrippa sayd vnto Paule: Somewhat thou bryngest me in mynde for to become Christen. And Paule said: I would to god that not only thou, but also al that heare me to day wer not somewhat onelye, but altogether, suche as I am, excepte these bondes. And when he had thus spoken, the king rose vp, and the deputy, and Bernice, and thei that satte with them. And when they were gone aparte, they talked betwene themselues, saying: This manne dooeth nothing woorthy of death, or of bondes. Then sayde Agrippa vnto Festus: Thys

The.xxvii.Chapter.

Paule shipped towarde Rome, Julius the Captaine entreateth him curteously, and at the last thei suffred shipwracke.

A WHen it was cōcluded that we should sayle into Italye they deliuered bothe Paule & certain other prisoners, vnto one named Julius, an vnder captayn of Cesars souldiers. And we entred into a ship of Adramicium, and Col.iiii.a losed from lande appointed to sayle by the costes of Asia, one Aristarcus out of Macedonia of the countrey of Thessalonia, tarying stil with vs. And the next day we came to Sidon. And Julius * curteously Je.xxxix.c Ac.xxvij.c. intreated Paule, and gaue him liberty, to go vnto his frendes, and to refresshe hym self. And when we had launched frō thēce we sailed hard by Cipers, because ÿ windes were contrary. And when we had sayled ouer the sea Cilicia, and Pamphilia, we came to Mira, whiche is in Licia.

And there the vnder captayn founde a ship of Alexandria ready, that sayled into B Italye, and he put vs therein. And when we had sayled slowly manye dayes, and scarce were come ouer against Guidō (because the winde withstoode vs) we sailed harde by the coast of Candy, ouer against Salmo, and with muche worke sayled beyonde it, and came vnto a place which is called the faire hauens nye whereunto was the citie of Lacea. When muche tyme was spente, and when saylyng was nowe ieopardous, because also that they had ouerlong fasted, Paule putte them in remembraunce and sayde vnto them: Sirs I perceiue ÿ this voiage wilbe with hurt and much damage, not of the lading
C and ship onely, but also of your liues: Neuerthelesse the vnder captain beleued the gouernor and the master of the ship more than those thinges whiche were spoken of Paule. And because the hauen was not cōmodious to winter in, many toke cōūsayle to departe thence, yf by any meanes they might atteine to Phenices, and there to winter, whiche is an hauen of Candye and lyeth toward the southwest & northwest winde. When the southwinde blewe they supposyng to atteyne theyr purpose losed vnto Asson, and sailed past al Cādy.

But not long after there arose against their purpose a flawe of winde out of the northeast. And whē the ship was caughte D and coulde not resiste the wynde, we lette her goe, and draue with the weather. But we were caried into an yle whiche is named Clauda, and had muche worke to come by a boate, which they toke vp, and vsed helpe, and made fast the ship, fearing lest they should fall into the Sirtes. And so they let downe a vessell, and were caried. The next daye (when we were tossed with an exceding tempest) they lyghtned the ship, and the thirde daye we caste out with our owne handes, the tacklyng of the ship. When at the laste, neyther the sunne nor starres in many dayes appeared, and no small tempest laye vppon vs, al hope that we shoulde escape, was then taken away. But after long abstinence, Paule stode forth in the middest of them and saide: Syrs, ye should haue hearkned to me, and not to haue losed from Candy, neyther to haue brought vnto vs thys harme and losse. And now we I exhort you to be of good chere. For there shall bee no losse of any mannes life among you, saue of the ship onely. For there stoode by me this night the angel of god, whose I am, and whom I serue, saying: feare not Paule * thou muste bee broughte before Act.xxv.c Cesar. And loe, God hath geuen thee all them that sayle with thee. Wherfore sirs, be of good chere: for I beleue God, that it shalbe euen as it was told me. Howbeit we muste bee caste into * a certayne Iland. Ac.xxviii.a.

But when the fourtenth nyght was come (as we were sayling in Adria about midnyght) the shipmen demed that there appeared some countrey vnto them, and sounded, and founde it twenty fadomes. And when they had gone a litle further, thei sounded again, and found .xv. fadoms. Thē fearing lest thei should haue fallē on some rock, they cast foure ankers out of ÿ sterne, and wished for the daye. As ÿ shipmen wer about to flie out of the ship (whē they had let downe the boate into the sea, vnder a couloure, as though they would haue cast ankers out of ÿ foreship:) Paul sayd vnto the vnder captayne and to the souldiers, excepte these abyde in the ship, ye cannot be safe. Then the souldiers cut of the rope of the boate, and lette it fall away.

And when the day beganne to appere, Paul besought them al to take meat, saying: this is the fourtenth day that ye haue taryed and continued fastyng, receyuing nothyng at all. Wherefore I pray you to take meate: for this no doubt is for youre thus spoken, he tooke bread and * gaue Mat.vi.c Lu.v.ii.a i.Ti.iiii. a thankes to god in presence of them all: & when he had broken it, he began to eate.

Then wer they al of good chere, and they also toke meate. We were altogether in ÿ ship, two. C.lxxvi. soules. And when they had eaten ynough, they lightned the ship, F and cast out the wheat into the sea.

When it was day they knew not ÿ lād but they spied a certain hauen with a bāk into the which they wer mynded (if it wer possible) to thrust in the ship. And when they had taken vp the ankers, they committed themselues vnto the sea, and loosed the rudder bondes, and hoysed vp the main saile to the winde, and drue to lād.
And whē they chaunced on a place, which had the sea on both the sides, they thruste in the ship. And the forepart stucke faste & moued not, but ÿ hynder part brake wyth G the violence of the waues.

The souldiors counsel was to kil ÿ prysoners, lest any of thē, whē he had swome out, should runne away. But the vndercaptayn willing to saue Paule, kept them from their purpose, and commaūded that they whiche coulde swymme, shoulde cast themselues first into the sea, and scape to lande. And the other he commaunded to goe, some on bordes, and some on broken peces of the shippe. And so it came to passe that they escaped all safe to land.

After thre monethes we departed in a

To whom he expounded and testified the kyngdome of GOD, and preached vnto them of Jesus: bothe out of the lawe of Moses, and oute of the Prophetes, euen from mornyng to night. And some * beleued the thynges whiche Ac. xvii a were spoken, and some beleued not. And when thei agreed not among themselues they departed, after that Paule had spoken one worde: well spake the holy ghost by Esay the Prophete vnto oure fathers, Esa. vi. e saying: *Goe vnto this people and saye:

Bee it knowen therefore vnto you,
G that this saluation of God is sente to the Gentiles, and they shall heare it. And when he had sayde these wordes, the Jewes departed from him and had great desputions among themselues. And Paul dwelt two yeares full in his lodging, and receiued all that came in vnto hym, preachyng the kyngdome of God, and teachyng those thynges whiche concerne the Lorde Jesus, with al confidence: no man forbiddyng hym.

¶Here endeth the Actes of the Apostles.

¶The Epistle of the Apostle Saint Paul to the Romaynes.

Paule declareth his loue towarde the Romains sheweth what the Gospell is, with the fruite thereof, and rebuketh the beastlinesse of the heathen.

Paule the seruaunt of Jesus Christe, called to the office of an Apostle & put a part for the Ghospel of God whiche he had promised afore by his Prophetes, in the holy scryptures of his sonne, which was born (vnto hym) of the sede of Dauid after the flesh: and hath bene declared to be the sonne of god with power after the spirite that sanctifieth since the tyme that Jesus Christ our lord rose again frō death, *by whom we haue receiued grace and Apostleship, that obedience might be geuen vnto the fayth in his name among all heathen, of whose number you be the elect of Jesu Christe. To al you that be at Rome, beloued of god and sainctes by election. *Grace bee with you, and peace from god our father, and from the lord Jesus Christ.

First verely I thanke my God thorow Jesus

Jesus Christ for you all, that your fayth is spoken of in all the world. For God is [Joh.iiii.e / 1 Cor.iii.c] my witnesse (whom I serue * with my spirite in the Gospel of his sonne) that without B ceasing I make mētiō of you, prayng alwaies * [Phili.i.a. / Col.i.a.] in my prayers, that by some meane, at the laste (one tyme or other) a prosperous iourney (by the wyll of God) might fortune me, to come unto you. For I long to see you, that I myght bestowe amōg you some spirituall gift, to strength you withall: that is, that I myghte haue consolation together with you, through ẏ common fayth, which both ye & I haue. I would that ye should knowe (brethren) how that I haue often times purposed to [Ac.xxvi.b] come unto you, * but haue bene lette hytherto, to haue some fruit also amōg you, as among other of the Gentyles. I am detter both to the Grekes and to the ungrekes, to the learned and to the unlearned: so that (asmuch as in me is) I am redy to preache the ghospell to you that are at Rome also. * [Ecl.xli.c. / ii.Ti.i.d. / i.Co.i.c.] For I am not ashamed of the ghospel of Christ, because * it is ẏ power of God unto saluation to euery one C that beleueth: to the Iewe firste, and also to the Gentile. For by it is the righteousnesse of God opened from faith to fayth. As it is written: * the iuste shall lyue by fayth. [Abac.ii.a / Gal.iii.b. / Heb.x.g.]

For the wrath of God appeareth from heauen agaynst all ungodlinesse and unryghteousnesse of men, whiche withhold [Ac.xvii.f,] the truthe in unrighteousnesse: seyng * ẏ it whiche may be knowen of God, is manifest amōg thē, because God hath shewed it unto them. * For his inuisible thynges [Act.xiiii.c / Heb.xi.a.] that is to saye, his eternall power and Godhead are seen, forasmuch as they are understande * by the workes from the [Psa.xix.a] creation of the worlde. So that they are without excuse, because that when they knew god, thei glorifyed him not as god, neither were thankfull, but waxed ful of [De.xviii.c.] vanities in their imaginatiōs * and their folish heart was blinded.

When they counted thēselues wise they became fooles, * & turned the glory of ẏ [Psa.cvi.c / Iere.ii.c,] immortal god, unto an ymage, made not onely after the similitude of a mortal mā, but also of birdes, and fourefooted * beastes, [Ex.xxxii.b] and of creapyng beastes. Wherefore, god gaue them up to uncleannesse thorow the lustes of their own heartes, to defile theyr owne bodies among themselues, which changed his truthe for a lye, and worshipped and serued the thinges that be made, more than him that made them, which is to be praised for euer. Amen.

Wherfore god gaue thē up unto shamefull lustes. * For euen their women dyd [De.xviii.c.] chaunge their naturall use into ẏ whiche is against nature. And lykewyse also the D men left the naturall use of the woman, & brent in their lustes one with an other, men with men wrought filthinesse, and [Le.xviii.c] receiued to themselues the reward of errour as it was accordyng.

And as they regarded not to knowe god, * euen so god delluered them up unto [Act.vii.f.] a leude mind, that they should do those thynges which wer not comly, beyng full of all unrighteousnesse, fornication, wickednesse, couetousnesse, maliciousnes, ful of enuy, murther, debate, disceit, euyl conditioned, whisperers, backbiters, haters of God, disdainfull, proude boasters, bringers up of euill thinges, disobedient to father and mother withoute understanding, couenaunt breakers, unlouyng, truce breakers, unmercifull. Whiche men though they knewe the righteousnesse of God (considred not) * howe that they which [Ose.vii.a] commit suche thinges, are worthye of death, not onely (they that) doe the same, * but also (they which) haue pleasure in them that doe them.

The second Chapter.

He rebuketh the Iewes, whiche as touching sin are lyke the heathen.

A Therfore art thou inexcusable O man whomsoeuer thou be that * iudgest [Mat.vii.a / 2.Kinges xii.b.] For in thatsame wherin thou iudgeste another * thou condemnest thy self. For thou that iudgeste, doest euen ẏ self same things. But we are sure, ẏ the iudgemēt of god is accordyng to truthe, against thē which commit such things. Thinkest thou this, O thou mā ẏ iudgest thē whiche do such things, & doest euen ẏ very same thy self, ẏ thou shalt escape ẏ iudgemēt of god? Either despysestethou ẏ riches of his goodnesse, & pacience, & long sufferaunce, not knowyng * that ẏ [Esa.xxx b / Ac.xvii g] kindnesse of God leadeth thee to repentaunce. B But thou after thy stubbornesse, & heart ẏ cannot repente, heapest unto thy self wrath against ẏ daye of vengeaunce, when shalbe opened the righteous iudgment of God, * whiche will rewarde euery [Mat.xvi b / Ps.xviii.c] man according to his dedes: that is to say: praise, honor, and immortalitie to thē whiche continue in good doing, & seke immorta-mortality: But unto them that are rebels and that do not obey the truth, but folow unrighteousnesse, shall come indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon the soule of every man that doth evyll: of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile. To every man that doeth good, shall come

Eze.xxxvi,g. For circumcision verely avayleth, if thou the law, thy circumcision is turned to un-sed kepe the right thinges conteyned in ẏ lawe, shall not his uncircumcision bee counted for circumcisiō. And shal not uncircumcision which is by nature (if it kepe the law) iudge thee, whiche beyng under what shall we saye? Is God unrighteous then shall god iudge the worlde? For yf ẏ there is none that understandeth, there Ps.xiiii.a know that what things soeuer the law

That al mouthes may be stopped, and that al the world may be subdued to God Gal.ii.c. bicause that*by the dedes of the law ther shal no flesh be iustified in his sight. For by the law cometh ỹ knowledge of sinne.
But now is the righteousnesse of god de= clared without the law, forasmuch as it is alowed by the testimony of ỹ law and of the Prophetes. The righteousnesse of God, cõmeth by the faith of Jesus Christ vnto all, and vpon all them that beleue (on hym.)

D This is difference: for all haue sinned Esa.liii.b and are destitute of ỹ glory of God: but are*iustified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, whom God hath set forth * to be the ob= Joh.ii.a teiner of mercy, through fayth, by the meanes of his bloud, to declare his righ= teousnesse in that he forgeueth the sinnes that are passed, which God did suffer, to shew at this time his righteousnesse, that he might be counted iust, and the iustifier of hym which beleueth on Jesus. *Where is then thy reioycing? It is excluded: by what law? of workes? Nay: but by the law Gal.ii.c. of fayth. Therfore we holde, * that a mã is iustified by fayth without the dedes of the law. Is he the god of the Jewes on= ly? Is he not also the God of the Genty= les? Yes, euen of the Gentiles also. For it is God only which iustifieth the circũci= sion that is of fayth, and vncircumcision through fayth. Do we then destroy the law through fayth? God forbyd. But we rather mainteine the law.

The fourth Chapter.

He declareth by the example of Abraham, that fayth iustifieth, and not the lawe, nor the workes therof.

A What shall we say then, ỹ * Esa.li.a Abraham our father (as perteining to ỹ flesh) did finde? If Abraham were iustified by dedes, then hath he wherin to reioice but not with God. For Ge.xv.b what sayeth the Scripture? * Abraham Gal.iii.a beleued God, & it was counted vnto him Jam.ii.d for righteousnesse. To hym that worketh is ỹ reward not rekened of fauour, but of duty. To hym that worketh not, but beleueth on hym ỹ iustifieth the vngodly is his fayth counted for righteousnesse: (according to the purpose of the grace of God) euen as Dauid describeth ỹ blessednesse of that man, vnto whom God imputeth righteousnesse without dedes. *Blessed are they, whose vnrighteousnesse are for= Ps.xxxii.a geuen, and whose synnes are couered.
Blessed is that man to whom the Lorde wyll not impute synne.

Came this blessednesse then vpon the B vncircumcision, or vpon the circumcision also? For we say, that fayth was rekened to Abrahã for righteousnesse. How was it then rekened? when he was in the cir= cumcision, or when he was in the vncir= cumcision? * Not in the tyme of circum= cision: but when he was yet vncircum= Ge.xv.b cised.

And he receiued the*signe of circumci= sion, as a seale of the righteousnesse of Ge.xvii.b faith, which he had yet being vncircumci= sed, that he should be the father of al them that beleue, though they be not circumci= sed: that righteousnesse myght be impu= ted to them also: and that he might be the father of circumcision, not vnto them only which came of the circumcised, but vnto them also that walke in the steppes of the fayth that was in our father Abra= ham, before the tyme of circumcision.

For the promisse (that he should be the C heyre of the world) happned not to Abra= ham, or to hys sede through the law, but through the righteousnesse of fayth. *
For if they which are of the law, be hey= Gal.iii.c res, then is fayth but vayne, and the pro= mise of none effect. Bicause the law cau= seth wrath. For where no law is, there is no transgression: Therfore by fayth is ỹ inheritaunce geuen, that it might come of fauour: that the promise might be sure to all the sede. Not to them only which are of the law but to them also which are of ỹ fayth of Abraham, *which is the father of vs all: (as it is written: *I haue made Esa.li.a thee a father of many nations) euen be= Ge.xvii.a fore God, whom he beleued: which resto= reth the dead vnto lyfe: and calleth those thinges which be not, as though they were.

D Which Abraham, contrary to hope, bele= ued in hope, that he should be * the father Ge.xvii.c of many nations, according to ỹ whyche Ge.xv.b was spoken. * Euen so shall thy sede be, (as the starres of heauen, and the sande of the sea.)

And he fainted not in the faith, nor yet considered his own body, whiche was now dead, euen when he was almost an hundred yere olde: neither yet that Sara was past childe bearing. He stackered not at the promise of God through vnbe-liefe, but became strõg in fayth, and gaue God the prayse, being full certified, that he which had promised, thesame was able also to make it good. And therefore was it rekened to him for righteousnesse.

Ro.xv.a. *Neuerthelesse, it is not written for hym only, that it was rekened to him (for righteousnesse:) but also for vs, to whõ it shalbe counted (for righteousnesse,) so that we beleue on hym, that raysed vp Jesus our Lord from the dead: which was deliuered for our synnes, and was raised again for our iustification.

The fifth Chapter.

The power of fayth, hope, and loue, and howe death raigned from Adam vnto Christ, by whom only we haue forgeuenesse of synnes.

A Bicause therfore that we are iustified by faith, we are at *peace with God, Joh.xvi.g. through our Lord Jesus Christ: by whom also it chaunced vnto vs to be brought in through faith vnto this grace, wherein we stande: and *reioyce in hope of the glory (of the childr?) of God. Not that only, but also we reioice in tribulations: knowing that *tribulati-He.iii.a. on bringeth pacience, pacience bringeth Jam.i.a. experience, experience bringeth hope, and hope maketh not ashamed: bicause ÿ loue of God is shed abrode in our heartes, by the holy ghost which is geuen vnto vs.
For *when we were yet weake, accor-Eph.ii.a ding to the time, Christ died for vs which Colo.i.c wer vngodly. Yet scarce wil any man dye and.ii.c for a righteous man. Paraduenture for a good man durst a man dye.
Joh.iii.c *But *God setteth out hys loue to-1.Joh.iiii warde vs, seing that while we were yet b synners (according to the tyme) Christe dyed for vs.
Much more then now (we that are iustified by his bloud) shalbe saued from B wrath through him.
For if when we were enemies, we wer reconciled to God by the death of hys Sõn much more, seing we are reconciled, we shalbe preserued bi his life. Not only this but we also ioy in God by the meanes of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whõ we haue now obteined the attonement.

Wherfore, as by one man, sinn entred in- C to the world, and *death by the meanes Gen.ii.c of sinn: euen so death also went euer all Ro.vi.d. men, insomuch as all we haue sinned.
For euen vnto the law was sinne in ÿ world: but sinne is not imputed, when there is no law: neuerthelesse death reigned from Adam to Moses, euen ouer thẽ also that had not synned with like transgression as did Adam, which beareth the similitude of him that was to come.
But the gift is not like as the sinn. For if through the sinn of one, many be dead much more plenteous vpon many was ÿ grace of God and gift by grace: *which was of one man Jesus Christ. John.i.b And the gift is not ouer one synne: as death came through one sinne of one that sinned. For damnation came of one sinne vnto cõdemnation: but the gift came to iustifie from many sinnes. For if by the sinne of one, death rained by the meanes of one: much more they (which receiue a-boundaunce of grace and of the gyfte of righteousnesse) shall reigne in lyfe by the D meanes of one (that is to saye) Jesus Christ.
*Likewise then as by the sinne of one there sprang vp euill on all men to condemnation: euen so by the righteousnesse of one, springeth good vpon al men to the righteousnesse of life. For as by one mannes disobedience many became synners: so by the obedience of one, shal many be made righteous. But *the law in the meane tyme entred in, ÿ sinne should Gal.iii.c encreace. Neuerthelater where aboun-daunce of sinne was, there was more plenteousnesse of grace.
That as sinn had reigned vnto death euen so might grace reigne through righteousnesse, vnto eternall life, by the helpe of Jesu Christ.

The sixth Chapter.

Forsomuch as we be delivered through Christe from synne, we must fashiõ our selues to liue as the seruauntes of God, and not after oure owne lustes. The vnlikely rewarde of righteousnesse and sinne.

What shall we saye then? A Shal we cõtinue in sinn, that there may be aboundaũce of grace? God forbid. How shal we that are dead as touching sin, liue any lõger therin? Know ye

Gal.iii.d. ye not that * all we which are Baptised Colo.ii.b into Jesu Christ, are Baptised to dye wt him? We are buried thẽ with him by bap-tisme, for to dye: that likewise as Christ was raised vp from death by the glory of Eph.iiii. the father: euen so * we also should walke
e. in a new lyfe. For if we be graft in death like vnto him: euen so shall we be parta-kers of the resurrection knowyng thys, that our olde man is crucified with hym also, that the body of synne myght vtterly be destroyed, that henceforth we shuld not be seruauntes vnto sinne. For he that is dead, is iustified from sinne. Wherfore B * if we be dead with Christ, we beleue ŷ ii.Ti.ii.b we shal also liue with hym: knowing that Christ being raised from death, * dieth no Apoc.i.d. more. Death hath nomore power ouer him. For as touching that he dyed, he died concerning sinn once. And as touching that he liueth, he lyueth vnto God. Likewise consider ye also that ye are dead as touching synne, but are aliue vnto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. ✠ Let not sinne raigne therfore in your mortal body, that ye should thereunto obey by ŷ lustes of it. Neither geue ye your mem-C bers as instruments of vnrighteousnesse vnto sinn: but geue ouer your selues vnto God as they ŷ of dead, are aliue: and geue ouer your members as instrumen-tes of righteousnesse vnto God. For sinn shall not haue power ouer you: bicause ye are not vnder the law, but vnder grace.
What then? Shall we synne, bicause we are not vnder the law, but vnder grace? ii.Pe.ii.d God forbid. * know ye not, how that * to Joh.viii. whomsoeuer ye cõmit your selues as sera. uauntes to obey, hys seruauntes ye are to whom ye obey: whether it be of synne vnto death, or of obediente vnto righte-ousnesse? God be thanked, that though ye were the seruauntes of sinne, ye haue yet obeyed with heart vnto the rule of the D doctrine, that ye be brought vnto. * Ye ar Joh.viii. then made free frõ sinne, and are become
d. the seruauntes of righteousnesse. ✠ J Ro.viii.a speake grosly, bicause of the infirmitie of your flesh. As ye haue geuen your members seruauntes to vnclennesse and to iniquitie (from one iniquitie to another) euen so now geue ouer your members seruauntes vnto righteousnesse, that ye may be sanctified. For when ye were the seruauntes of sinn, ye wer voide of righteousnesse. What fruit had ye thẽ in those things, wherof ye are now ashamed? For the ende of those thinges is death. But now are ye deliuered from sinne, & made the seruauntes of God, and haue your fruit to be sanctified, and the end euerlasting life. For * the rewarde of synne is Gen.ii.c. death, but eternall lyfe is the gift of god, Rom.v.c through Jesus Christ our Lord. ✠

The seuenth Chapter.

Christ hath deliuered vs from the lawe & death. Paul sheweth what the flesh and outwarde man is and calleth it the law of the members.

Know ye not brethren (J A speake to thẽ that knowe the law) how that ŷ law, hath power ouer a man as long as it endureth?
For * the woman which is in subiection to a man, i.Cor.vii.c. is bounde by the law to the man, as lõg as he liueth.

But if the man be dead, she is loosed frõ the law of the man. So then * if while ŷ man liueth she couple her selfe with ano- Mat.v.c. ther man, she shalbe counted a wedlocke breaker. But if ŷ man be dead, she is free from the law of the husbande so that she is no wedlocke breaker, though she couple her selfe with another man.

Euen so ye also (my brethren) are dead concerning the law by the body of Christ that ye should be coupled to an other (J meane to him ŷ is rise again from death) that we should bring forth fruit vnto God. For when we were in the flesh, the B lustes of sinne which wer stirred vp by ŷ law, reigned in our members, to bryng forth frute vnto death. But now are we deliuered from the law, and dead vnto it whereunto we were in bondage: that we should serue in a new conuersation of the spirite, and not in the old conuersation of the letter.

What shal we say then? is the law sinn? Rom.v.e God forbid: neuerthelesse * J knewe not Gal.iii.b sinne, but by the law. For J had not kno wen what lust had meant, except the law had sayd, * thou shalt not lust. But sinne Exo.xx.c. toke an occasion by the meanes of the cõ Deu.v.d. maundement, and wrought in me al maner of concupiscence. For verely without the lawe, sinne was dead. J once liued without the law. But when the cõmaun-dement came, sinne reuiued, and J was dead. And the very same cõmaundement which was ordeined vnto life, was foũd to be vnto me an occasion of death. For sinne toke occasion by the meanes of the commaundement, and so disceaued me, & by

1.Ti.i.b. by thesame slew me. Wherfore * the law Gal.iii.c is holy and the commaundement holy, & iust and good.

Was that then which was good, made death vnto me? God forbid: nay it was sinne: yͤ sinne might appeare (by it which was good) to worke death in me: yͤ sinne by the commaundement might be out of measure sinfull. For we know that yͤ law Esa. lii.a is spiritual: but I am carnal * solde vnder sinne, bicause I allow not yͭ, which I do.
For what I should yͭ do I not: but what D I hate, that do I. If I do now yͭ which I would not I consent vnto the law that it is good: so then now, it is not I that do it, but sinne that dwelleth in me. For I Ge.vi.a. know that in me (yͭ is to say in my * flesh) dwelleth no good thig. For to wil is present with me: but I finde no meanes to perfourme that which is good. For the good that I would, do I not: but the euill which I would not, that do I. If I do that I would not, then is it not I that do it, but synne that dwelleth in me, I finde then by the law, that when I would doe good, euill is present with me. For I de-lite in the law of God, after the inwarde man. But I se another law in my members, rebelling against the lawe of my mynde, and subduing me vnto the law of sinne, which is in my members. O wretched man yͭ I am: who shal deliuer me frõ thys body subdued vnto death? I thanke God through Jesus Christ our Lorde.
So then, with the minde I serue the law of god, but with the flesh the law of sinn.

The eight Chapter. ✠

The law of the spirite geueth lyfe: the spirite of God maketh vs Gods children and heyres wyth Christ. The aboundaunt loue of god can not be seperated.

A There is then no damnation to them which are in Christ Jesu, which walk not after the flesh, but after the spirite. For yͤ law of yͤ spirit of life through Jesus Christ, hath made Joh.viii.d. me * free from the law of sinne, & death.
Ro.vi.d For * what yͤ law could not do (inasmuch Heb.vii.c as it was weake bicause of the flesh) that Luk.xx,b perfourmed God, and * sent his sonne in Joh.iii.b. the similitude of sinfull flesh, and by sinne damned sinne in the flesh: that the righte-ousnesse of the lawe might be fulfilled in vs, which walke not after the flesh, but after the spirite. For they that are carnal, are carnally minded. But they yͭ are spi- B rituall, are ghostly minded. To be carnally minded, is death. But to be spiritually minded, is life and peace. ✠

Bicause that the fleshly mind is enmi-tie against God: for it is not obedient to the law of God, neither can be: so then they that are in the flesh, can not please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the spirite: if so be that the spirit of god dwell in you. If any man haue not the spirite of Christ, thesame is none of his. If Christ be in you, the body is dead bicause of sinn but the spirite is lyfe for righteousnesse sake. Wherfore, if the spirite of hym that raysed vp Jesus from death, dwel in you euen he that raysed vp Chryste from death, shall quicken your mortall bodies, bicause of hys spirite that dwelleth in you.

✠ Therfore brethren we ar detters, not C to the flesh, to lyue after the flesh. For if ye lyue after the flesh, ye shall dye. But if ye (through the spirite) do mortifie the de-des of the body, ye shal lyue. For as many as are led by the spirite of God, they are the sonnes of God, for ye haue not recei-ued the spirite of bondage to feare any more, but * ye haue receiued the spirite of Ga. iiii.a adoption, wherby we cry: Abba father. * 1.Ti.i.b.
Thesame spirite certifieth our spirit that 2.Cor.i.d we are the sonnes of God. Yf we be son- and.v.a nes, then are we also heires, the heires I Ephe.i.a meane of God, and heires annexed with Christ: if so be that we suffer with hym, yͭ we may be also glorifyed together wyth
hym. ✠

✠ For I suppose yͭ the afflictions of this lyfe, are not worthy of the glory whyche D when the sonnes of God shal appeare, bi-cause the creature is subdued to vanitie which hath subdued thesame in hope. For thesame creature shalbe deliuered frõ the bondage of corruption, into the glorious libertie of the sõnes of god. For we know that euery creature groneth with vs also, and trauaileth in pain, euen vnto this tyme. Not only it, but we also which haue the first fruites of the spirite mourne in our selues also, and wait for the adoption (of the children of god) euen the deliueraunce of our body. ✠

✠ For we are saued by hope. But hope that is sene, is no hope. For how can a mã hope for that which he seeth? But and if we

C we hope for that we se not, then do we with patience abide for it.
Lykewyse the spirite also helpeth our infirmities. For we know not what to de syre as we ought: but the spirite maketh intercessiõ for vs, with groninges which i. Parali. xviii. c. Psa. vii. c Je. xvii. b. Mat. vi. b can not be expressed. And * he that sear-cheth the heartes * knoweth what is the meaning of the spirite: for he maketh in-tercessiõ for the Saintes according to the pleasure of God.
* We know that all thynges worke for he knew before, he also ordeined before, ỹ they shuld be like fashioned vnto ỹ shape gotten sone amõg many brethren. More ouer, whõ he appoynted before, them also them he also glorifyed.

What shall we then say to these things?

which he had prepared vnto glory: whom i.Pe.ii.b. were not my people: and her beloued, which was not beloued, (and her to haue obteyned mercy, that had not obteyned mercy.) And it shall come to passe, that in the place where it was sayd vnto them, ye are not my people: there shall they be called the children of the liuing god.

But Esay cryeth concerning Israell: Esay.x.c. * though the number of the children of Israell be as the sande of the sea, yet the remnaunt shalbe saued. For he finisheth the worde verely, and maketh it short in righteousnesse. For a short word wil god make on earth. And as Esay said before: Esay.i.c. *except the Lord of Sabboth had left vs F sede, we had bene made as Zodoma and had bene likened to Gomorra. What shal we say then? We say that the Gentiles which folowed not righteousnesse, haue ouertaken righteousnesse: euen the righteousnesse which commeth of fayth. Contrarywise, Israel which folowed the law of righteousnesse, could not attein to the law of righteousnesse. Wherfore? Euen bicause they sought it not by fayth: but as it were by the workes of the law. For they haue stombled at the stombling stone.

The tenth Chapter. *

The vnfaythfulnesse of the Jewes. Two maner of righteousnesse.

A Brethren, my heartes desier and prayer to god for Israel is, ÿ they myght be saued. For I beare them recorde, that they haue a feruent minde to GOD warde, but not according to knowledge. For they being ignoraunt of Gods righteousnesse, and going about to stablish their own righteousnesse, haue not ben obediente vnto the righteousnesse of God. *For *Christ is the fulfilling of ÿ Math.v.c law, to iustifie al that beleue: For Moses writeth of the righteousnesse * which cōmeth of the law, how that the man, which Le.xviii.a. doth the thinges of the law, shal liue ther Gal.iii.b by. But the righteousnesse which cōmeth of fayth, speaketh on thys wyse: say not thou in thine heart, who shal ascende into heauen? (that is euen to fetch Christ B down from aboue.) Either who shall discende into the depe? (that is euen to fetch vp Christ again from death.) But what sayeth he? * The worde is nie thee, euen in thy mouth and in thine heart. This De.xxx.c same is the worde of fayth, which we preach. For if thou knowledge with thy mouth that Jesus is the lord, and beleue in thine heart, that God raysed hym vp from death, thou shalt be safe.
* For to beleue with the heart, iustifi- C one is Lord of all, which is riche vnto al that cal vpon him. For * whosoeuer doth Joel.ii.g.

How then shal they cal on hym on whom they haue not beleued? how shal they be-how shal they heare without a preacher?

And how shall they preach except they be sent? As it is writ ten: how beautifull are

All the Iewes are not cast away, therfore Paul warneth the Gentiles that be called, not to be hye mynded, nor to despise the Iewes, for the iudgementes of god are depe and secrete.

A I Say then: hath God cast away his people? God forbid. For euen I also am an Israelite, of þ sede of Abraham, of the tribe of Beniamin: god hath not cast away his people which he knew before. Wote ye not what the Scripture sayth of Helias, how he maketh intercessiō to god against Israel saying: * Lord they haue killed thy Prophetes, and digged down thine altars and I am left alone, and they seke my life. (3.Kings. xix.b.) But what sayth the answere of God vnto him? *I haue reserued vnto my selfe, vii. M. men, which haue not bowed the knee to the image of Baal. (3.Kings, xix.d.) Euē so also at this time is there a remnaunte left according to the election of grace. If it be of grace, then is it not nowe of workes. For then grace is nomore grace. But if it be of workes, then is it now no grace. For then were deseruing no more deseruing. What thē? Israel hath not obteined that which he seketh: but the election hath obteined it.

B The remnaunt are blinded accordyng as it is written.* God hath geuen them the spirit of vnquietnesse: eyes that they should not see, and eares that they should not heare, euen vnto this day. (Esa.vi.e Mat.xiii b Joh.xii.f Ac.xxviii f) *And Dauid sayth: let their table be made a snare to take them withall, and an occasiō to fal and a rewarde vnto them. Let their eyes be blinded that they see not: and bowe thou down their backe alway. (Psal. lxix.e.) I say thē: haue they therfore stombled, that they should vtterly fall away together? God forbid: but through their fall is saluation happened vnto the Gentiles, for to prouoke them withal. Wherfore, if the fall of them be the riches of the world, & the minishing of them the riches of the Gentiles: how much more their perfectnesse? I speake to you Gentiles, in asmuch as * I am the Apostle of the Gentiles. (Rom.i.a i.Ti.ii.a. ii.Ti.i.c.) I wyll magnifie mine office, if by any meane I may prouoke them whych are my flesh and might saue some of them. For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiuing of them be, but lyfe agayne from death? For if one piece be holy the whole heape is holy. And if the rote be holy, the braunches shalbe holy also.

C Though some of the braunches be broken of, and thou being a wilde oliue tree wast graft in amōg them, and made partaker of the rote and fatnesse of the * oliue tree, boast not thy self against the braunches. (Jere.xi) For if thou boast thy selfe, thou bearest not the rote, but the rote thee. Thou wilt say then: the braūches are broken of, that I might be graft in. Thou saiest wel bicause of vnbeliefe they were broken of, and thou stodest stedfast in fayth. Be not hye minded, but feare: for seing that God spared not the naturall braunches, take hede, lest it come to passe that he spare not thee also.

D Beholde therfore the kindnesse and rigorousnesse of God: on them which fell rigorousnesse: but towards the kyndnesse if thou continue in his kindnesse. Or els thou shalt be hewen of, and they again * if they bide not still in vnbeliefe, shalbe graffed in again. (2.Cor.) For God is of power to graffe thē in again. For if þ wast cut out of a naturall wilde oliue tree, and wast graffed cōtrary to nature in a true oliue tree: how much more shall the naturall braunches be graffed in their own oliue tree again? I would not that this secrete should be hid from you my brethren (least ye should be wise in your own conceites) that partly blindnesse is happened in Israel, vntil the fulnesse of the Gentiles be come in: and so al Israel shalbe saued.

E As it is writtē: *There shal come out of Sion he that doth deliuer, and shall turne away vngodlinesse from Iacob. (Esa.lix Psa.xiv) And thys is my couenaunt vnto them, when I shal take away their sinnes. As concerning the gospell they are enemies for your sakes: but as touching the election, they are loued for the fathers sakes. For verely, the giftes and calling of God are suche, þ it can not repent him of them: for loke, as ye in time passed haue not beleued God, yet haue now obteined mercy through their vnbeliefe: euē so now haue they not beleued the mercy which is happened vnto you: that they also may obteine mercy. For God had wrapped al nations in vnbeliefe, that he might haue mercy on all. O the depenesse of the riches both of the wisedome and knowledge of God: howe vnsearcheable are his iudgementes, and hys wayes past finding out? For * who hath knowen the minde of the Lord? Or who hath bene hys counsaillour? eyther who hath geuen vnto him first, & he shal- (Sap.ix Esa.xl 1.Cor.ii.b.) his owne maister: yea, he shalbe holden vp that he may stande. For god is able to make him stande. This man putteth dyfference betwene day and day. Another B man counteth all dayes alyke. Let euery mannes minde satisfie himselfe. He that obserueth the daie, doeth it vnto the lord.

And he that doeth not obserue the daye, doeth it for the lorde also. He that eateth, doeth it to please the Lord, for he geueth God thankes. And he that eateth not, ea-teth not to please the Lorde withall, and geueth God thankes. For none of vs lyueth for himselfe, and no man dyeth for himself. For if we liue, we liue vnto the Lorde. And if we die, we die vnto the lord.
Whither we liue therfore or die, we are the Lordes. For Christ therefore died, and rose Acte.ii.f again, and reuiued, that he mighte be * Phi.ii.b Lorde of dead and quicke. But why doest C thou then iudge thy brother? Either why doest thou despyse thy brother? We shalbe al brought before the iudgement seate of Christ. For it is written: As truelye as I liue sayth the lorde: * all knees shall bowe to me, and all tonges shall geue a prayse Esa.xlv. to God. So shall euery one of vs geue ac- e.xiv.a [illegible] comptes of himselfe to God. Let vs not Phi.ii.b. therefore iudge one another any more: But iudge this rather, that no man put a stumbling block, or an occasion to fal in his brothers way. For * I knowe and am ful certified by the Lorde Jesus, that * there is [illegible] nothing common of it selfe: but vnto hym that Mat.xv. iudgeth it to be common, to him is it com- b.
mon. If thy brother be greued wyth thy Acte.x.b. meate, now walkest thou not charitably. i.Ti.iiii. a.
Destroy not him with thy meate for whom Mar.vii.
Christ died. Cause not youre treasure to b. be euill spoken of. For the kingdom of god [illegible] is not meate and drinke: but righteousnesse, and peace, and ioy in the holy ghost. For he that in these thinges serueth Christ, plea-seth god, and is commended of them.
Let vs therefore folowe those thinges which make for peace, and thinges wherewith one may edify another. Destroye not the worke of god for a litle meates sake. * All i.Ti.i.b. thinges are pure: but it is euyl for the man, which eateth with hurte of conscience. It is good neither to eate fleshe, neyther to drink wine, nether any thing wherby thy brother stumbleth either falleth or is made weake. Haste thou faith? haue it with thy self before god. Happy is he that condem-neth not himself, in the thing which he aloweth. For he that maketh conscience is damned, if he eat, bicause he eateth not of faith For whatsoeuer is not of faith, that same is sinne.

The .xv. Chapter.

The infirmitie and frailnesse of the weak ought to be borne with all loue and kindnesse, after the ensample of Christ.

them which are weake, and

B The God of pacience and consolation graunt you to be like minded one towardes another, after the ensaumple of Christe Jesu: *that ye all agreing together may with one mouth prayse God, the father of our Lorde Jesus Christe. Wherefore, receiue ye one another, as Christ receued vs to the prayse of god. And this I say, y Jesus Christ was a minister of y circumsision for the truthe of god, to confyrme y promises made vnto the fathers: * that the gētiles might praise god for his mercy, as it is written. *For this cause I wil praise thee among the Gentiles, and sing vnto thy name. And againe he sayth: *reioyce ye gentiles with his people. And agayn: *praise the lord all ye gentiles, and laude him al ye nations together. And again Esai saith: there shalbe *the roote of Jesse, and he that shal ryse to reygne ouer C the gentiles, in him shal the gētyles trust. The god of hope fill you with all ioy, and peace in beleuing: that ye may be ryche in hope, through the power of y holy ghost.

I my selfe am full certified of you (my brethrē) that ye also are full of goodnesse, and filled with all knowledge, wyllyng to exhort one another. Neuertheles (brethren) I haue somewhat more boldely written vnto you, partly to put you in remembrance through the grace that is ge-D uen me of god, that I should be the minister of Jesu Christ among the Gentiles, and should minister the ghospell of God, that the offring of the Gentiles might be acceptable, and sāctified by the holy ghost. I haue therfore whereof I maye reioyce through Christe Jesu, in those thynges whiche pertayne to God. For I dare not speake of any of those thynges, whiche Christ hath not wrought by me, to make the gentiles obedient with worde & dede in mighty signes and wonders, by the power of the spirite of God: so that from Jerusalem and the coastes rounde about vnto Illiricum, I haue filled al countries with the Ghospel of Christ.

So haue I enforced my self to preache E y ghospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should haue built on an other mans foundation: but as it is written. *To whom he was not spoken of, they shall see: & they that heard not shal vnderstand. For this cause haue I bene oft let (and lette am as yet) that I could not come vnto you: but nowe seyng I haue no more to doe in these countreys, & also haue bene desirous many yeres to come vnto you, whensoeuer I take my iourney into Spain, I wyll come to you. For I trust to see you in my iourney, & to be brought on my way thytherwarde by you, after that I haue somewhat enioyed your acquaintaunce.

Now go I vnto Jerusalē, & *minister vnto y sainctes. For it hath pleased them of Macedonia and Achaia, to make a certain distribution vpon the poore sainctes whiche are at Jerusalem. It hath pleased them verely, and their detters are they. For if the Gentiles be made partakers of their spirituall thinges, their duetie is to minister vnto them in bodylye thinges. When I haue perfourmed this, and haue brought them this fruit sealed, I wyll come backe agayne by you into Spayn: I am sure that when I come vnto you, I shal come with aboundaunce of the blessing of the ghospel of Christ.

*I beseche you brethren for our lorde Jesus Christes sake, and for the loue of y spirite, that ye helpe me in my businesse with your prayers to God for me, that I maye be deliuered from them whiche beleue not in Jewry: and that this my seruice, whiche I haue to doe at Jerusalem, maye be accepted of the sainctes, that I may come vnto you with ioye by the will of God, and maye with you be refreshed. The god *of peace be with you al. Amen. F

¶ This Epistle was sent to the Romaynes from Corinthum by Phebe, she that was the minister vnto the congregation at Cenchrea.

¶ The firste Epistle of S. Paule the Apostle to the Corinthians.

¶ The first Chapter

He commendeth the Corinthians, exhorteth them to bee of one mynde, and rebuketh the deuision that was among them, worldly wisedom is foolishnesse before god, yea there is no wysedome but in the despised crosse of Christ.

Paule called an Apostle of Jesus Christe throughe the will of god, and brother Sosthenes. Unto ỹ congregation of GOD whiche is at Corinthum. To them that are sanctified by Christ Jesu, called sainctes, with all that call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in euery place, eyther of theyrs or of ours. *Grace be vnto you, and peace from god our father, and from the Lorde Jesus Christ. Romi.i.a. Gala.i.a

*I thanke my god alwaies on your behalfe, for the grace of God whiche is geuen you by Jesus Christe, that in all thynges ye are made ryche by him, in all vtteraunce, and in all knowledge, by the whiche thynges the testimonye of Jesus Christe was confirmed in you, so that ye are behinde in no gifte, waiting for the appearing of our Lorde Jesus Christe, whiche shall also strengthe you vnto the ende, that ye maye be blamelesse in ỹ day (of the comming) of oure Lorde Jesus Christe.

*GOD is faythfull by whome ye are called vnto the felowshippe of hys Numeri. xxxiii.e sonne Jesus Christe oure Lorde. I 1.Cor.x.c

beeseche you brethren by the name of B oure Lorde Jesus Christe, that ye all speake one thyng, and that there bee no dyssention among you: but that ye maye bee a whole bodye: of one minde, and of one meanyng. For it is shewed vnto me (my brethren) of you, by them whiche are of the house of Cloe, that there is stryfe among you. I speake of the same that euerye one of you sayth: Ac.xviii.d I holde of Paule: I holde of * Apollo, i.Cor.iii. I holde of Cephas, I holde of Christe.

a. Is Christe deuyded? Was Paule crucy-and.xvi.c fyed for you? eyther were ye baptised in C the name of Paule. I thanke God that I baptised none of you, but Crispus and Gayus: lest any should saye, that I had baptysed in myne owne name. I baptised also the house of Stephans. Furthermore knowe I not, whither I baptysed any man (of you) or no.
For Christe sent me not to baptise, but to preache the Ghospell, not wyth wysedome of woordes, lest the crosse of Christ should haue bene made of none effecte.
For the preachyng of the crosse is to them that perysshe, foolishnesse: but vnto vs Rom.i.b. whiche are saued: * It is the power of Es.xxix.d GOD. For it is written: * I wyll destroy the wisedome of the wyse, and wyll caste awaye the vnderstanding of the prudent. Where is the wise? * Where is Es.xxxiii. the Scribe? Where is the disputer of this c, worlde? Hath not God made the wisedom of this world foolishnesse?
For after that the worlde throughe wysedome knewe not GOD in the wysedome of GOD, it pleased GOD tho-rowe foolyshnesse of preaching, to saue Mat.viii. them that beleue. For * the Jewes reb, quier a sygne, and the Greekes seke af-Luk.xi.b. ter wysedome. But we preache Christe Joh.vi.b, crucyfied, vnto the Jewes an occasion of D fallyng, and vnto the Greekes foolysh-nesse, but vnto them whiche are called bothe of the Jewes and Greekes, we preache Christe the power of God, and the wysedome of God. For the foolyshe-nesse of God, is wiser than men, and the weaknesse of God is stronger than men.
Brethren, ye see youre callyng, howe that not many wise men after the fleshe, not many mightie, not many of hie degre, are called: but God hath chosen the foo-lishe thinges of the worlde, to confounde the wise. And God hath chosen the weake thinges of the worlde, to confounde thin-ges whiche are mightie. And vyle thyn-ges of the worlde, and thynges whiche are despysed, hath God chosen, yea, and thynges of no reputation, for to bryng to nought thynges of reputation, that no fleshe should reioyce in his presence. And of hym are ye in Christe Jesu, whyche of GOD is made vnto vs wysedome, and ryghteousnesse, and sanctifiyng, and redemtion. That accordyng as it is wrytten: he whiche reioyceth, shoulde reioyce in the Lorde.

The second Chapter.

It is not eloquence and glorious painted woor-des of worldly wisedome, that can edifye, and conuert soules vnto Christ, but the plaine woordes of the scripture, for they make mention of hym and his crosse.

AND I brethren (when A I came to you) cam not in gloriousnesse of wordes, or of wisdom, shewing vnto you y^e testimonye of god. Nether shewed I my self, y^t I knew anye thing among you, saue Jesus Christ, euen the same that was crucified. And I was among you in weaknesse, & in feare & in much trembling.
And my wordes & my preaching was not with enticing wordes of mans wisedome: but in shewing of the spirit & of power, y^t your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men but in the power of god.
We speake of wisdom among them that are perfect: not the wisdom of this world, B neither of the rulers of this world (which go to naught) but we speake the wisdom of God, which is in secrete and lyeth hyd: which god ordeined before the world, vnto our glory, which wisdom * none of the Act.xiii.d rulers of this world knew. For had they had knowlege, they would not haue crucified y^e lord of glory. But (as it is writtē)
* The eye hath not seen, & the eare hath Ps.xiiii.a not heard, nether haue entred into y^e hart of man the thinges which god hath prepared for them that loue him.
But god hath opened them vnto vs by his spirit. For * y^e spirit sercheth all thyn- Ro.iiii.a. ges, yea the bottom of gods secretes. For what man knoweth the thinges of a mā: saue the spirite of man whiche is wythin him? Euen so the thinges of god knoweth no mā, but the spirit of god. And we haue not receiued the spirite of the worlde: but the spirite whiche commeth of God, for to knowe the thinges that are geuē to vs of God, whiche thinges also we speake (not with wordes that mans wisedō teacheth, but with wordes whiche the holy Ghoste doth teach) making spiritual comparisons of spirituall thynges. The naturall man perceyueth not the thynges that belong to the spirite of God. For they are but foolishnesse vnto him: Nether can he per-ceiue them, because they are spirituallye examined.

But

But he yͤ is spiritual, discusseth al things: yet he himself is iudged of no man. *For who hath knowen the minde of the Lord either who shal enforme him? But we vnderstand the minde of Christ.

Esai.xl.c Ro.xi.e.

¶The third Chapter.

Paule rebuketh the sectes and authours therof. Christ is the foundation of his Churche. No man ought to reioyce in men, but in God.

A And I coulde not speake (vnto you brethrē) as vnto spirituall, but as vnto carnal: euē as vnto babes in Christe. *I gaue you milk to drink, & not meat. For ye thē wer not strōg neither are ye as yet. For ye are yet carnal. As long verely as there is among you enuying, & strife, & sectes: are ye not carnal, & walke after the maner of men? For while one saith: I hold of Paule, and another I am of *Apollo, are ye not carnal?

Hebr.v.d Ac.xviii.d I Cor.i.b

B What is Paule? What thing is Apollo? Onely ministers are they by whom ye beleued, euē as the lord gaue euery man grace. I haue planted, Apollo watred: but god gaue yͤ encrease. So then, neither is he yͤ planted any thing, neither he that watreth, but god yͤ geueth yͤ encreace. He yͤ planteth and he that watreth are one. Euery mā yet shal receue his reward, acording to his labor. For we are Gods laborers, ye are Gods husbandry, *ye are gods building.

Eph.ii.d.

C According to the grace of god geuē vnto me, as a wise builder haue I laid the foundation. And another built theron. But let euery man take hede: how he buildeth vpon. For another foundatiō can no man lay, than it yͤ is layd, *whiche is Iesus Christ.

Mat.xvi. c.

Yf any man builde on this foundation, gold, siluer, precious stones, tymber haye or stuble: euery mans worke shal appere. For the daye shall declare, whiche shal be shewed in fier. And the fier shall trie euery mans worke what it is. If any mans worke yͤ he hath built vpon, byde, he shall receiue a reward. If any mannes worke burne, he shall suffer losse, but he shall bee safe himself: neuerthelesse, yet as it were through fier.

I.Cor.vi. d.

D *Know ye not, that ye are the temple of god, & how that the spirit of god dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of god, him shal god destroy. For yͤ temple of god is holy, which temple ye are. Lette no mā deceiue himselfe. If any man seme wise to himself among you, let him becom a foole in this world, yͤ he may be wyse. For yͤ wisdom of this world, is folishnesse with god. For it is written: *he cōpasseth yͤ wise in their craftinesse. And againe: *god knoweth yͤ thoughtes of the wyse, yͤ they be vain. Therfore let no mā reioyce in mē. For all things are yours, whether it be Paule, either Apollo, either Cephas whither it be in the world, either lyfe, eyther death, whither they be presēt things or thinges to come, all are yours: and ye are Christes, and Christ is gods.

Iohn.v.b Ps.xciiii. b.

The fourth Chapter.

The preachers are but ministers. Iudgemente belongeth onely vnto god.

A Let a mā this wise esteme vs, euen as the ministers of Christ, & stewardes of yͤ *secretes of God. Furthermore it is required of the stewards, yͤ a man be founde faithful. With me is it but a very smal thing, yͤ I should be iudged of you, either of mans iudgemēt. No, I iudge not mine owne selfe. For I know noughte by my selfe: yet am I not therby iustified. It is the lorde yͤ iudgeth me. Therefore iudge nothing before the time vntill the lorde come, whiche wyll lighten thinges yͤ are hid in darknesse, & open the counsels of the hearts. And then shall euery man haue praise of God.

Deut.ix

B These thinges (brethren) I haue for an ensample described in mine owne person, & in Apollos for youre sakes, yͤ ye mighte learn by vs, that no mā count of hymselfe beyond that which is aboue written: that one swel not agaist another for any mans cause. For who preferreth thee? *What hast thou, that thou hast not receiued? If thou haue receiued it, why reioycest thou, as though thou haddest not receiued it? Now are ye full, now are ye made rich: ye reign as kinges without vs: & I woulde to god ye did reygn, that we might reign with you. For me thinketh, that GOD hath set forth vs (whiche are the last Apostles) as it were menne appoynted to death. For we are a gasing stock vnto the world, and to the angels, and to men. We are foles for Christs sake, but ye are wise through Christ. We are weake, but ye are strong. Ye are honorable, but we are despised.

Iacob.i.a Ps.xliiii. d. Ro.viii.f pised. Euen vnto this time we hunger & thirst, and are naked, & are buffeted wyth fistes, & haue no certain dwelling place, & Act.xx.g. labor * working with our owne handes. i.Thes.ii e We are reuiled, and yet we blesse. We are 2.Thes.iii persecuted, & suffer it: We are euil spoken d of, and we pray. We are made as it wer ÿ filthinesse of the world, the offscouryng of all thinges, euen vnto this day.

I write not these things to shame you D but as my beloued sonnes I warne you.
For though ye haue ten thousād instructours in Christ: yet haue ye not many fathers. In Christe Iesu I haue begotten you through the ghospel. Wherfore I desier you to folow me (as I folowe Christ.) For this cause haue I sent vnto you Tymo-theus, which is my dere sonne, & faithful in the lord, which shal put you in remembraunce of my waies, ÿ I haue in Christ, euen as I teach euery where in al cōgre-gations. Some swel, as though I would come no more at you. But I wil come to Ac.xviii.c you shortly: * if god will, & wil know, not Heb.vi.a the wordes of them whiche swell, but the power: for the kingdome of god is not in wordes, but in power. What wil ye? Shal I come vnto you with a rodde, or els in loue and in the spirite of softnesse.

¶ The fifth Chapter

After what maner Paule curseth the man, that had committed fornication with his mother in law

A There goeth a commō saying that there is fornication among you and such fornication as is not named amōg the Gentiles:
that one should haue his fathers wife. And ye Le.xviii.a swell, and haue not rather sorowed, that he whiche hath done this dede, might be put from among you. For I verely as absent in body, but present in spirite, haue determined already (as thoughe I were present) concerning him that hath doone this dede: in the name of our Lord Iesu Christ, when ye are gathered together, & Mat.xviii c. my spirite with you, with the power of ÿ Lorde Iesus Christ: * to deliuer him vni.Ti.i.d. to Sathan, for the destruction of ÿ flesh, that the spirite may be saued in the day of the Lorde Iesus. Your reioyceyng is not good: know ye not that a litle leuen sow-

* Pourge therefore the olde leuen, that ye may be newe dowe, as ye are sweete bread. For Christe oure passeouer is offered vp for vs. Therfore let vs kepe holye day, not with olde leuen, neither with the leuen of maliciousnesse & wickednesse but with ÿ swete bread of purenesse & truth.
I wrote vnto you in a pistle, ÿ ye should not company with fornicatours. And I ment not at all of the fornicators of this world, either of the couetous, or extorcioners, either the ydolators: for then must ye nedes haue gone out of the world. But now I did write vnto you, * ÿ ye compa- 2.Thes.iii d.

ther, be a fornicatour, or couetous, or a worshipper of ymages, either a rayler, ey-ther a dronkard, or an extorcioner: wyth him that is such, see that ye eate not. For what haue I to doe to iudge them which are without? Doe ye not iudge them that are within? Thē ÿ are without, god iudgeth. * Put away the euil frō amōg you. De.xiii.b

The sixth Chapter.

He rebuketh them for going to law together before the heathen, and reproueth their vnclennesse.

Dare one of you hauynge A businesse with another, goe to lawe vnder ÿ wyc-ked and not rather vnder the sainctes? * Doe ye not Mat.xiii.d knowe that the sayinctes and .xix.d shal iudge the world? If ÿ world shall be iudged by you, are ye not good ynough to iudge smal trifles? Know ye not, how that we shall iudge ÿ angels?
How much more may we iudge thinges that perteyn to the life? If ye haue iudgementes of worldly matters, take them which are despised in the congregation & make them iudges. This I saye to youre shame. Is there vtterlye no wise man a- B mong you? What not one at all, that can iudge betwene brother & brother, but one brother goeth to law with another, and ÿ vnder ÿ vnbeleuers? Now therfore, there is vtterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why rather suffer ye not wrong? why rather suffer ye not your selues to haue harme? Naye, ye your selues do wrong, & robbe: & that the brethren. Do ye not know, how that ÿ vn-righteous, shall not inherite the kingdom of god? Be not deceiued. For * neither fornicators, neither worshippers of ymages, Gal.v.d.

the kyngdom of god. And such were some of you: but ye are washed: but ye are sanctified: but ye are iustified by the name of the Lorde Jesus, and by the spirite of our Ecclesi. xxxvii. d. god. I may do al thinges, but *all things are not profitable, I may do al thynges, but I will be brought vnder no mannes power. Meates are ordeined for the belly, and the belly for meates: but god shall destroy both it and them. Let not the body be applyed vnto fornication, but vnto the lord, and the lord vnto the body. God hath raysed vp the Lorde, and shall rayse vs vp by his power.

D ✝ *Either know ye not, that your bo-

The seuenth Chapter.

Of mariage, virginitie, and widowhead.

A As concerning the thinges whereof ye wrote vnto me *It is good for a man not to touche a woman. Ne-uerthelesse, to auoyde whoredome, let euery man haue his wife: and let e-uery woman haue her husbande. Let the husband geue vnto the wife, dewe beneuolence. Likewise also the wife vnto the husband. The wife hath not power of her own body: but the husband. And likewyse the husband hath not power of his own Co. vii. d. e. viii. a body: but the wife. *Withdraw not your selues one from another, except it be with Joel. ii. d consent for a time, for to geue your selues to fasting and praier. And afterward com together againe, lest Sathan tempt you for your incontinency. ✝

B This I saye of fauour, and not of commaundement. For I would that all men wer as I my self am: but euery man hath his proper gyfte of God, one after thys maner, another after that. I say vnto the that be vnmaried & widdowes: it is good for them, if they abide euen as I do. But and *if they can not absteine, lette them 1. Ti. v. c. marry. For it is better to marrye, then to burne. Unto the married commaund not I, but the lorde: *Let not the wife be se- Mat. v. e. & xix. a. perated from the husband. Yf she seperate her selfe, let her remaine vnmaried, or be reconciled vnto her husbande again. And let not the husbande put awaye his wife from him.

To the remnant speak I, not the lord:
If any brother haue a wife that beleueth C not, if she be content to dwel with him, let him not put her awaye. And the woman whiche hath to her husbande an infidell, and consente to dwel with her, let her not put him awaye. For the vnbeleuing husband is sanctified by the wife, & the vnbeleuing wife is sanctified by the husbande, Or els were your children vncleane: but now are they holy. But and if the vnbe-leuing departe, let him depart. A brother or a sister is not in subiection to such. But god hath called vs in peace. For how kno-west thou (O woman) whither thou shalte saue thy husband or no? Either how knoweste thou (O man) whither thou shalte saue thy wife or no? but euen as god hath distributed to euery man.

*As the lorde hath called euery man, so D let him walke, & so ordein I in all congre- Eph. iiii. a gations. If any man be called being circumcised, let him not adde vncircumcision.
If any bee called vncircumcised, let him not be circumcised. Circumcision is nothing, and vncircumcision is nothing: but the keping of the commaundementes of GOD. ✝ Let euery manne abyde in the same calling, wherein he was called. Art *thou called a seruaunte? care not for it. 1 Ti. vi. a Neuerthelesse if thou mayst be free, vse it rather. For he that is called in the lorde, being a seruaunt, is the lordes freeman.
Lykewyse he that is called beyng free, is Christes seruaunt. Ye are derely bought, be not ye the seruauntes of menne. Brethren, let euery man wherein he is called therin abide with god. ✝

As concerning virgins, I haue no com- E maundement of the lord, yet geue I coun-sayle, as one that hath obteined mercy of the Lorde to be faithfull, I suppose therefore that it is good for the present necessitye.
For it is good for a manne so to bee. Art thou bounde vnto a wyfe? seke not to bee loosed. Art thou loosed from a wyfe? seke not not a wife. But and if thou mary a wyfe thou hast not synned. Lykewyse, yf a vyrgin marry, she hath not sined. Neverthelesse, suche shall haue trouble in theyr fleshe: but I fauoure you. This saye I Psa.xc.a ii.Pe,iii,b brethren, * the tyme is shorte. It remayneth that they whiche haue wiues, be as though they had none:and they ŷ wepe, bee as though they wepte not: and they that reioyce, be as thoughe they reioyced not:and they that bye, be as thoughe they possessed not:and thei that vse this world Esa.xl.b be as though they vsed it not. For * the 1 Joh.ii.c fashion of this worlde goeth away. * I Mat.vi.d would haue you without care. He that is Luk.x.c. vnmaried, careth for the thyngs that belong to the lorde, howe he may please the lorde.

F But he that hath maried a wife careth for the thinges that are of the world, how he may please his wife. There is differẽce betwene a virgin and a wife. The syngle woman careth for the things that are of the lorde, that she may be holy both in body and also in spirite. Againe, she that is maryed, careth for the thynges that per-teine to the worlde, howe she may please her husbande. This speake I for your profit, not to tangle you in a snare, but that ye maye folowe it, whiche is honest and comely, and that ye may cleaue vnto the Lord without seperation.
If any manne thinke that it is vncomlye for his Virgin if shee passe the tyme of mariage, and if so nede require, lette hym dooe what he lusteth, he sinneth not, lette them be coupled in mariage. Ne-uerthelesse, he that purposeth surelye in his heart, hauing no neede, but hath power ouer his owne wyll:and hath so decreed in his heart, that he wyll kepe hys virgin, doeth well. So then, he that ioy-neth his virgin in mariage, doeth well.
But he that ioineth not his virgin in ma-riage doth better. The * wife is bound to Ro.vii.a the mariage as long as her husbande lyueth. If her husband die, she is at libertie to mary with whom she will, onely in the Lord. But she is happier, if she so abyde, after my iudgement. And I thinke verely that I haue the spirite of God.

The eyght Chapter.

He rebuketh them that vse libertie to the sclaunder of other, and sheweth howe menne ought to behaue them towarde suche as be weake.

As touching thinges offe- A red * vnto images we are Acte.v.c, sure ŷ we all haue knowledge. Knowledge ma-keth a man swel: but loue edifieth. If any mã think that he knoweth anye thyng, he knoweth nothyng yet, as he ought to know. But if any man loue god, thesame is knowen of him. As cõcerning the eating of those thinges that are offered vnto Idols, we are sure that ŷ ymage * is nothing in the worlde, and that there is none other God but one. And thoughe 1 Cor.x.c there be that are called Gods, whether in B heauen, either in earth (as there be gods many, & lordes many) yet vnto vs, is ther but one god, which is ŷ father, of whõ are al thinges, and we for him:and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all thynges, and we by hym.
But euery man hath not knowledge.
* Some hauyng conscyence because of the ymage vntyll this houre, eate as a 1.Corin. thyng offered vnto ymages:and so theyr viii.c. conscyence beyng weake, is defiled. But meate maketh vs not acceptable to God.
Neither if we eate, are we the better: neither if we eate not are we the worse. But C take hede, lest by any meanes this liberty of yours be an occasion of falling to them that are weake. For if some man see thee whiche hast knowledge, sit & eate of meat offred vnto ymages, shall not the conscience of him, whiche is weake, be boldened to eate those thinges, which are offred to ymages? And so throughe thy knowledge shall the weake brother perish, for whom D Christ died. When ye synne so against the scyence, ye synne agaynste Christ. Wher-

The ninth Chapter.

Loue forbeareth the thing that she maye doe by the law. He exhorteth them to runne on forth in the course that they haue begonne.

Am I not an Apostle? am A I not free? * haue I not Act.ix.a, seen Jesus Christe oure Lorde? Are ye not my worke in the Lorde? If I be not an Apostle vnto other, yet am I vnto you. For the seale of mine Apostleship are ye in the lorde. Mine aunswere to them that aske me, is this: Haue we not power
to

to eate and to drinke? Haue we not power to leade about a woman a syster, as well as other Apostles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas? Either only I & Barnabas haue not power this to doe?
Who goeth a warrefare any time at his own cost? Who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the frute therof? Or who fedeth a flocke and eateth not of the milke of the flocke? Say I these thinges after the maner of men? Sayeth not the law the same also? For it is written in the law B of Moses.* Thou shalt not moosell the Deu. xxv. b. mouth of the oxe that treadeth out the corne.
i. Timo. vi. c. Doth God take thought for oxen?
Saith he it not altogether for our sakes?
For our sakes no doubt this is wrytten:
that he which eareth, should eare in hope and y he which threscheth in hope, shoulde Ro. xv. f. be partaker of thys hope.* If we sow vn Gal. vi. b to you spiritual thinges, is it a great thig if we reape your bodily things? If other be partakers of thys power ouer you, wherfore are not we rather?
Act. xx. g Neuerthelesse* we haue not vsed thys power: but suffer al thinges, lest we shuld hinder the gospell of Christ. Do ye not know, how that they which minister about holy thinges liue of the Sacrifice?
They which wayt of the temple, are par-C takers of the temple? Euen so also did the Ma. x. b. Lord ordein: * that they which preache Act. xx. g the gospel, should liue of the gospel.* But i. The. ii. e. I haue vsed none of these things. Neuer ii. The. iii. b. thelesse I wrote not these thinges, that it should be so done vnto me. For it were better for me to dye, than that any man should take thys reioycing from me.

For if I preach the gospell, I haue nothing to reioyce of. For necessitie is put vnto me. But woe is it vnto me, if I preach not the gospell. If I do it with a good wil, I haue a rewarde. But if I doe it against my will, an office is committed vnto me. What is my rewarde then? Ve-rely that when I preache the gospell, I make the gospell of Christ free, that I misuse not mine aucthoritie in y gospell.
For though I be free fro al men, yet haue I made my selfe seruaunt vnto all men, Act. xvi. a that I might win the moe.* Unto the Gal. ii. a. Jewes, I became as a Jewe, to win the D Jewes. To them that were vnder the law, was I made as though I had bene vnder the law (when I was not vnder the law) to win them y were vnder the law. To them y were without law, became I as though I had bene without law (when I was not without law as perteining to God, but vnder the law of Christ) to win them that were without law: to y weake became I as weake, to win y weake. In all thinges * I fashioned my selfe to all i. Cor. x. g. men to saue at the least way some. And thys I do for the gospels sake, y I might haue my part therof.

*Perceiue ye not, how y they which run in a course, run all, but one receiueth the reward? So run, that ye may obtein.
Euery man that proueth masteries, absteineth from all thinges. And they do it to obteine a crowne that shall perishe: but we to obteine an * euerlasting crown. I i. Ti. iiii. b. therfore so run, not as at an vncertayne thing. So fight I, not as one y beateth i. Pe. v. b. the ayre: but I tame my body, and bryng it into subiection, least by any meanes it come to passe, that when I haue preached to other, I my selfe should be a castaway.

The tenth Chapter.

He feareth them with the ensamples of the olde Testament, and exhorteth them to a godly conuersation.

BRethren, I would not y A ye should be ignoraunt, how y our fathers were al vnder the cloude, & all passed through the Sea, Exo. xiii. d. and were al baptised vn- Ex. xiiii. der Moses* in the cloude and* in the Sea: and* did all eate of one Ex. xvi. c spiritual meate and* did al drynke of one Ex. xvii.

of that spiritual rocke that folowed them, Nu. xx. a which rocke was Christ. But in many Mat. xvi.

ouerthrowen in the wildernesse. e.

These are ensamples to vs* that we B should not lust after euill thynges, as they lusted. And that ye should not be worshippers of images, as were some of them, according as it is written. *The Exod.
people sat down to eate and drynke, and xxxii. d. rose vp to play. Neither let vs be defiled with fornication, as some of them wer

All these thinges happened vnto them C for ensamples: but are written to put vs in remembraunce, whō the endes of the worlde are come vpon. Wherfore, let hym he fall. There hath none other tēptatiō taken you, but such as foloweth the na-dearely beloued, fly from worshipping of images.

D I speake as vnto them which haue discretiō, iudge ye what I say. Is not the cup of blessing which we blesse, partaking of the bloud of Christ? Is not the bread which we breake, partaking of the body of Christ? Bicause that we (though we be many) yet are one bread, and one body, inasmuch as we all are partakers of one bread (and of one cup.) Behold Israel after ŷ flesh. Are not they which eate of the Sacrifice, partakers of the tēple?
E What say I then? *That the ymage is ai Cor.viii b ny thing? Or ŷ it which is offred to images, is any thing? Nay, but thys I say: ŷ the things which the Gentiles offer, they offer to deuils, and not to God.

✝I would not that ye should haue felowship with the deuils. Ye can not drink of the cup of the Lord, and of ŷ cup of de-uils. Ye can not be the partakers of the Lordes table, and of the table of deuils.
Either do we prouoke the Lord? Are we stronger than he? I may do al things but F things, but al things edify not. *Let no sake. But and if any man say vnto you his sake that she wed it, and for cōscience they might be saued.

The eleuenth Chapter.

He rebuketh them for the abuse and misorder that they had about the Sacrament of the body and bloud of Christ, and bringeth them agayne to the first institution.

BEe ye the folowers of me, A as I am the folower of Christ. I commende you brethren, that ye remember me in al thinges, and kepe ŷ ordinaunces, euen as I deliuered them to you. But I would haue you to know, that Christ is the head of euery man.
And ŷ man is ŷ * womās head: and God Gen.iii.b is Christes head: euery man praying or Eph.v.e. prophecying hauing any thing on his head shameth his head. Euery woman that prayeth or prophecieth bare headed, dishonesteth her head. For that is euen al one, as if she wer shauen. If the woman B be not couered, let her also be shoren. *If Deu.xxii a. it be shame for a woman to be shorne or shauen, let her couer her head.

A man ought not to couer hys head, forasmuch as he is the ymage and glory of God. But ŷ woman is the glory of the Gen.i.d.
man. For *the man is not of the woman but the woman of the man. Nether was the man created for the womans sake: but the woman for the mannes sake. For thys cause ought the woman to haue power on her head, for the Angels sakes.
Neuerthelesse, neither is the man without the woman, neither ŷ woman without the man in the Lord. For as the woman is of the man, euen so is the man by the woman: but al of God.

Iudge in your selues, whether it be C comly that a woman pray vnto GOD, bare headed. Doth not nature it selfe teach you, ŷ it is a shame for a man, if he haue lōg heare: and a prayse to a woman if she haue lōg heare? For her heare is geuen her to couer her withall. If any man lust to stryue, we haue no such custome, neither the congregations of God.

Thys I warne you of, and cōmende not, ŷ ye come not together after a better maner: but after a worse. For first of all when ye come together in the congregation,

D tion, I heare that there is dissention a-Mat.viij. a mong you:and I partly beleue it. For* there must be sectes among you,that they which are perfect among you, might be knowen.

to one place, the Lordes supper can not be eaten.For euery man beginneth afore to eate hys own supper: and one is hungry,and another is drunken.Haue ye not houses to eate and to drynke in?Despyse ye the congregation of God, and shame them that haue not?What shall I say vnto you?shall I prayse you?In thys praise I you not.

one body,though they be many , yet are Ep.iiii.b but one body, euen so is Christ. For by one spirit are we all Baptised , to make one body,whether we be Jewes or Gēhaue*all drunke of one spirit.For the body is not one member,but many. If the Esa.lv.a.

the body: is he therfore not of the body?
And if the eare say:I am not of the eye, I am not of the body: is he therfore not of the body?If al the body were an eye, where were then the eare?If al wer hearing,where where the smelling?But now hath God set the members euery one seuerally in ÿ body,as it hath pleased him.
If they were al one member, where wer the body?Now are there many mēbers, yet but one body.And the eye can not say vnto the hande I haue no nede of thee.
Again,the head can not say to the fete,I haue no nede of you. Yea, rather a great deale those mēbers of ÿ body which seme to be more feble,are necessary.And vpon those mēbers of ÿ body which we thynke least honest,put we more honesti on. And Hon our vngodly partes haue more bewty on. For our honest membres nede it not. But God hath so disposed the body, and hath geuen the more honor to that parte which lacked, least there shuld be any strife in the body: but ŷ the members shuld indifferently care one for another. And if one member suffer, all suffer with him: if one member be had in honor, all members be glad also.

Ye are the body of Christ, and mēbers one of another. And God hath also ordeined in the cōgregatiō, first * Apostles secōdarely Prophetes, thirdly teachers, thē them that do miracles: after that, the giftes of healing, helpers, gouernours, diuersitie of tonges.

Mat. x. a. Luc. xi. a. Ep. iiii. c.

Are all Apostles? Are all Prophetes? Are all teachers? Are all doers of miracles? Haue all the giftes of healing? Do all speake with tōges? Do all interprete? Couet after the best giftes. And yet shew I vnto you a more excellent way.

The. xiii. Chapter.

The natures and conditions of loue.

A Though I speake with the tōges of men and of Angels, and haue no loue, I am euen as sounding brasse: or as a tinkling cimball. And * though I could prophecy, and vnderstāde al secretes, & al knowledge: yea, if I haue all fayth, * so ŷ I could moue mountaynes out of their places, and yet haue no loue, I am nothig. And though I bestow al my goods to fede the poore, and though I geue my body euen that I burned, and yet haue no loue, it profiteth me nothing.

Mat. vii. c Lu. xiii. e Lu. xvii. a.

B Loue suffreth long, and is curteous. Loue enuieth not. Loue doth not frowardly, swelleth not, dealeth not dishonestly, * seketh not her own, is not prouoked to anger, thinketh no euill, reioyceth not in iniquitie, but reioyceth in the truthe, suffreth al things, beleueth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things, though that prophecyinges faile either tōges ceasse, or knowledge vanish away yet loue falleth neuer away.

i. Cor. x. f. Phi. ii. a.

C For our knowledge is vnperfecte, and our prophecying is vnperfect. But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is vnperfect, shalbe done away. When I was a childe, I spake as a child, I vnderstode as a childe, I ymagined as a childe. But assone as I was a man, I put away childishnesse. Now we see in a glasse, euen in a darke speaking: but then shal we se face to face. Now I know vnperfectly: but then shall I know euen as I am knowen. Now abideth faith, hope, and loue, euen these thre: but the chefe of these is loue.

The. xiiii. Chapter.

Paul sheweth that the gift of prophecy, interpreting or preaching, excelleth the gift of tonges, & how they both ought to be vsed.

A Labour for loue, and couet spirituall giftes: but most chiefely that ye may prophecy. For he ŷ speaketh with the tōg, speaketh not vnto men, but vnto God. For no man heareth him. Howbeit in the spirite he speaketh mysteries. But he that prophecyeth, speaketh vnto men for their edifying, for their exhortatiō, and for their cōfort. He that speaketh with the tōg, profiteth himselfe: * he that prophecieth, edifieth the cōgregatiō. * I would that ye all spake with tōges: but rather that ye prophecied. For greater is he that prophecieth, than he that speaketh with tōges, except he expounde it: that the cōgregation may haue edifying. Now brethren if I come vnto you speaking with tōges:

Rom. xii. b. Nu. xi. g.

B what shal I profite you, except I speake to you, either by reuelatiō, or by knowledge, or by prophecying, or by doctrine? Moreouer, when thinges without life geue sounde (whether it be a pipe or an harpe) except they make a distinctiō in the soundes, how shal it be knowen what is pyped or harped? For if the trumpe geue an vncertain voice, who shall prepare himselfe to the warre? Euen so likewise when ye speake with tōges, except ye speake wordes that haue significatiō, how shal it be vnderstāde what is spoken? For ye shall but speake in the ayre.

C Many kindes of voyces are in the world and none of them are without significatiō. If I know not what the voyce meaneth, I shalbe vnto hym that speaketh, an alient: and he that speaketh, shalbe an alient vnto me. Euen so ye (forasmuch as ye couet spirituall giftes) seke that ye may excell, vnto the edifying of ŷ congregation. Wherefore, let hym that speaketh with tōg pray, that he may interprete also. For if I pray wyth tōg, my spirite prayeth, but my vnderstanding doth no good. What is it then?

I wyl pray with the spirit, and will pray with the understanding and will sing with the spirit, and will sing with the understanding.

For els, when ẏ blessest with the spirit, how shal he that occupieth the roume of the unlearned, say Amen, at thy geuing of thankes, seing he understandeth not what thou sayest. Thou verely geuest thankes well, but the other is not edified. I thanke my God that I speake with tonges more than ye all. Yet had I leuer in the congregation, to speake fiue wordes with my understãding to the information of other, rather than ten. M. wordes with the tong.

D Brethren, be not ye children in wit. Howbeit, as cõcerning maliciousnesse be children: but in wit be perfect. In the law it is written* with sundry tonges, Esaye. xxviii.c. and with sũdry lippes will I speake unto this people, and yet for all that, will they not heare me sayth the Lord. Wherfore tonges are for a signe, not to them that beleue, but to them ẏ beleue not. Cõtrarywise, prophecying serueth not for them ẏ beleue not, but for thẽ which beleue. If therfore when al the congregatiõ is come together, and al speake wyth tõges, there come in they ẏ are unlearned, or they which beleue not: will they not say, ẏ ye are out of your wittes? But

D and if al prophecy, and there come in one that beleueth not, or one unlearned, he is rebuked of all men, and is iudged of euery man, and so are the secretes of his heart opened, and so falleth he down on his face, and worshippeth God and saith

E that God is in you of a truthe.

How is it then brethren? As oft as ye come together, euery one of you hath a song, hath a doctrine, hath a tong, hath a reuelatiõ, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done unto edyfying. If any man speake with tong, let it be by two or at the most by three, and ẏ by course, & let another interprete it. But if there be no interpreter, let him kepe silence in the cõgregation, and let him speake to himselfe and to God. Let the Prophetes

i. Joh. iiii a speake two, or three, and* let the other iudge. If any reuelatiõ be made to an other ẏ sitteth by, let ẏ first hold his peace. For ye may al prophecy one by one, that all may learne, and ẏ all may haue comfort. And the spirites of the Prophetes

Ro. xv.g. are in the power of the Prophetes. For God is not causer of strife, but of peace, as (I teache) in all congregatiõs of the Sainctes.

*Let your wemen kepe silence in the congregations. For it is not permitted unto thẽm to speake, but to be under obedience, as sayth the law. If they will learne any thīȝ, let them aske their husbandes at home. For it is a shame for wemen to speake in the congregation. i. Ti.ii.b. Gen.iii.c i. Cor.xi. a.

Sprõg the worde of God from you? Either came it unto you only? If any man think himself to be a Prophet, either spiritual: let him know what thinges I write unto you. For they are the commaundementes of the Lord. But and if any man be ignoraunt, let him be ignoraunt. Wherfore brethren, couet to prophecy, and forbid not to speake with tonges, let al thinges be done honestly and in order (among you.)

The.xv.Chapter.

The resurrection of the dead.

Brethren, as perteining A to the gospell which I preached unto you, which ye haue also accepted, & in the which ye continue by the which also ye are saued: I do you to wit, after what maner I preached unto you, if ye kepe it, except ye haue beleued in vain. For first of al I deliuered unto you that which I receiued: how that *Christ died for our sinnes, agreeing to ẏ Scriptures. And that he was buried, and that he arose again the third day according to the Scriptures: and that he was sene of Cephas, then of the twelue. After that was he sene of mo than fiue hũdred brethrẽ at once, of which many remaine unto this day, and many are fallen a slepe. After that appeared he to James, then to all the Apostles. Esa liii.b Mathew. xxviii.a. Joh.xx.a. Lu.xxiiii b.

And last of all he was sene of me, as of one that was borne out of due time. B

For I am the least of the Apostles, which am not worthy to be called an Apostle, bicause *I persecuted the cõgregatiõ of God. But by the grace of God I am that I am. And his grace which is in me, was not in vaine: but I laboured more aboundauntly than they all, yet not I, but the grace of God which is with me. Therfore whether it were I or they, so we preach, and so haue ye beleued. If Christ be preached how that he rose from the dead: how say some among you that there is no resurrection of the dead? If Act.viii.a. ix.a.& xxii a. & xxvi.b. Gala.ii.c there be no rising again of the dead, then is Christ not rysen again. If Christ be not rysen again, then is our preaching in vain, and your faith is also in vain. Yea and we are founde false witnesses of God.

For we haue testified of God, how yͭ he raysed vp Christ: whom he raised not vp, if it be so that the dead rise not again. For if the dead rise not again, then is Christe not risen again. If it be so that Christ rose not again, then is your faith in vain and ye are yet in your sinnes. Therefore they which are fallen a slepe in Christ ar C perished. If in this life only we beleue on Christ, then are we of al men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become * the first fruites of thẽ that slept. For by a man came death, and by a man came the resurrectiõ of yͤ dead.
For as by Adam al dye, euen so by Christ shal al be made alyue: but euery man in hys own order. + The first is Christ, then they that are Christes at hys comming.
Then commeth the ende, when he hath deliuered vp the kyngdom to god the father when he hath put down al rule, and D all authoritie and power. For he must are subdued vnto him, then shall the sonn also himselfe be subiect vnto him, that put all things vnder him, that God may be al in al. Els what do they which are baptised ouer the dead, if the dead ryse not at all. Why are they then baptised ouer thẽ?

Yea, and why stande we alway then in ieopardy? By our reioicing which I haue in Christ Jesu our Lord, I dye daily.
That I haue fought with beastes at Ephesus after the maner of men, what auauntageth it me if the dead rise not againe? * Let vs eate and drink, for to mo-E row we shall dye. Be not ye deceyued Esa. xxii. euil words corrupt good maners. Awake b truely out of slepe, and sin not. For some Sap. ii. b. haue not the knowledge of God: I speak this to your shame. But some man wil say: how arise the dead? with what body shal they come? Thou foole, * that which Joh. xii. d thou sowest is not quickned, except it die And what sowest thou? Thou sowest not the body that shalbe, but bare corne (as of whete, or of some other) but God geueth it a body at his pleasure, to euery sede his own body. + All flesh is not one maner of flesh: but there is one maner of flesh of men, another maner of flesh of beastes, another of fishes, and another of byrdes.
There are also celestial bodies, and there are bodies terrestrial. But the glory of the celestiall is one, and the glory of the terrestriall is another. There is one maner glory of the sunne, and another glory of the mone, and another glory of the starres. For one starre differeth from another in glory.

So is the resurrection of the dead. It is sowen in corruption, it riseth again in incorruption. It is sowen in dishonor, it riseth again in honor. It is sowen in weakenesse, it riseth again in power. It is sowen a naturall body, it riseth againe a spiritual body. There is a naturall body, and there is a spirituall body: as it is also written: The first man * Adam was Gen. ii. b. made a liuing soule, and the last Adam was made a quickning spirit. Howbe it, yͭ is not first which is spirituall: but yͭ which is naturall, and then that which is spirituall. + The first man is of the earth earthy: the seconde man is the Lord from heauen (heauenly.) As is the earthy, suche are they that are earth. And as is the heauenly, such are they that are heauenly, and as we haue borne the ymage of G the earthy, so shall we beare the ymage of the heauenly. This say I brethren, that flesh and bloud can not enherite the kingdom of God. Neither doth corruption enherite vncorruption. Beholde, I shew you a mystery. * We shall not all slepe: but * we shal al be chaunged, and that in a i. The. iiii moment, in the twinkeling of an eye by yͤ d. last trõpe. For the trõpe shall blow, and Phi. iii. d. the dead shall rise incorruptible, and we shalbe chaunged. For thys corruptible must put on incorruptiõ, and thys mortal must put on immortalitie. When this cor-ruptible hath put on incorruption, and this mortall hath put on immortalitie: thẽ shalbe brought to passe the saying that is written: * death is swalowed vp in victory: * death where is thy sting? Hell where Esa. xxv. c is thy victory? The sting of death is sinn: Ose. xiii. c and the strength of sinn is the law. But thãks be vnto God, which hath geuẽ vs * victori, through our Lord Jesus Christ John. v. a Therfore my deare brethrẽ, be ye stedfast and vnmoueable, alwaies rich in yͤ work of

of the Lord,forasmuch as ye know,how that your labour is not in vayne in the Lord.

The second Chapter.

He sheweth the cause of his absence, and exhorteth them to forgeue the man that was fallen, and to receiue him again with loue.

BUt I determined this in A my selfe that I would not come agaie to you in hea-uinesse. For if I make you sory, who is it that shuld make me glad, but which is made sory by me?
And I wrote this same vnto you, least if I came vnto you, I should take heaui-ought to reioyce. This cõfidence haue I towarde you all, ẏ my ioy, is the ioy of ought rather to forgeue him, and cõforte him, least ẏ same person shuld be swalo-wed vp with ouermuch heuinesse. Wherfore, I exhort you, that loue may haue strength ouer him. For this cause vere-ly did I write, that I might knowe the proofe of you, whether ye should be obedient in al things. To whom ye forgaue any thing, I forgeue also. For if I forgaue any thing, to whom I forgaue, for your sakes forgaue I it, in the sighte of Christ, least Satan shuld preuente vs.

For his thoughtes are not vnknowen Thankes be vnto God, which alwayes geueth vs the victory in Christ, and openeth the sauor of his knowledge by vs in euery place. For we are vnto God the

The fourth Chapter.

A true preacher is diligent,he corrupteth not the woorde of God,but ſeketh the honour of Chriſt:yea though it be with peril of his lyfe.

*Ps. xxx. b Ro. viii d whiche is momentany and lyght, prepareth an exceading and an eternal waight of glorye vnto vs, while we looke not on the thinges whiche are seen, but on the thinges, whiche are seen, are temporall: but thinges whiche are not seen, are eter-nall.

The fifth Chapter.

The rewarde for suffryng trouble.

A 2 Cor. iiij b FOr we knowe that if our * earthy mansion of thys dwelling were destroyed, we haue a buyldyng of God, an habitation not made with handes but eternal in heauen. For
* therfore sigh we desiring to bee clothed Ro. viii d with our mansion which is from heauen, so yet, if that we be found clothed and not
ii. Pe. i. c naked. For * we that are in this tabernacle, sigh and are greued because we would Apo. iii. d not be vnclothed, but would bee * clothed vppon, that mortalitye myght bee swa-lowed vp of life. He that hath ordeined vs for this thing, is GOD: * whiche verye Ro. viii. c 2 Cor i. d same hath geuen vnto vs the earnest of the spirite. Therefore, we are alway of B good chere, and knowe, that as long as we are at home in the bodye, we are absent from God. For we walke in faythe, not after outward appearaunce. Neuer-thelesse, we are of good comfort, and had leuer to be absente from the bodye and to be present with God. Wherefore, whither we be at home or from home, we endeuor oure selues, to please hym. * For we must Mat. xxv c. all appeare before the iudgemente seat of Ro xiiii. c Christ, that euery man maye receyue the workes of his body, accordyng to that he hath done, whither it be good or bad.
* Seyng then that we knowe how the C Lorde is to be feared, we fare faire with men. For we are knowen well ynoughe vnto God. I truste also that we are knowen in your consciences. For we prayse not our selues agayne vnto you, but geue you an occasion to reioyce of vs, that ye may haue somewhat against them, which reioyce in the face, and not in the hearte.
For if we be to feruente, to god are we to feruent. Or if we kepe measure, for youre cause kepe we measure.
For the loue of Christ constraineth vs because we thus iudge, that if one died for all, then were all dead, and * he dyed for all: that they whiche liue, should not i. The. v. c henceforth lyue vnto themselues, but vnto hym whiche dyed for them, and rose again.
Wherfore henceforth know we no man D after the fleshe. In so muche though we haue knowen Christ after the flesh, now yet henceforth know we him so no more.
Therfore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature. Olde thinges are passed away: behold, al things are become * new. Esa. xliii c Neuerthelesse, all thynges are of god, which hath * reconciled vs vnto himself Ap. xxi. a.

the office to preache the attonement. For Colo. i. c.
* God was in Christ, and made agremet Colo. ii. c betwene the world and himselfe, and imputed not theyr synnes vnto them: and hath cōmitted to vs the preachyng of the attonement. Now thē are we messāgers in the rowme of Christ euen as though god did beseche you through vs: So pray we you in Christes stede, that ye be recō-ciled vnto god: for * he made hym to be sin for vs, which knew no sin: that we by Esa. liii. b. his meanes should be that righteousnesse Ro. viii. a which before god is allowed.

¶ The sixth Chapter.

An exhortation to receiue the worde of God with thankefulnesse, and amendement of lyfe. The diligence of Paule in the ghospel, and how he warneth them to eschew the company of the heathen.

now is that day of saluation. Let vs geue

The seuenth Chapter.

He exhorteth them to receiue the promises of god thankfully. The Corinthians are commended for their obedience and loue towardes Paule.

A SEing that we haue suche promises (derely beloued) let vs clense oure selues frō al filthinesse of ȳ flesh & spirit, & grow vp to full holines with the feare of god, vnderstande vs. We haue hurt no mā, we haue corrupt no mā: we haue defrauded no man. I speake not this to condemne you, for I haue shewed you before, ȳ ye are in our hearts to dye & liue with you. I am very bold ouer you. I reioyce greatly in you. I am filled wyth comfort, & am exceding ioyous in all our tribulatiō. For when we were come into Act. xvi. c Macedonia * our flesh had no rest, but we wer troubled on euery side. Outwarde ii. Cor. i. a was fighting, inward was feare. Neuer-thelesse: * god ȳ comforteth the abiect, cō-forted vs by the comming of Titus. And not by his comming onely: but also by the consolation whiche we receiued of you: when he tolde vs your desier, your feruēt B mind for me: so that I reioyced the more.
For though I made you sory with a letter, I repent not, though I dyd repente.
For I perceiue that ȳ same Epistle made you sory, though it were but for a season.
But I now reioyce, not that ye were sory, but that ye so sorowed that ye repented.
For ye sorowed godly: so that in nothing ye were hurt by vs. For godly sorowe causeth repentaunce vnto saluation, not to be repented of: but worldly sorowe causeth death. Ec. xxx. c, C For beholde, what diligence this godly sorow that ye toke, hath wrought in you, yea it caused you to clere your selues, it caused indignatiō, it caused feare, it caused desier, it caused punishment. For in all thinges ye haue shewed your selues that ye were clere in that matter. Wherefore, though I wrote vnto you, I did it not for his cause that had done the hurt, neyther for his cause that was hurt: but that your good minde for vs might appeare among you in the sight of god.
Therefore we are comforted, because ye are comforted, yea, and excedingly the more ioyed we, for the ioye that Titus had: because his spirite was refreshed of you al. I am therfore not nowe ashamed though I boasted my selfe to him of you.
For as all thinges whiche we spake vnto you are true, euen so our boasting that I made vnto Titus is founde true. And his inward affection is more aboundante to-warde you, when he remembreth the obedience of you all, how with feare & trembling ye receiued him. I reioyce ȳ I may be bolde ouer you in all thinges.

The eight Chapter.

He putteth them in remembraunce to helpe the poore saintes at Jerusalem, accordyng as the Macedonians did.

A I Certify you brethren, of ȳ grace of God which was geuen in ȳ cōgregations of Macedonia, howe that the aboundance of their reioicing is, ȳ thei are tried with much tribulatiō.
And though they wer exceding poore, yet haue they geuen exceding richly, and that in singlenesse. For to their powers (I beare them recorde) yea and beyond their power, they wer willing of their own accorde, and prayed vs with great instaunce that we would receiue their benefite, and Acte. xi. d suffer them to be partakers with other * i. Cor. xvi a.

they did, not as we looked for: but gaue their owne selues first to the lord, and af- Ro. xv. f, could could not but desier Titus, to accōplish the same beneuolence among you also:

euen as he had begon.
B Now therfore as ye are rich in al parties, in faith, in word, in knowledge, in al feruentnesse, and in loue, whiche ye haue to vs; euen so se that ye be plenteous in this beneuolence also. This say I, not D commaundyng, but because of feruentnesse I doe allowe the vnfainednesse of youre loue towarde other men. For ye knowe ỹ liberalitie of our lord Jesus Christ, that Rom .x.a. though he was *riche, yet for youre sakes he became poore: that ye through his pouertie might be made riche.
And I geue counsel hereto. For this is expedient for you, which began not to doe onely, but also to will a yere a goe. Nowe therfore perfourme the thing which ye began to doe: that as there was in you a re-C dinesse to will, euen so ye may perfourme i Pe.iiii.c the dede *of that whiche ye haue. For *yf

It is not my minde that other bee sette at ease, and ye brought into cumbraunce, but ỹ ther be equalnesse now at this time and that your aboundaunce may succour their lacke: and that their aboundaunce maye supplie youre lacke: that there may be equalitie, agreyng to that whiche is Ex.xvi.d written: *He that had muche, had not the more aboundaunce: & he ỹ had a litle, had neuerthelesse. Thanks be vnto god which put the same good mynde for you in the heart of Titus, which accepted ỹ request: yea rather he was so well wyllyng, that of his owne accorde he came vnto you.
We haue sent with hym the brother, D whose laude is in the ghospel throughout al the congregations: and not that onely, but is also chosen of the congregations to be a felow with vs in our iourney, concerning this beneuolence that is ministred by vs vnto the praise of the same Lorde, and to stirre vp youre prompt minde. For this we escheue, that any man should rebuke vs in this plenteous distribution * Ro.xii.c. that is ministred by vs, (to the glory of the Lord) * make prouision for honest things: not onely in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men.
We haue sente with them a brother of ours, whome we haue oft tymes proued diligent in many thinges, but now muche more diligent. The great cōfidence which I haue in you, hath caused me this: to do partly for Titus sake, which is my felow, and helper as concernyng you: Partlye, because of other whiche are our brethren, and the messangers of the congregations and the glory of Christ. Wherefore shewe D ye vnto them the profe of youre loue, and of our boasting of you in the sight of the congregations. i.The .i. d

The ix. Chapter.

In this chapter dothe he the same that he dyd in the chapter goyng before: that is, he mouetħ them to helpe the poore brethren at Jerusalem.

wherof I boast my selfe vnto them of Macedonia that Achaia was prepared a yere agoe: & your ensample hath prouoked many. Ne-uerthelesse, yet haue I sent these brethren least our boastyng whiche I make of you, should be in vain, in this behalfe, that ye (as I haue sayde) maye prepare youre selues, lest peraduenture if they of Macedonia come with me, and fynde you vn-prepared, we (I will not say ye) should be ashamed in this matter of bosting. Wher- B fore I thought it necessary, to exhort the brethren, to come before hand vnto you, and to prepare your good blessing promised afore, that it might be ready, so that it be a blessing, and not a defraudyng.
*This yet I say: he which soweth litle, nesse, *that on all partes ye may be made riche into all synglenesse, whiche causeth through vs that thankes are geuen vnto D God.

For the office of this ministration, not onely supplieth the nede of the saintes, but also is aboundaunt herein, ỷ for this laudable ministring, thankes myght be geuen to god of many, which prayse god for the obedience of youre consentyng to the ghospel of Christ, and for your singlenesse in distributing to them, and to all men, & in their praiers for you whiche long after you, for the aboundaunt grace of God in you. Thankes be vnto God, for his vnspeakeable gift.

The tenth Chapter.

He toucheth the false Apostles, and defendeth his authoritie and callyng.

A I Paule my self beseche you by the mekenesse and softnesse of Christ, whiche when I am present among you, am of no reputation: but am bolde towarde you beyng absente. I beseche you that I nede not to be bolde, when I am present (with that same boldnesse, wherwith I am supposed to haue bene bold) against some, which repute vs as though we walked carnallye. For though we walk in ỷ flesh, yet do we not Eph.vi.c warre fleshly. *For the weapons of our warrefare, are not carnall thynges, but B thynges mightie in God, to caste downe strong holdes, wherwith we ouerthrow counselles, and euery hye thyng, that exalteth it selfe againste the knowledge of God: and bryng into captiuitie all ymagination to the obedience of Christ, and are ready to take vengeaunce on all disobedience, when your obedyence is fulfilled. Looke ye on thinges after the vtter appearaunce? If any man trust in himselfe, that he is Christes, let him consider thys again of himself, ỷ as he is Christes, euen so are we Christes. For thoughe I boaste C my self somwhat more of our authoritye (which the lord hath geuen vs, * to edifye ii. Corin. xiii.c & not to destroy you) it shal not be to my shame: least I should seme as thoughe I went about to make you afrayd with letters. For the Epistles (sayeth he) are sore and strong: but his bodilye presence is weake, and his speche rude. Let him that is such think on this wise: that as we are in wordes by letters whē we are absent, such are we in dedes, when we are preset.
D For we cannot finde in our heartes to make our selues of the noumber of them or to compare our selues to them, whiche prayse themselues. Neuerthelesse, whyle they measure themselues with thēselues, and compare themselues with thēselues, they vnderstand nought. But we wil not reioyce aboue measure: but accordyng to the measure of the rule, whiche God hath distributed vnto vs, a measure to reache euen vnto you. For we stretche not oure selues beyonde measure, as though we reached not vnto you. For euen to you also haue we come with ỷ ghospel of Christ and we boast not oure selues out of measure of other mens labours. yea, and we hope it will come to passe, that whē your faith is increased among you, we shall be magnified according to our mesure more largely, and that I shal preach the ghospell in those regions whiche are beyonde you, and not to boast of those thynges whiche by another mannes measure are prepared already. But let him ỷ reioyceth reioyce in the lord. For he ỷ praiseth hym self, is not allowed: but he whom the lord praiseth.

The eleuenth Chapter.

Paule (vnder sufferaunce) commendeth himself & defēdeth his authoritye against the false prophetes.

WOulde to God ye coulde haue suffred me a litle in A mi folishnes: yea ye do also forbear me. For I am gelous ouer you w godly gelousye. For I haue coupled you to one mā, ỷ ye should make your selues a chaste virgin to Christe. But I feare least it come to Gen.iii.a passe, ỷ as the serpent * begiled Eue thorow his subtiltye, euen so youre wyttes should be corrupt frō the singlenesse ỷ ye had toward Christ. For if he ỷ commeth preache another Iesus, than hym whom we preached: or yf ye receyue another spirite, than that which ye haue receiued, eyther another ghospel, thā that ye haue receiued, ye might right wel haue bene contente. For I suppose that I was not behinde the chiefe Apostles. But though I bee rude in speakyng, yet am I not so in knowledge.

Howbeit among you, we haue ben wel B knowen to the vtmost what we are in all thynges. Dyd I therin synne, because I submitted my selfe, that ye myght be exalted: and because I preached to you the ghospell of god free? I robbed other congregations, and toke wages of them to do you seruice. And when I was present Act.xx.g. with you, and had nede, * I was charge- ii.Cor.xii.b.

able

able to no man: for that whiche was lackyng unto me, the brethren whiche came from Macedonia, supplied: and in al thinges I kept my self so, that I shoulde not be chargeable to any man, and so wyll I kepe my selfe.

If the truth of Christ be in me, this reioyceing shall not be taken fro me in the regions of Achaia. Wherefore: because I loue you not: God knoweth: Neuerthelesse what I do, that will I doe, to cut away occasion from them, whiche desier occasion, that they might be founde lyke unto us, in that wherin they reioyce. For suche false Apostles, are deceitfull workers, and fashion themselues lyke unto the Apostles of Christ, and no meruaile: for Sathan himself is chaunged into the fashion of an aungel of light. Therfore it is no great thing thoughe his ministers fashion themselues, as though they were the ministers of righteousnes, whose end shall be according to their dedes. I say again, least any man thinke that I am foolishe: or els euen nowe take ye me as a foole, that I also maye boast my selfe a litle: That I speake, I speake not after the Lord, but as it wer foolishly, in this matter of bosting. Seing that manye reioyce after the flesh, I wil reioyce also.

For ye suffer foles gladly, seyng ye youre selues are wise. For ye suffer if a manne bring you into bondage, if a man deuour, if a man take, if a man exalte himself, if a man smite you on the face: I speake as concerning rebuke, as thoughe we had bene weake, (in this behalfe.)

Howbeit, wherin so euer any mā dare be bolde (I speake folishly) I dare be bold also. They are Hebrues, euen so am I. They are Israelites, euen so am I. They are the sede of Abraham, euen so am I. They are the ministers of Christ (I speak as a foole) I am more: in labors more aboundant: In stripes aboue measure: In prisō more plēteously: In death oft. Of ỹ Jewes .v. times receiued I euery time .xl stripes saue one. Thrice was I beaten with roddes. I was once stoned. I suffred thrice shipwracke. Night & day haue I bene in the depe sea. In iourneying often: in perils of waters: in perils of robbers: In ieopardies of mine own nation: in ieopardies among the heathen: in perils in the citie: in perils in wildernesse, in perils in the sea: in perils among false brethren: in labour and trauayle in watchinges often: in hunger and thirst: in fastinges often: in colde and naked nesse: beside the thinges whiche outwardly happen unto me, I am combred daily, and do care for all cōgregations. Who is weak and I am not weake: Who is offended, & I burne not: If I must nedes boaste, I will boaste of the thinges that concerne mine infirmities.

The twelfth Chapter.

Paule is taken up into the third heauen, and heareth wordes not to be spoken.

The God and father of our Lorde Jesus Christ, whiche is blessed for euer more, knoweth that I lie not. In the citie of Damasco, the gouernoure of the people under king Aretas, laid watch in the citie of the Damascenes, and woulde haue caught me: and at a windowe was I let downe in a basket through the wall, and so scaped I hys handes. Doubtlesse, it is not expediente for me to boaste: I wyll come to uysyons and reuelations of the Lorde. I knowe a man in Christ, aboue fourtene yeres ago (whither he wer in the body I cānot tell or whither he wer out of the body I cannot tell. God knoweth) how that he was taken up into ỹ third heauē. And I know thesame man (whither in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth) how that he was taken up into paradise, & heard secret wordes whiche no man cā utter. Of this man wil I boast, but of my selfe wil I not boast, except it be of myne infirmities: for though I would boast, I shall not be a foole, for I would saye the truth. Neuerthelesse, I spare you, least any man should thinke of me, aboue that whiche he seeth me to bee, or ỹ he heareth of me. And least I should be exalted out of measure, through the excellency of the reuelations, there was geuen unto me unquietnesse through the flesh, euen the messāger of Sathan to buffet me, bicause I shoulde not be exalted out of measure. For this thing besought I the lord thrice, that it might depart fro me. And he sayde unto me, my grace is sufficient for thee.

For my strength is made perfect thorowe weakenesse. Verye gladlye therefore wyll I reioyce of my weaknesse, that the strengthe of Christe maye dwell in me.

Therfore haue I delectation in infyrmities, in rebukes, in necessities, in persecutiōs & in anguishes for Christs sake: for when when I am weake, then am I strong. I am become a foole in bosting my selfe. Ye haue compelled me: for I oughte to haue i.Cor.xi.a bene commended of you. *For in nothing was I inferiour vnto the chief Apostles: though I be nothing, yet the tokens of an Apostle wer wrought among you, with all pacience, and signes and wonders, & mightie dedes. For what is it, wherein ye were inferiors vnto other congregations, excepte it be herein, that I was not D chargeable vnto you? Forgeue me thys wrong. Beholde, now the third time I am ready to come vnto you, and yet wyll I

I will very gladly bestowe, and wyll be bestowed for youre soules: thoughe the more I loue you, the lesse am I loued a-E gayne. But be it that I was not chargeable vnto you: neuerthelesse, when I was craftie, I tooke you with guyle. Did I pill you by any of them whom I sente vnto you? I desired Titus, and wyth hym I sente a brother. Dyd Titus de-fraude you of any thing? Walked we not in one spirite? Walked we not in like steps?
Againe, thinke ye that we excuse oure selues vnto you? We speake in Christe in the sight of God. But we doe al thynges (dearely beloued) for your edifying. For I feare least it come to passe, that if I come, I shall not fynde you suche as I woulde, and that I shall be founde vnto you, suche as ye would not. I feare, least Gala.v.d there be among you * debates, enuyings wrath, strifes, backbitinges, whisperings dy, and haue not repented of the vnclen-

But when they wer come, he withdrew and separated hymselfe frõ them, fearing them which were of the circumcisiõ. And the other Jewes dissembled as well as he: insomuche that Barnabas also was brought into their simulatiõ. But when I saw that they went not the right way after the truth of the gospel, I sayd vnto Peter before thẽ all: if thou being a Jewe, liuest after the maner of the Gentiles, and not as do þ Jewes why causest thou the Gentiles to liue as do the Jewes? For we which are *Jewes by nature, and not synners of þ Gentiles, know, that a man * is not iustified by the dedes of the law, but by the fayth of Jesus Christ: and we haue beleued on Jesus Christ, that we might be iustified by the fayth of Christ, and not by þ dedes of the law: bicause that by the dedes of the law, no flesh shalbe iustified.

Eph.v.a Ro.iiii.c

The thirde Chapter.

He rebuketh the vnstedfastnesse of the Galathians, shewing the vnperfectnesse of the law, and declareth neuerthelesse that it was not geuen for nought.

O Ye foolishe Galathians: who hath bewitched you that ye should not beleue the truthe? To whõ Jesus Christ was described before the eyes, and amõg you crucified. This only would I learne of you, whether ye receiued the spirit by the dedes of þ law, or by the preaching of the faith? Are ye such fooles that after ye haue begon in þ spirite, ye now ende in the flesh? So many things ye haue suffred in vaine, if it be also in vaine. A Moreouer, he that ministreth to you the spirit, and worketh miracles amõg you, doth he it through the dedes of the law, or by preaching of the faith? *Euẽ as Abraham beleued god, and it was ascribed to him for righteousnesse. Ye know therfore, that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham.

Gen.xv.b. Ro.iiii.a. Iam.ii.d

For the Scripture seing aforehande that God would iustifie the Heathen through faith, shewed before hande glad tidinges vnto Abraham, saying: *in thee shal al natiõs be blessed. So then, they which be of faith, are blessed with faithful Abraham. For as many as are of the dedes of the law, are subiect to the curse. For it is written * cursed be euery one, þ cõtinueth not in all thinges which are written in the boke of the law, to fulfill them. That no man is iustified by þ law in the sight of God it is euident.* For the iust shal liue by faith. before that faith came, we were kept vn-

The fourth Chapter.

A Paul sheweth that through Christ we be deliue-red from the law, and rebuketh the vnthankefulnesse of the Galathians.

AND I say, that the heire (as long as he is a child) differeth not from a ser-uaunt though he be Lord of al: but is vnder tutors and gouernours vntill the tyme that the father hath appointed. Euen so we also when we were children, were in bōdage vnder Luk.xx.b the ordinaunces of the world. But when Joh.iii b. the tyme was full come, God sent * his Ro.viii.a sonne, made of a woman, and made bond vnto the law, to redeme the which were bond vnto the law: ẏ we (through election) might receiue the inheritaunce ẏ belongeth vnto the natural sōnes. Bicause ye are sōnes * god hath set the spirit of his Ro.viii.c son into our heartes, crying: Abba father.
Wherfore now thou art not a seruaunt, but a sonne. If thou be a sonne thou art also an heire of God through Christ. i.Cor.viii a, Notwithstanding, when ye knew not God, ye did seruice vnto them * which by nature are no Gods. But now after that ye haue knowē God (yea rather are knowen of God) how is it ẏ ye turne againe Colo.ii.b vnto the weake and * beggerly ordinaūces whereunto againe ye desier a fresh to be in bondage? ye obserue dayes, and monethes, and times, and yeres. I am in B feare of you, least I haue bestowed on you labour in vaine.

Brethren I besech you, be ye as I am for I am as ye are. Ye haue not hurt me at all. Ye know, how through infirmitie of the flesh. I preached the gospel vnto you at the first. And my temptatiō which was in the flesh, ye despised not, neither abhorred: but receiued me as an Angell of God: euen as Christ Jesus. What is then your felicitie? For I beare you record, that if it had bene possible ye would haue plucked out your own eyes, & haue geuen them to me: am I therfore become your enemy, bicause I tell you the truthe They are gelous ouer you amisse. Yea they intende to exclude you, ẏ ye should be feruent to themward. It is good alwayes to be feruent in a good thing, and not onely when I am present with you.
My litle children (of whom I trauaile in birth againe, vntill Christ be fashioned in you) I would I were with you nowe, and could chaunge my voice: for I stand in a doubt of you. Tell me (ye that desier to be vnder the law) do ye not heare of the law?

*For it is written, that Abraham had Ge.xvi.a two sonnes * the one by a bonde mayde, Ge.xxi.a, * the other by a free woman. Yea and Heb.xi,a he which was borne of the bonde woman was borne after the flesh: but he which was of the free woman, was borne by pro mise. Which thinges are spoken by an allegory. For these are two testamentes, the one from the mount Sina, which gē-dreth vnto bondage, which is Agar, for mount Sina is Agar in Arabia, and bordreth vpon the citie, which is now called Jerusalem, and is in bondage with her D children. But * Jerusalem, which Apo.xxi.a is aboue, is free: which is the mother Esa.liiii. of vs all. For it is written: * reioyce a. thou barren, that bearest no children: breake

breake forth and cry, thou that trauailest not. For the desolate hath many mo children: than she the which hath an husbande.
Brethren, we are after Isaac the childrẽ of promise. But as then he yͭ was borne after the flesh, persecuted hym that was borne after the spirite: euen so is it now.
Neuerthelesse, what sayth yͤ Scripture?
*put away the bonde woman & her sõne.
Ge.xxi.b. For the sonne of the bonde woman, shall not be heire with the sõne of the free woman: so then brethren, we are not childrẽ of the bonde woman: but of the free woman. ☩

and beseche Sintiches, ẏ they be of one accord in ẏ lord. yea, & I besech thee faithfull yokefe-me in the ghospell, and with clement also Luk.x.c. & with other my labour felowes, whose Ap.xvii. names are in the boke of life.

b i.The.v. Reioyce in the lord alway, & agayn b I say reioyce. Let your softnesse be knowen unto all men. The Lorde is euen at hande. Be carefull for nothing: but in all praier and supplication, let your peticions B be manifest unto GOD with geuing of thankes. And the peace of God (whiche passeth all understanding) kepe your hartes and mindes through Christ Jesu.
Furthermore brethren, whatsoeuer thinges are true, whatsoeuer thinges are honest, whatsoeuer things are iust, whatsoeuer things are pure, whatsoeuer thin-ges are conuenient, whatsoeuer thinges are of honest report: if ther be any vertue, if ther be any praise (of learning) those same haue ye in your mind, which ye haue both learned and receiued, heard also and seen in me: those thinges doe, and the God of peace shalbe with you.
C I reioyce in the lord greatly, that now at the last your care is reuiued agayne for me, in that wherein ye were so carefull, but ye lacked oportunitie. I speake not because of necessitie: For I haue learned in whatsoeuer estate I am, therewith to i.Ti.vi.b be content. I know how to be lowe, and I knowe how to excede. Euery where & in all thynges I am instructed, both to be full and to bee hungrye: bothe to haue plentie and to suffer nede. I can doe all thinges through Christ, which strength-neth me. Notwithstanding ye haue well done, that ye bare part with me in my tribulation.
Ye of Philippos know also that in the beginning of the ghospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no congregation D bare part with me, as concerning geuyng and receiuing, but ye onely. For when I was in Thessalonica, ye sent once and afterwarde agayne unto my necessitie: not that I desier giftes: but I desier aboundant fruit on your part. Neuerthelesse, I receiued all, and haue plenty. I was euen filled after that I receyued of Epaphro-ditus the thinges whiche were sent from Ro.xii.a you, an odour of a swete smell, a sacri-He.xiii.c fice accepted and pleasaunt to God.
My god shall supply all your nede tho-row his glorious riches by Jesu Christe.
Unto God and oure father bee prayse for euermore. Amen. Salute all the saintes in Christ Jesu. The brethren which are with me, grete you. All the saintes salute you, most of all they which are of the Emperours housholde. The grace of our lord Jesu Christ be with you all. Amen.

The Epistle of the Apostle Sainte Paule to the Collossians.

The first Chapter.

He geueth thankes unto god for their faith, loue and hope: prayeth for their increase, and sheweth how we are the kingdom of god, obteined by Christ whiche is the head of the congregation.

Paule an Apostle of Jesu A Christe by the will of God, and brother Timotheus.
To the sainctes whiche are at Collossa, and brethren that beleue in Christ.
Grace bee unto you, and peace from God oure father, and from the lorde Je- Gal.i.a. su Christ. Eph.i.a.
We geue thankes to God the fa- Phi.i.a. ther of our Lorde Jesus Christ alwaies i.The.i.
for you in our praiers, For we haue heard Rom.i.b of youre faith in Christe Jesu, and of the Phil.i.a. loue whiche ye beare to al sainctes, for the Eph.i.b. hopes sake whiche is layed up in store for you in heauen: of which hope ye heard before by ẏ true word of ẏ ghospel, which is come unto you: euē as it is in all ẏ world and is fruitful (& groweth) as it is also a-mōg you, frō the day in ẏ which ye heard of it, and had experience in the grace of god through the truthe, as ye learned of Epaphra our dere felow seruaunt, whiche Col.iiii.c is for you a faithfull minister of Christe, which also declared unto us youre loue, which ye haue in the spirite.
For this cause we also, since the daye B we hearde of it, haue not ceased to praye Eph.i.c for you, and to desier, that ye myghte bee fulfilled with the knowledge of his wyll, in all wysedome and spirituall understanding, that ye might walke worthy of the Lorde, that in all thinges ye maye please beyng fruytfull in all good workes, Joh.xv.c and encreasing in the knowledge of god, strengthned with all might, through his glorious power, unto all patience & long suffering with ioyfulnesse, geuing thankes vnto the father, whiche hath made vs mete to be partakers of the inheritaunce of sain-tes in light. ✝ Whiche hath deliuered vs from the po-whom we haue redemption through his

i. Corin. bloud, euen the forgeuenesse of synnes, * iii.a. whiche is the ymage of the inuisible god, Heb.i.a. first begotten of all creatures. * For by him were all thinges created, that are in heauen, and that are in earth, visible and inuisible, whither they be maiesty or lordship, eyther rule or power. Al things wer created by him, and for him, and he is before all thinges, and by him all thynges haue their being.
Eph.i.d. And * he is the head of the bodye, euen and .v.e. of the congregation: he is the beginning i.Cor.xv and * first begotten of the dead, that in all thinges he myght haue the preemynence. For it pleased the father that in him Ro.iii.d. should all fulnesse dwel, and by hym to *
i. Cor.v reconcile al thing vnto himself, and to set at peace by him through the bloude of his crosse, both thinges in heauen, & thinges in earth.
And you * whiche were sometime farre

Eph.ii.a set in euill workes, hath he now yet reco-Col.iii.c. ciled in þ body of his flesh through death, to make you holy, and vnblameable, and without fault in his owne sight, yf ye cōtinue grounded and stablished in the faith, and be not moued away from the hope of the ghospell, whereof ye haue heard how that it is preached among all creatures which are vnder heauen, wherof I Paul D am made a minister.
i. Cor.i.a Nowe ioye I * in my sufferynges * for Ep.iii.b. you, and fulfyll that whiche is behynd of the passions of Christ in my fleshe, for his bodies sake, whiche is the congregation: wherof I am made a minister, accordyng to the ordinaunce of god: which ordinance was geuen me vnto youwarde, to fulfill Ep.iii.b. the word of god, that * mistery which hath Mat.xiii. bene hid since the world began, and since i. Cor.ii the beginning of generations: but now is c.
Eph.i.b. opened to his saintes, to whō god would make knowen what the glorious richesse of this mysterie is among the Gentyles, whiche richesse is Christ in you, the hope of glory, whom we preache, warning all men, and teaching all men in all wisdom to make all men perfect in Christ Jesu.
Wherein I also labour and striue, euen as farreforth as his strength worketh in me mightely.

The second Chapter.

What greate care Paule tooke for all congregations. He exhorteth them to bee stedfaste in Christe, to beware of false teachers and worldlye wisdome, and describeth the false Prophetes.

For I would that ye knew how A great care that I haue for you, and for them that are at Laodicia, and for as many as haue not seen my person in the fleshe, that their heartes might bee coumforted. when they are knit together in loue, and in all richesse of full vnderstanding, for to knowe the mysterie of GOD the father, and of Christe, in whome are hyd all the treasures of wisedome and knowledge. * Eph.v.a This I say, least any man should beguile you with entycing wordes. For though I be absente in the fleshe, yet am I wyth you in the spirite, ioying and beholdyng youre order, and youre stedfaste fayth in Christ.
As ye haue therefore receiued Christe B Jesu the Lord, euen so walke ye in hym: so that ye be rooted and built in him, and stablished through faith, as ye haue learned: and therin be plenteous with geuing thanks. ✝ * Beware least any man spoile you through Philosophie, and diceitfull Math vanitie after the tradition of men, and af- xxiiii.a. ter the ordinaunces of the world, and not Mar.xiii a after Christ. For in him dwelleth all the Lu.xxi.b fulnesse of the godhead bodily, and ye are Eph.v.b complete in him, whiche is the head of all rule and power, by whom also ye are * circumcised, with circumcision, whiche is Ro.ii.d, done without handes, forasmuche as ye Eph.ii.c haue put of the sinnefull body of the flesh Gal.ii.b. through the circumcision that is in Christ in that * ye are buried with hym through baptysme, in whom ye are also rysen a- Ro.vi.a, gaine through faith, that is wroughte by Gal.iii d the operation of God, whiche raysed hym from death.
* And ye when ye were dead through C sin, & through the vncircumcision of your Ro.v.a, fleshe, hath he quickened with hym, and Eph.ii.a hath forgeuen vs all our trespasses, and Colo.i.c hath putte oute the hande wrytyng that was against vs cōteined in the law written: and that hath he takē out of the waye Ge.iii.c, and hath fastned it to his crosse, and hath Luk.xi.c * spoiled rule and power, and hath made Joh.xii.a a shewe of them openly, and hath triumphed phed ouer them in his own person. ‡ Let no man therfore trouble your conscyence about meate & drinke, or for a piece of an holy daie, or of the newe moone, or of the He.viii.a Sabboth daies, * which are shadowes of and.x.a. things to come: but the body is in Christ.

D Let no man make you shoote at a wrong marke, by the humblenesse and holinesse of angels, in the thinges which he neuer sawe, beyng causelesse puft vp with his fleshlye minde, and holdeth not the head, whereof all the body by ioyntes and couples receiueth norishment, and is knit together, and encreaseth with the encrea-sing that commeth of God. Wherfore, if Ga.iiii.b ye be dead with Christ from the * ordy-naunces of the worlde, why as though ye yet liued in the world, are ye ledde with traditions: Touche not, taste not, handle not: whiche all perishe through the very abuse, after the commaundementes and doctrines of menne: whiche thinges outwardly haue the similitude of wisedom by superstition, and humblenesse of mynde & by hurting of the body, and in that they do the flesh no woorshippe vnto the nede therof.

The thirde Chapter. ✠

He putteth them in remembraunce of the spirituall resurrection, to laye aside all maner of corrupt liuyng, to be fruitfull in all godlinesse and vertue, and sheweth all degrees theyr duetye.

The first Epistle of S. Paule the Apostle to the Thessalonians.

For our ghospel came not vnto you by
* worde onely, but also by power, and by the holy ghost: and by muche certeinty as i.Cor.ii.a * ye know, after what maner we behaued our selues among you, for your sake. And i.The.ii.a ye became folowers of vs & of the Lorde, receiuing the worde with much affection with ioy of the holy ghost: so that ye were an ensample to all that beleue in Macedo- C nia and Achaia.

For from you sounded out the worde of the Lord, not in Macedonia and in Achaia onely: but youre faith also whiche ye haue vnto God, spred her selfe abrode in all quarters, so that it nedeth not vs to speake any thing at al. For they thēselues we had vnto you: and how ye tourned to and true God, & for to looke for his sonne

The second Chapter.

He putteth them in mynd of the godly conuersation, that he led among them (when he preached the ghospel vnto them,) thanketh God that they receyue his worde so fruitfully, and excuseth his absence.

A 1.The.i.d For ye youre selues (*brethzen) knowe of our entraunce in vnto you, howe that it was not in vaine,

Act. xvi.c fred before, & wer *shamfully entreated at Philippos (as ye know) then wer we bold in our God, to speake vnto you the ghospell of God, in *much striuing. For our exhorta Ac. xvii.b tion was not to bring you to errour, nor yet to vnclennesse, neither was it with guile, but as we wer allowed of god, that the ghospel should be committed vnto vs: Gala.i.b. euē so we speake, not as they that *please men, but God, whiche trieth our heartes.
Neither led we our conuersation at any B time with flattring wordes, as ye know: neither by occasion of couetousnesse. God Phil.i.a. *is recorde: neither soughte we prayse of men, neither of you, nor yet of any other, when we might haue bene in authoritye, as the Apostles of Christe: but we wer tē der among you, euē as a nourse cherisheth her childrē, so wer we affectioned toward you: our good wil was to haue dealt vnto you, not ẏ gospel of God only: but also our owne soules, because ye were deare vnto C vs.
Ye remember brethren our labour and trauayle. *For we laboured day & night, Act.xx.g. ii.The.iii b. i.Cor.iv.c because we would not be chargeable vn to any of you, and preached vnto you the ghospel of god. Ye are witnesses, and so is god, how holily and iustly, and vnblame ably we behaued our selues among you ẏ beleued, as ye knowe, howe that we bare suche affection vnto euery one of you, as a father doth vnto his childrē, exhortyng comforting, & besechyng you ẏ ye woulde walke worthy of God, whiche hath called you vnto his kingdom and glory.
For this cause thank we god also, with D out ceasing, because that when ye recey ued of vs the word (wherwith ye learned to know god) ye receiued it not as ẏ word of man: but euen as it was in dede, the worde of GOD, whiche worketh also in you that beleue. For ye brethrē became folowers of the congregations of GOD whiche in Iewry are in Christ Iesu: for ye haue suffred like thinges of your kins Iesus and theyr owne Prophetes, euen so haue they persecuted vs: and god they please not, and are contrarye to all men, and hinder vs that we shoulde not speake vnto the Gentiles, that they mighte bee saued, to fulfill their sinnes alwaie. For L u.xxi.b the wrathe of god is come on them, euen to the vtmost.

Forasmuche brethren as we are kepte haue knowledge of your faith, lest by som meanes the tempter hadde tempted you, what thankes can we recompence to god

The second Chapter.

He sheweth them that the day of the Lord shall the Lord) for bicause that God hath from the beginning chosen you to saluation,

He exhorteth to pray for all men. He will not i.Co.v.a of children she shalbe saued, if they contidiscretion.

The thirde Chapter.

What maner of man a Bishop or Priest oughte to be. The properties also required in a deacon or minister.

This is a true saying: If a man desire the office of a A bishop, he desireth an honest worke. A Bishoppe therfore must be blame-lesse, the husbande of one wife, diligent, sober, disdiscret: a keper of hospitalitie, apt to teach not geuen to ouermuch wine, no fighter not gredy of filthy lucre: but gentle, abhorring fighting, abhorring couetousnesse, one that ruleth wel his own house, one that hath children in subiection with all reuerence. For if a man can not rule his own house, how shal he care for the cõgregatiõ of God? He may not be a yõg scholer, lest he swel and fal into the iudgment of the euil speaker. He must also haue a good report of them which are wtout, least he fal into rebuke, and snare of B the euil speaker. Likewise must ye mini-Act.vi.a. sters be *honest, not double tonged, not geuen vnto much wine, neither gredy of filthy lucre: but holding the mystery of ye faith with a pure conscience. And let thẽ first be proued, and then let them minister, so that no mã be able to reproue thẽ.

Euen so must their wiues be honest, not euil speakers: but sober, and faithfull in al thinges. Let the deacons be the husbãdes of one wife, and such as rule their children wel, and their own housholdes.
Mat.xxv For * they that minister wel, get themsel-e ues a good degree, and great libertie in ye C faith which is in Christ Iesu. These thiges write I vnto thee, trusting to come shortly vnto thee: but and if I tary long, that then yu mayest yet haue knowledge, how thou oughtest to behaue thy selfe in the house of God, which is the cõgrega-tion of the liuing God, the pillar and grounde of truthe. And without dout John.i.b great is that mystery of Godlinesse: *god was shewed in the flesh, was iustified in the spirit, was sene among the Angels, was preached vnto the Gentiles, was beleued on in the world, and receiued yonger widdowes refuse: for when they haue begon to waxe wātō against Christ they wil mary, hauing damnatiō bicause they haue cast away their first faith. And also they learne to go from house to house

The second Epistle of the Apostle. S. Paule to Timothe.

The first Chapter.

Paul exhorteth Timothe to stedfastnesse and pacience in persecution, and to continue in the doctrine that he had taught him. A commendation of Onesiphorus.

A PAul, an Apostle of Jesu Christ, * by the will of God, according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesu. To Timothe hys beloued sonne. Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the father, and from Jesu Christ our Lord.

Act. xxii. a Rom. i. a. Phi. iii. a

I thanke God *whom I serue from mine elders with pure conscience, y without any ceasing. I make mention of thee in my prayers night & day, desyryng to se thee mindfull of thy teares: so that I am filled with ioy, whē I call to remēbraūce the vnfayned fayth that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy graundmother Loys, & in thy mother Eunica: and I am assured that it dwelleth in thee also. Wherfore I warne thee that thou stirre vp the gift of God which is in thee *by the putting on of my hands. * For God hath not geuen to vs the spirit of feare, but of power, and of loue, and of sobernesse. * Be not thou therfore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, neither be ashamed of me * which am hys prisoner: but suffer thou aduersitie with the gospel, according to y power of God, which *saued vs, and called vs with an holy calling, not according to our dedes, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was geuen vs through Christ Jesu (before the world began) but is now declared openly, by the appearing of our sauiour Jesu Christ, * which hath put away death, and hath brought life & immortalitie vnto light, through the gospel *wherunto I am appointed a preacher and Apostle, and a teacher of y Gentiles: for the which cause I also suffer these things. Neuerthelesse, I am not ashamed. For I know, and am sure, that he (in whom I haue put my trust) is able to kepe that which I haue committed to hys keping, against that day.

The second Chapter.

the workes of thy hands. Thou hast put i Co.xv.d al things in subiection vnder his fete. In that he put al thinges vnder hym, he left nothing that is not put vnder him. Ne-uerthelesse we se not yet al things subdued vnto him: but him that was made lesse than the angels, we se that it was Jesus, which is crouned with glory & honor, for the suffring of death: that he by the grace of god, should taste of death for all men.
For it became hym, for whom are all C thinges, and by whom are all thinges (after that he had brought many sōnes vnto glory) that he shoulde make the Lorde of their saluation perfect thorow afflictions.
For bothe he that sanctifyeth, and they whyche are sanctyfyed, are all of one.
For whyche causes sake he is not ashamed to call them brethren, saying: I wyl declare thy name vnto my *brethren, in Ps.xxii.d the myddes of the congregation wyll I Joh.xx.d prayse thee. And agayne, I wyll put my trust in hym.
And again, behold here am I, and the chyldren whom God hath geuen me. For as much then as y children are partakers

of fleshe and bloude, he also himselfe likewise tooke part with them, that (through death) he might expell him that had lordship ouer death, that is to saye, the deuyll: and that he might deliuer them, whiche through feare of death were all their life time subdued vnto bondage. For he in no place taketh on hym the aungels: but the sede of Abraham taketh he on him. Wher fore in all thynges it became hym to bee made like vnto his brethren, ẏ he myghte be mercyfull, and a faythfull hye priest in thinges concernyng god, for to purge the peoples sinnes. For in that it fortuned hymselfe to be tempted, he is able to succour them also that are tempted.

The thyrd Chapter.

He requireth vs to be obedient vnto the worde of Christ, which is more worthe than the Ceremoniall law of Moses. The punishment of such as wil nedes harden their heartes.

A THerfore holy brethrē partakers of the celestial calling, consider the embas-sador and hie priest of our profession, Christ Jesus, how ẏ he is faithful vnto him ẏ put him in the office euen as was Moses in al his house. For loke how much honor he (ẏ hath builded a house) hath more than the house it self: So much honor is he cōtited worthy of more than Moses. For euerye house is builded of som man. But he ẏ ordeyned al thinges is god. And Moses verely was faythfull in al his house, as a minister, to bear wit-nesse of those things which wer to be spoken afterward. But Christ as a son hath rule ouer the house, whose house are we, yf we holde faste the confydence and the Rom.v.a reioycyng of that hope vnto the ende.
B Wherefore (as the holy ghoste sayeth) to daye yf ye wyll heare his voice, harden not your heartes, as in the prouokyng, in the daie of temptation in the wildernesse, where youre fathers tempted me, proued me, and sawe my workes fortye yeare.
Wherfore I was greued with that generation, and said: They doe alway erre in their heartes: Thei verely haue not knowen my wayes, so that I sware in my wrathe: they shall not enter into my rest.
Take hede brethren, lest at any time ther be in any of you a froward heart, subiecte vnto vnbelife, that he should depart from the liuyng god: but exhort ye one another daily, while it is called to day: least any of you ware harde hearted through the de-ceitfulnes of sin. We are made partakers C of Christ, if we kepe sure (vnto the ende) ẏ beginning of the substaunce, so long as it is sayde: to daie if ye will heare his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the prouo-king: for som whē thei heard did prouoke, howbeit not al that came out of Egipt by Moses. But with whom was he displeased .xl. yeres? Was he not displeased wyth them that had sinned, whose carkases wer ouerthrowen in the deserte? To whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but vnto them that wer not obediente? And we see that they could not enter in, because of vnbeliefe.

The fourth Chapter.

The Sabboth or rest of the christen punishment of vnbeleuers: the nature of the worde of God.

LEt vs feare therfore, A least any of you (forsaking the promisse of enteryng into his reste) should seme at any time to haue bene disapoyn-ted. For vnto vs is it declared, as wel as vnto thē. But it profited not them, ẏ they heard the worde: because they whiche heard it, coupled it not with faith. For we whiche haue beleued, do enter into his rest, as he said: Euē as I haue sworne in my wrathe, they shall not enter into my rest. And ẏ spake he verely long after ẏ the workes wer made and ẏ foundation of ẏ world layd. For he spake in a certain place of ẏ seuenth day on this wise. *And god did rest the seuenth daye Gen.ii.a. frō al his workes. And in this place again B they shall not enter into my rest. Seyng therfore it foloweth, that som must enter therinto, & they (to whō it was first preached) entred not therin for vnbeliefs sake: he appointeth a certain day after so long a time, saying in Dauid (as it is rehersed) this day if ye wil heare his voice, harden not your hearts. For if Josua had geuen thē rest, thē would he not afterward haue spokē of another daye. There remayneth therfore yet a rest to ẏ people of god. For he ẏ is entred into his reste, hath ceased also frō his own works, as god did from his. Let vs study therfore to enter into ẏ rest, lest any man fal after the same ensā-ple of vnbelief. For the worde of God is quick and mightie in operation, and sharper than anye two edged sweard: and entreth through, euen vnto the deuidyng a- C sunder of the soule and the spirite, and of the ioyntes and the mary: and is a discerner

ner of the thoughtes, and of the intentes of the heart: neither is there any creature that is not manifest in ÿ sight of him: but al thynges are naked and open unto the eyes of him, of whom we speake. Seing thē that we haue a great hie priest whiche is entred into heauen (euen Jesus the son D of god) let us holde the profession (of oure hope.) For we haue not an hye Priest which cannot haue compassion on our in-Phi. ii. a. firmities, but as in al pointes tempted like as we are: but yet without sin. Let us therfore go boldly unto ÿ * seate of grace Ex. xxv. b that we may obtein mercy and find grace to help in time of nede.

¶ The fifth Chapter.

Christ is our hye priest and seat of grace, & more A excellent than the hie priestes of the olde law.

FOr euery hie priest that is taken from among mē, is ordeined for mē, in things Leu ix. b perteining to god, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sin: which can haue compassiō on the ygnoraunt, & on them that erre out of the way, forasmuch as he himselfe also is compassed with infirmitie. And for the same infirmities sake, he is bound to offer for sinnes, as well for hymselfe, as for the people. And no man taketh honour unto himselfe, but he that is called of God as was Aaron. Euen so Christ also glorified not himselfe, to be made the hie priest: but B he that sayd unto hym, *thou art my son, Psa. ii. b. this daye haue I begotten thee, glorified Ac. xiii. e. hym. As he sayth also in an other place: *
Heb. i. b. thou art a priest for euer after the order of Psa. cx. b Melchisedech. Which in the daies of his fleshe, when he had offred up praiers and supplications, with strong crying and teares (unto hym that was able to saue him from death) and was heard bicause of his reuerence: though he were the sonne C (of God) yet learned he obediēce, by those thinges whiche he suffered: and he beyng perfect was the cause of eternall saluation unto all them that obeyed hym, and is called of God an hie priest, after the order of Melchisedech. Whereof we woulde speake many thinges, but they are harde to be uttered: seyng ye are dul of hearing.
For when as concerning ÿ time ye ought to be teachers, yet haue ye nede agayne ÿ we teache you the firste principles of the worde of god: & are become suche as haue
i. Cor iii. a nede of milke, and not of strong meate. for euery man that is fed with milk, is in-expert in the word of righteousnesse: for he is but a babe. But strong meate belōgeth to them that are perfect, euen those which (by reason of use) haue their wittes exercised to discerne both good and euyll.

The sixth Chapter.

He goeth forth with the thyng that he beganne in the latter ende of the fifth chapter, and exhorteth them not to faint: but to be stedfast and patient, for somuche as god is sure in his promisse.

THerfore leauing the doctrine that pertaineth to ÿ A beginning of christen mē let us go forth unto perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentaunce from dead works, and of faith toward God, of baptysinges of doctrine, and of laying on of handes, & of resurrection from death, and of eternal iudgement. And so will we doe, * yf God Act. iiii. b permit. For it cannot be that they whiche & vi. i. e were once lighted, and haue tasted of the heauenly gift, & were become partakers of the holy ghost, and haue tasted of the good word of god, and of the power of ÿ world to come: * If they fall awaye (and as con- Mat. xii.

thei should be renued again by repētance. Heb. x. b For the earth which drinketh in ÿ rain B that commeth oft uppon it, and bryngeth forth herbes mete for them that dresse it, receyueth blessing of GOD. But that grounde whiche beareth thornes and briers, is reproued, and is nye unto cur-syng: whose ende is to be burned: Neuer-thelesse (dere frendes) we trust to see better of you, and thynges whiche accompanye saluation, though we thus speake.
For God is not unryghteouse, that he C should forgette your worke and laboure Mat. xxv that proceedeth of loue: whiche loue ye c shew in his name, whiche haue ministred unto the saincts, & yet minister. Yea, & we desier that euery one of you shew the same dyligence to the full stablishyng of hope, euen unto the ende that ye faint not, but be folowers of them, which through faith and patience, receiue the inheritaunce of the promisse. For whē god made promisse to Abraham, because he had none greater to sweare by *he sware by himself, saying: Surely I will blesse thee, and multiplye thee in dede. And so after that he had ta- Ge. xii. c ried patiently,he enioyed the promisse.

D For men verely sweare by him that is Ex.xxij.c greater than themselues, and * an othe to confirme the thyng,is to them an ende of all strife.So God willing very aboundauntly to shewe vnto the heyres of promisse,ẏ stablenesse of his counsell added an othe:that by two immutable thinges, (in whiche it was vnpossible ẏ god should lye)we myght haue a strong consolation whiche hitherto haue fled,for to hold fast the hope that is set before vs:which hope we hold as an anker of ẏ soule,both sure and stedfast,whiche hope also entreth in, into those thinges whiche are within the vaile,where the forerunner is for vs en-He.viij.a tred, euen Jesus. that is made an * hye priest for euer after the order of Melchisedech.

The seuenth Chapter.

He compareth the Priesthode of Christe vnto Melchisedech,but to be farre more excellent.

A This Melchisedech kyng Ge.xiiii. of * Salem(which beyng priest of the most hie god, met Abrahā,as he returned again frō the slaughter of the kinges & blessed him: to whō also Abrahā gaue tithes of all thinges)firste is called by interpretation,king of righteousnesse: after ẏ king of Salem(ẏ is to say,king of peace)without father, without mother, without kynne, and hath neyther beginnyng of dayes, neyther yet ende of lyfe: but is likened vnto the sonne of GOD, and continueth a prieste for euer.Consy-der what a man this was:vnto whom also the Patriarch Abraham gaue tythes Nu.xviij of the spoyles. And verelye * those chyl-b. dren of Leui,whiche receiue the office of Pa.xxvi the Priestes, haue a commaundement to
b. take(accordyng to the lawe)tythes of the people:that is to saye, of theyr brethren, yea though they sprong out of the loynes of Abraham. But he whose kinred is not B counted among them, receyued tythes of Abraham , and blessed hym that had the promises.And no man denyeth, but that he whiche is lesse, receyueth blessyng of him whiche is greater.And here men that dye,receiue tythes. But there he receyueth tythes, of whom it is witnessed,that he liueth,And to say ẏ truthe,Leuy hymselfe also whiche vseth to receyue tythes, payed tythes in Abraham . For he was yet in ẏ loynes of his father when Melchisedech met Abraham.

*If now therfore perfection came by ẏ priesthode of the Leuites(for vnder that Rom.ii.c priesthode the people receiued the lawe) Ga.iii.c. what neded it furthermore,that an other priest should rise to be called after the order of Melchisedech,& not after the order of Aaron:For if the priesthode be translated, then of necessitye muste the lawe be trāslated also.For he of whō these things are spokē,pertaineth vnto an other tribe of whom neuer man serued at the altare.
For it is euidente that our Lorde sprong of the trybe of Juda, of whiche tribe spake Moses nothing concerning priest- Mat.i.a. hode.And it is yet a more euident thyng, C if after the symplytude of Melchisidech there arise another prieste,whiche is not made after the lawe of the carnall commaundement, but after the power of the endlesse life.(For after this maner doeth he testify, thou art a priest for euer, af- Psa.cx b ter the order of Melchisedech.)Then the He.iiii.c commaundement that went afore,is dis-anulled,because of weaknes & vnprofitablenesse.For*ẏ law brought nothyng to Ro.viij.b perfection,but was an introduction to a Gal.iii.c better hope,by the which we drawe nie vnto god.And therefore is it a better hope, because the thyng was not done without an othe. For those Priestes were made without an othe,but this priest wt an oth, by hym that sayde vnto hym:*The lorde sware,and wyll not repent:Thou arte a Psa.cx.a priest for euer after the order of Melchysedech. And for that cause was Jesus a stablisher of a better testament.

And among them manye were made priestes,because they were not suffred to endure by the reason of death. But thys man,because he endureth euer,hathe an euerlasting priesthode. Wherefore he is able also euer to saue them to the vttermost,ẏ come vnto god by him,seyng he e-uer liueth * to make intercession for vs. I.Ti.ii.a I Joh.ii.a
For suche an hye priest it became vs to D haue,whiche is holy,harmelesse,vndefy-led,seperate from sinners,made hier than heauen.Whiche nedeth not daily,as ponder hie priests,* to offer vp sacrifice:first Leu.ix.b of his owne sinnes,and then for the peoples sinnes.For that did he once when he offred vp himselfe.*For the lawe maketh Heb.v.a. men priestes,which haue infirmitye, but the worde of the othe that came since the law,maketh the sonne priest,which is perfect for euermore.

¶ The eight Chapter.

The office of Christe is more worthye than the priestes office of the lawe, which was unperfect and therfore abrogate.

A Of the thinges which we Heb.vi.d haue spoken, this is the and.x.c. pithe: * y we haue such an hie priest as sitteth on the right hande of the seat of maiestie in heauen: and is a minister of holy things and of the true tabernacle, whiche God pight and not man. For euery hye prieste is ordeined to offer giftes and sacrifyces: wherfore it is of necessitie, that this man haue somewhat also to offer. For he were not a priest, if he wer on the earth where are priestes, y accordyng to the lawe offer gyftes, which serue unto the ensample & Colo.ii.c *shadowe of heauenly thinges: euen as Heb.x.a. the answer of God was geuen unto Moses, when he was about to finish y taber-Ex.xxv.d nacle. *Take hede (saide he) y thou make Acte.vii.f all thinges according to the Patrone B whiche is shewed to thee in the mounte.
But nowe hath he obtained a priesthode so much the more excellent, as he is y mediatour of a better testament, which was confirmed in better promises. For if that firste testament had bene suche, that no fault coulde haue been founde in it, then shoulde no place haue bene sought for the Ie.xxxi.f seconde. For in rebukyng them, he sayeth unto them: *Beholde the daies com (saith the Lorde) and I wyll finishe uppon the house of Israel, & upon the house of Iu-da, a newe testamente: not lyke the testa-mente that I made with their fathers in that day, when I toke them by y handes, to leade them out of the lande of Egipte.
For they continued not in my testament, and I regarded them not, saith the lord.
C For this is the testament, that I will make with y house of Israell: After those dayes (sayeth the Lorde) I wyl putte my lawes in their mindes, & in their heartes I wil write them, and I wil be their god and they shal be my people. And they shal not teache euery man his neighbour, and euery man his brother, saying: know the Lord: For they shall knowe me, from the least to the most of them. For I will be merciful ouer their unrighteousnesse, and their sinnes and their iniquities wyll I think upon no more. In y he saith a newe testamēt, he hath worne out the olde. For that which is worne out and waxed olde, is ready to vanish away.

The ninth Chapter.

The preastes and holynesse of the olde testament, and howe farre the newe excelleth it.

The olde testamente then A had verely ordinaunces, and seruinges of God, & worldly holinesse. For * Ex.xxv.b there was a fore tabernacle made, wherein was y light, and the table, and y shewe bread which is called holy. But within the seconde vayle, there was a tabernacle, whiche is called holiest of all, whiche had the golden senser, and the arke of the testament ouerlayed rounde about with golde, wherein was the golden pot with * Manna, and Aarons rodde that B sprong, and * the tables of the testament. Ex.xvi.g Nu.xvii.a Ouer the arke wer the Cherubins of glo- Exo.xl.c. ry, shadowyng the seate of grace. Of whiche thynges we cannot nowe speake particularly. When these thynges were thus ordeined, the priestes went alwayes into the first tabernacle, whiche executed the seruice of y holy thinges. But into the second went the hie priest alone * once e- Ex.xxx.b uery yere: not without bloude * whiche he Le.xvi.b. offred for himself, and for the ignorances C of the people. Wherewith the holy ghoste this signified, that the way of holy things was not yet opened, while as yet the first tabernacle was standing. Whiche was a similitude for the tyme then presente, in whiche were offred giftes and sacrifyces, that coulde not make the minister perfect as perteining to the conscience, with only meates and drinkes, and diuerse washynges and iustifyinges of the flesh, which were ordeyned untyll the tyme of reformation.
But * * Christ beyng an hye priest of Heb.vi.d good thynges to come, came by a greater &.viii.a. and more perfecte tabernacle, not made with handes: that is to saye, not of this building, neither by the bloude of goates and calues: but * by his owne bloude he entred in once into the holy place, & found i.Pet.i.b eternall redemtion. D
For * if the bloude of oxen & of goates, Le.xvi.c. and the ashes of a yong Cowe, when it was sprinkled, puryfyeth the uncleane, as touching the puryfying of the fleshe: how much more shal the bloud of Christe (whiche through the eternal spirit, offred hymselfe without spotte to God) pourge your conscience from dead workes, for to serue

i.Ti.ii.a. serue the liuing god: And for this cause is he the * mediatour of the new testament, that through death, whiche chaunced for the redemption of those transgressyons y wer vnder the first testament, they which are called, mighte receiue the promisse of C eternall enheritaunce. ▸ For * where is a testament, ther must also (of necessitie) be the death of him that maketh the testament. For the testament taketh authoritie when men are dead: for it is yet of no value, as long as he y ma-keth the testamente is alyue, for whiche cause also, neither the first testament was ordeined without bloude. For when Moses had declared all the commaundement to all the people accordyng to the lawe, he toke the bloud of calues and of goates, with water and purple wolle and ysope, & sprinckled both the boke and all the people, saying: * this is the bloud of the testa-Ex.xxiiii.b. ment, which god hath appointed vnto you.
Moreouer, he sprinckled the tabernacle with bloud also, & all the ministryng vessels. And almost al thinges are by y lawe purged with bloud, and without shedyng of bloud is no remission.
It is nede then, that the similitudes of heauenly thynges bee purified with such thynges: but that the heauenly thynges themselues bee puryfyed with better sa-Acte.vii.f and.xvii.f crifyces, than are those. * For Christe is not entred into the holye places that are made with handes (which are similitudes of true thinges:) but is entred into very heauen, for * to appeare now in the sight i.Joh.ii.a of GOD for vs: not to offer hym selfe Le.xvi.g. often * as the hye Priest entreth into the holy place euery yere with strange bloude for then must he haue often suffred since the world began. But now in the ende of world, hath he appeared once to put sinne to flight by the offeryng vp of hymselfe.
And as it is appointed vnto all men that they shall once dye, and then commeth the iudgement: * euen so Christe was once Rom.v.b offered to take awaye the synnes of mai.Pe.iii.d ny, and vnto them that looke for him shal he appeare agayne withoute sinne vnto saluation. ▸

The tenth Chapter.

The olde lawe had no power to clense awaye synne, but Christe dyd it with offeryng of his body once for all. An exhortation to receyue this goodnesse of God thankefully with patience and stedfast faith.

For the law (hauing the * A shadow of good things Colo.ii.c to come, and not the very He.viii.a fashion of the thynges themselues) can neuer w those sacrifices which thei offer yere by yere continually, make the commers therunto perfect.
For would not then those sacrifices haue ceased to haue bene offred, because that y offerers once purged, should haue had no more conscience of sinnes: Neuerthelesse, in those sacrifices, is there mention made of synnes euery yere. * For the bloude of Leu.xvi.e oxen and of goates cannot take awaye sinnes.
Wherefore, when he commeth into the world, he sayeth: * Sacrifice and offryng Psa.xl.b. thou wouldest not haue: but a bodye hast B thou ordeined me. Burnt offeringes also for syn hast thou not allowed. Then sayd I: lo, I am here. In the begynning of the boke it is written of me, that I should do thy wyll, O god. Aboue, when he sayeth: sacrifice and offeryng, and burnt sacrifyces, and synne offerynges thou wouldest not haue, neither hast thou allowed them (whiche yet are offered by the lawe) then sayd he: Loe, I am here to doe thy wyl O God, he taketh away the first to stablishe the latter, by whiche wil we are made holy, euen by the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. And euery Priest is ready dayly ministryng and offeryng often tymes one maner of oblation, whiche can neuer take awaye synnes. But this manne after he hath offered one sa- C crifyce for synnes, is sette downe for euer * on the ryghte hande of God, and from Ephe.i.d hencefoorth taryeth tyl hys foes be made Col.iii.a. his footestoole. For with one offeryng Hebr.i.a. hath he made perfect for euer them that and.xii.a are sanctifyed. The holy ghoste hym selfe also beareth vs recorde, euen when he tolde before: This is the testamente that I will make vnto them: after those daies (sayeth the Lorde) I wyll put my lawes in their heartes and in their mindes wyll I write them, and theyr synnes and in-iquities wyll I remember no more. And where remission of these thynges is, ther is no more offeryng for synne.
Seyng therefore brethren, that by the D meanes of the bloude of Jesu * we haue John x.a libertie to enter into the holy place, by the xiiii.a. newe and liuing way whiche he hath pre- Rom.v.a pared for vs, through the vaile (that is to He.ix.g. say by his fleshe:) And seyng also that we
haue

haue an hie Priest which is ruler ouer ẏ house of God, let vs drawe nie with a true heart, in a sure faith, sprinkled in our heartes, and the euil cōscience put away, and washed in our bodies with pure water: let vs kepe the profession of our hope without wauering (for he is faithful that promised) and let vs cōsider one another to the intēt ẏ we may prouoke vnto loue and to good workes, not forsaking the felowship that we haue amōg our selues, as the maner of some is: but let vs exhort one another, and so much the more, bi-cause ye see that the day draweth nye. *
E For if we sinne wilfully after ẏ we haue received the knowledge of the truthe, Mat.xii.d there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin-nes, but a fearful loking for iudgement, He.vi.a. and violent fier, which shal deuour ẏ ad-2.Pe.ii.d uersaries. He that despiseth Moses law, dieth without mercy *vnder two or thre De.xix.d witnesses: how much sorer (suppose ye) Math xviii.c shal he be punished which treadeth vnder fote the sonne of God: and counteth

The eleuenth Chapter.

What faith is, and a commendatiō of the same.
The stedfast beleefe of the fathers in olde time.

Faith is a sure confidence A of thinges, which are hoped for, and a certaintie of thinges which are not sene. For by it the elders obteined a good report.
Through faith we vnderstande that the *world was ordeined Gen.i.a. by the word of God, and ẏ thinges which are sene, were made of thinges * which were not sene.

*By faith Abell offred vnto God a Ac.xiii.c. more plenteous sacrifice than Cain by Rom.i.c which he obteined witnesse that he was Ge.iiii.a righteous, God testifying of hys gyftes: by which also he beig dead, yet speaketh.
By faith was * Enoch translated, that Gen.v.g he should not see death, neither was he founde: for god had taken hym away. For Ec.xliiii b afore he was taken away, he obteined a good report, that he pleased God: but without faith it can not be that any man should please him. For he that commeth to God, must beleue that god is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seke hym.

By fayth * Noe being warned of god B eschued the thinges which wer as yet not Ge.vi.d sene, and prepared the Arke to the sauing of his housholde, through the which Arke he *condemned the world, and be- Mat.xii. came heire of the righteousnesse which is according to faith. By faith * Abraham Ge.xi.a when he was called obeyed to go out in- Act.vii.a to a place, which he should afterward receiue to inheritaunce: and he went out not knowing whither he should go.

By faith he remoued into the lande of promise, as into a straunge country, whē he had dwelt in tabernacles: & so did Isaac and Iacob, heires with him of the same promise. For he loked for a citie hauing a foundation, whose builder and maker is God.

* Through fayth Sara also receiued C strength to conceiue and be with chylde, Ge.xxi.a and was deliuered of a child whē she was past age, bicause she iudged hym faithfull which had promised. And therfore sprang therof one (euen of one which was as good as dead) * so many in multitude as Ge.xv.a. are the starres in the skye, & as the sand the which is by ẏ sea shore innumerable.
These al dyed according to fayth, when they had not receiued the promises, but Jo.viii g saw them a far of, and beleued them, and Ge.xlvii b. saluted them, and confessed, * that they were straungers and pilgrymes on the had ben mindful of the countrey, from whence they came out, they had leasure to haue returned again: but now they desired a better (that is to say) an heauenly.

Exo.iii.f Wherfore God himselfe is not ashamed * to be called their God, for he hath prepared for them a citie.
B * By faith Abraham offered vp Isaac Ge.xxii.c when he was proued, and he offred hym Ec.xliiii.c. being his only begotten sonne, in whom he had receiued the promises.
And to hym it was sayd, in Isaac shal thy sede be called: for he considered, that God was able to raise vp againe from death. Therfore receiued he him also for an ensample of the resurrection.
Ge.xxvii d. * By faith did Isaac blesse Jacob and Esau, concerning things to come.
* By fayth Jacob, when he was in dy-Ge.xlix c ing, blessed both the sones of Joseph, and bowed himself toward y top of hys scepter. By * faith Joseph when he died, re-Gen.l.d. membred the departing of the children of E Israel, and gaue commaundemet of his bones. * By fayth Moses when he was Exo.ii.a borne, was hid thre monethes of hys Act.vii a father and mother: bicause they saw he was a proper child, neither feared they y kinges commaundement.
Exo.ii.b * By faith Moses when he was great, refused to be called the sone of Pharaos daughter, and chose rather to suffer ad-uersitie with the people of god, than to enioy the pleasures of sinne for a season: and estemed the rebuke of Christ, greater ri-Exo.xii.f ches than the treasures of Egipt. For he had respect vnto the reward. * By fayth he forsoke Egipt, and feared not the fearcenesse of the king. For he endured, euen as though he had sene hym which is inuisible.
F * Through faith he ordeined y passe-

The twelfth Chapter.

An exhortation to be patiét and stedfast in trouble and aduersitie, vpo hope of euerlasting reward.
A commendation of the new testament aboue the olde.

Wherfore, let vs also (seing A that we are compassed w so great a multitude of witnesses) * lay away al y Ep.iiii.a presseth down, & the sinn Col.iii.a that hageth so fast on: let 1.Pe.ii.a vs run with patience vnto the battail y is set before vs, loking vnto Jesus the captain and finisher of our faith, which (for the ioy y was set before him) abode y crosse and despised y shame, and is set down * on the right hand of the throne of God. Consider therfore, how Ephe.i.d that he endured such speaking against hi Col.iii.a of sinners, least ye shuld be weried, and Hebr.i.a faint in your mindes. For ye haue not yet and.x.c. resisted vnto bloud, striuing against sinn.
And haue forgotten y exhortation, which speaketh vnto you as vnto children: my sonne, despise not thou the chastening of the Lord, neither faint when thou art rebuked of him: for whom the Lord loueth hym he chasteneth: yea, he scourgeth eue-ry sonne that he receiueth.
If ye endure chastening, God offereth

B himselfe unto you as unto sonnes. What sonne is he whom the father chasteneth not? If ye be not under correction, wherof al are partakers, then are ye bastardes and not sonnes. Therfore seing we haue had fathers of our flesh, which corrected us, and we gaue them reuerence: shal we not much rather be in subiection unto the fathers of spirites, and liue?

And they verely for a few dayes, nurtred us after their own pleasure: but he nurtreth us for our profit, to the intent that he may minister of his holinesse unto us. No maner chastesing for the present tyme semeth to be ioyous, but greuous neuerthelesse afterwarde, it bringeth the quiet fruite of righteousnesse, unto them which are exercised therin.

C Esa. xxxv a. Stretch forth therefore the handes which were let down, and the weake knees, and see that ye haue straight steps unto your fete, least any halting turne you out of the way: yea, let it rather be healed. Folow peace with al men, and holinesse: without the which no man shal se the Lord.

And loke that no man be destitute of the grace of God, least any rote of bitternesse spring up and trouble, and thereby many be defiled: that there be no fornicator, or uncleane person, as Esau * which Ge. xxv. d for one measse of meate solde hys byrthright. For ye know how that afterwarde when he would by inheritaunce haue obteined blessing, he was put by. For he found Ge. xxvii b no place of repentaunce, though * he sought it with teares.

D Ex. xix. b. For ye are not come unto the mount that is touched, and unto burnyng fyer, nor unto storme and darkenesse, and tempestes of wether, and sounde of a trompe and the voyce of wordes, which * voice Exo. xx. c. they (that heard it) wished away, that the communication should not be spoken to them. For they could not abyde ÿ which Ex. xix. b. was commaunded. * If a beast touche the mountaine it shalbe stoned, or thrust through with a dart: so terrible was the sight which appeared. Moses sayd: I feare and quake: but ye are come unto ÿ mount Sion, and to the citie of the lyuing God, the celestial Ierusalem, and to an innumerable sight of Angels, and unto the congregation of the first borne sonnes, which are written in heauen, and to God, the iudge of all, and to the spirites of iust and perfect men, and to Iesus the mediator of the new Testament, and to the * sprinkling of blood that speaketh better than the blood of Abel. Se that ye despise not hym, that speaketh. For if they escaped not, which refused hym that spake on earth: much more shal we not escape, if we turne away from hym, that speaketh from heauen, whose voyce then shoke the earth, and now hath declared, saying: yet once more wil I shake, not the earth only, but also heauen. Where as he sayeth: yet once more, it signifieth the remouing away of those things which are shaken, as of things which haue ended their course: that the things which are not shaken, may remayne. Wherfore, if we receiue the kyngdom which can not be moued, we haue grace wherby we may so serue God, and that we may please hym with reuerence * and Godly feare. For our God is a consuming fier.

The. xiii. Chapter.

He exhorteth us unto loue, to hospitalitie, to thinke upon such as be in aduersitie, to maintaine wedlocke, to auoide couetousnesse, to make much of them that preache Gods worde, to beware of straunge learning, to be contente to suffer rebuke with Christ, to be thankfull unto God, and obedient unto such as be in authoritie.

What auaileth it my brethren, though

D But some man will say, thou hast faith, and I haue dedes: shew me thy faith by thy dedes: and I will shew thee my fayth by my dedes. Beleuest thou that there is one God? Thou dost well. The deuils also beleue, and trẽble. But wilt thou vnderstand (O thou vain mã) that faith without dedes is dead? Was not Abraham our father iustified through works, whẽ

¶The third Chapter.

What good and euill commeth through the tõg. The duty of such as be learned. The difference betwixt the wisdome of the Gospell, and the wisdom of the world.

Mat.xxiii.c. My brethren, be not euery man a master, knowing how that we shall receue the greater damnation: for in many thinges we sinn all. *If a man sinn Pr.xviii.a not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to tame al ye body. Behold, we put bittes into the horses mouthes, that they may obey vs: and B we turne about al the body of them. Behold also the shippes, which though they be so great and are driuen of fearce windes, yet are they turned about with a very smal helme whithersoeuer the violẽce of the gouerner wil. Euen so the tong is a litle member also, and bosteth great things. Behold how great a thing a litle fier kindeleth, and the tong is fier, euen a world of wickednesse. So is the tong set among our members, that it defyleth the whole body, and setteth a fier all that we haue of nature, and is it selfe set a fier euen of hell. All the natures of beastes and of birdes, and of serpentes and thinges of the sea, are meked and tamed of ye nature of man. But the tong can no man tame. It is an vnruly euill, ful of deadly poyson. Therwith blesse we God the fa-C ther, and therwith curse we men * which Gene.i.d are made after the (image and) similitude of god. Out of one mouth procedeth blessing and cursing. My brethrẽ, these thinges ought not so to be. Doth a fountaine sende forth at one place swete water and bitter also? Can ye figge tree (my brethrẽ) beare oliue beries? either a vine beare figges? So can no fountain geue both salt water and fresh also. If any man be wise and endued with knowledge among you, let him shew his works out of good conuersation with mekenesse of wisdom. But if ye haue bitter enuying and strife in your heart, reioice not: neither be liars against the truth: for such wisdom descendeth not from aboue: but is earthy, naturall and deuilish. For where enuying and strife is, there is vnstablenesse and al maner of euil works. But the wisdom that is from aboue, is first pure, thẽ peaceable, gentle, and easy to be intreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without iudging, without simulation: yea, and the fruit of righteousnesse is sowen in peace, of them that maintaine peace.

Of the day of the Lorde, whose long tarying is saluation.

A This is the second Epistle ẏ I now write vnto you, dere

The fyrst Chapter.

True witnesse of the euerlasting worde of God. The bloude of Christe is the purgation from synne. No man is without sinne.

The seconde Chapter.

Christ is our aduocate. Of true loue, and how it is tried.

A My litle childrẽ these things write I vnto you, ẏ ye sin not. And yf any mã sin we haue an aduocate wt the father, Jesus Christe the righteous: & he it is ẏ obteyneth grace for our sinnes, not for oure synnes onely: but also for ẏ sinnes of al ẏ world. *And herby we are sure that we knowe hym, if we Joh.xiiii.d kepe his cõmaũdements. *He that sayeth I know him, & kepeth not his cõmaũde-mẽts, is a lier, & the verity is not in him.
But whoso kepeth his word, in him is ẏ loue of God perfect in dede: hereby knowe we ẏ we are in him. He ẏ sayeth he bideth in him, ought to walk euẽ as he walked.
Brethẽ, I write no new cõmaundemente vnto you: but that olde cõmaũdemẽt whiche ye haue heard frõ the beginning. The B olde cõmaũdement is the word, which ye haue heard frõ the beginning. Agayne, a new cõmaũdement I write vnto you, that is true in him, & ẏ same is true also in you, for the darknesse is past, & the true lyghte now shineth. *He that saieth how ẏ he is in the light, & yet hateth his brother, is in darknesse, euẽ vntil this time. He that lo-ueth his brother abideth in the lighte, and Le.xix.d. ther is none occasion of euil in him. *He ẏ hateth his brother is in darknes, & walketh in darkenesse: & cannot tell whyther he goeth, because ẏ darknesse hath blinded his eyes. Babes, I write vnto you, howe that your synnes are forgeuen you for his names sake. I write vnto you fathers, how ẏ ye haue knowen hym ẏ is from the C beginning. I write vnto you yong men, how ẏ ye haue ouercome the wycked. I write vnto you litle chyldren how that ye haue knowẽ the father. I haue writtẽ vnto you fathers, how that ye haue knowen hym that is from the begynnyng. I haue written vnto you yong men, how that ye are strong, & the worde of god abideth in you, and ye haue ouercome the wycked.
Se that ye loue not *the worlde, neyther Joh.xvii. the thinges that are in the world. If any b. man loue the world, the loue of the father is not in him. For al ẏ is in the world (as the lust of the flesh, & the lust of the eyes, & the pride of life) is not of ẏ father, but of ẏ world. And the world passeth away, & the lust therof: but he that fulfilleth the wil of god abideth for euer. Litle childrẽ it is the last time, & as ye haue heard how ẏ Anti-christ shal come, euen now are ther many begon to be antichristes already, wherby we know ẏ it is the last time. *Thei went Acte.xx.f. out frõ vs, but they wer not of vs. For yf they had bene of vs, thei would no doubt haue continued wt vs. But ẏ it might appere ẏ they wer not of vs. Neuerthelesse, ye haue an oyntmet of him that is holy, & ye

ye know all thynges. I haue not written vnto you, as though ye knew not ŷ truth: but as though ye knew it (& know also) ŷ no lie cōmeth of truthe. Who is a lier, but he ŷ denieth that Jesus is Christe. The= same is Antichrist, that denieth the father and the sonne. Whosoeuer denyeth the sonne, the same hathe not the father, (he that knowlegeth the sonne, hath the father alse.) Let therfore abide in you ŷ same whyche ye heard from the beginnyng. If ŷ which ye heard from the beginning shal remain in you, ye also shall continue in the sonne, and in the father. And this is the promisse ŷ he hath promised vs, euen eternall lyfe.
These thyngs haue I written vnto you concerning them that deceyue you. And ŷ annoyntyng whiche ye haue receyued of him, dwelleth in you. And ye nede not ŷ Esa.liiij.d any man teach you: but * as ŷ anoyntyng Joh.v.e. teacheth you of all thinges, and is true, and no lye: & as it hath taught you euē so bide therin. And now babes abyde in hym ŷ when he shall appeare, we may be bold and not bee made ashamed of him at hys comming. If ye knowe that he is ryghte= ous, know also that eueri one which doth righteousnesse is borne of him.

The thyrd Chapter.

The singuler loue of god toward vs: and howe we agayne ought to loue one another.

A Beholde what loue the fa= ther hath shewed on vs, ŷ Luk.xx.f we shoulde bee called, * John.i.b (and bee in dede) * the sōnes of God. For this cause the world knoweth you not, because it knoweth not hym. Dearly beloued, nowe are we the sonnes of God, and yet it doth not appere what we shall be. But we knowe ŷ when it shall appeare, we shall be like him. For we shall see him as he is. And euery man that hath this hope in him, purgeth hym= self, euen as he also is pure. Whosoeuer committeth sin, committeth vnrighteous= nesse also, & sin is vnrighteousnesse. And ye know that he appeared to take awaye oure synnes, and in hym is no synne. As many as bide in him sin not: whosoeuer sinneth hath not seen him, neither knowē B him.
Babes let no man deceiue you. He that doth righteousnesse, is righteous, euen as he is righteous. He ŷ committeth sin, Ge.iii.a. is of the deuil: * for ŷ deuill sinneth since Joh.viii. the beginning. For this purpose appered the son of God, to loose the workes of the deuil. Whosoeuer is born of God, sinneth not, for his sede remaineth in him, and he cannot sin, because he is born of God. In this are the children of God knowen, and the children of the deuil. Whosoeuer doth not righteousnesse, is not of God, neyther he that loueth not his brother. For this is the tidings that ye heard from the begin= ning, that ye should loue one another, not C as * Cain which was of the wicked, and Ge.iiii.b slewe his brother. And wherefore slew he him: Because his own workes was euyl, and his brothers good.
* Meruaile not my brethren, though ŷ translated frō death vnto lyfe, because we loue the brethren. * He that loueth not his Le.xix.d. brother, abideth in death. Whosoeuer ha= teth his brother, is a manneslear. And ye know that no mansleaer hath eternal life abiding in him. Hereby perceiue we loue, bicause he gaue his life for vs: and we ought to geue our liues for ŷ brethrē. But who so hath this worldes good, and * seeth his brother haue nede, & shutteth vp his com= Ds.xv.b passion frō him: how dwelleth the loue of God in him: My babes, let vs not loue in word, neither in tōg, but in dede & in veri= tie. Hereby we knowe, that we are of the veritye, and can quiet our heartes before hym. For if our heart cōdemne vs God is greater thā our heart, & knoweth al thin= ges. Dearly beloued, if our hart condēne D vs not, thē haue we trust to godward: * & Mat.vii. whatsoeuer we aske, we receyue of him, a because we kepe his commaūdements, & and.xx.c. doe those thinges whiche are pleasyng in Joh.xv.b his sight. And * this is his cōmaundemēt and.xvi.c that we beleue on the name of his sonne Jaco.i.a.

Jesus Christ, and loue one another, as he i Joh.v.c gaue cōmaundement. And he that kepeth Jo.xiii.d his commaundementes, dwelleth in him, and he in him: and hereby we know that he abideth in vs, euen by the spirit which he hath geuen vs.

god. And euery spirite which confesseth not yͭ Jesus Christ is come in the fleshe, is not of god. And this is that spirite of Antechrist, of whom ye haue heard, howe that he should come: and euē now already is he in the world.
Litle chyldren ye are of God, and haue ouercome thē: for greater is he that is in you, thā he that is in the world. They are of the world, therefore speake they of the B world, & the world heareth them. We are of god. He yͭ knoweth god, heareth vs: he that is not of god, heareth vs not. Hereby know we the spirit of veritie, and the spi-rite of errour.
Joh. xiii. c Dearely beloued, * let vs loue one a-

Joh. i. c. cause he hath geuen vs of his spirite: and and. vi. e. we haue seen, and doe testifye, that the father sent the son to be the sauioure of the world. Whosoeuer confesseth, that Jesus is the son of god, in him dwelleth God, & he in god. And we haue knowē and beleued the loue that god hath to vs.
D God is loue, & he that dwelleth in loue, dwelleth in god, & god in him. Herein is yͤ loue perfect in vs, yͭ we should haue trust in the day of iudgement, For as he is, euē so are we in this world. Ther is no feare in loue, but perfect loue casteth out feare, for feare hath painfulnesse. He yͭ feareth, is not perfect in loue.
We loue him, for he loued vs first. If a mā saye: I loue god, and yet hate his brother, he is a lier. For how can he that lo-ueth not his brother whom he hath sene, loue god whō he hath not seen? And thys commaundemente haue we of hym: that he which loueth god, should loue his brother also. ☞

The fifth Chapter.

To loue god is to kepe his commaundementes. Fayth ouercommeth the world. Euerlastyng life is in the son of god. Of the synne vnto death.

Whosoeuer beleueth that A Jesus Christ is borne of God. And euery one that loueth hym which begat loueth hym also whyche was begotten of hym. *
By this we knowe, that Joh. xiiii c. we loue the children of god when we loue god and kepe his commaundements. For thys is the loue of God, that we kepe hys commaundementes, and * his comman- Mat. xii. b. fayth. Who is it that ouercommeth the world, but he which beleueth that Jesus is the sonne of god? Thys Jesus Christe is he that came by water and bloude, not B by water onely, but by water and bloude.

And it is the spirit that beareth witnesse, because the spirite is truthe. (For there are three which beare record in heauen, the father, the worde and the holy ghost. And these three are one.) And there are three which beare recorde (in earth) the spirite, and water and bloud: and these thre are one. If we receyue the witnesse of mē, yͤ witnesse of god is greater. For thys is the wytnesse of god (that is greater) which he testifyed of his sonne.
He that beleueth on the sonne of GOD, hath the wytnesse in hymself. He that beleueth not god, hath made hym a lyer, because he beleued not the recorde that god gaue of his sonne. And thys is the recorde, how that god hath geuen vnto vs eternall lyfe, and thys lyfe is in hys son.
He that hath the sonne hath lyfe: and he that hath not the sonne of God, hath not lyfe. ☞ C
These thynges haue I wrytten vnto you that beleue on the name of the sonne of God, that ye maye knowe how that ye haue eternal life, and yͭ ye may beleue on the name of the sonne of god. And thys is the trust that we haue in him: that * yf we Mat. vii. a.

which say I not that a man should pray. All vnrighteousnesse is sinn, and there is sinn not vnto death. We know that whosoeuer is borne of god sinneth not: but he that is begotten of God, kepeth himselfe, and that wicked toucheth him not. We know that we are of God, and the world is altogether set on wickednesse. We know that the sonne of God is come, and hath geuē vs a mind to know him which is true: and we are in him that is true through his sōne Jesu Christ. This same is very God, and eternall life. Babes, kepe your selues from images. Amen.

The second Epistle of S. John.

He writeth vnto a certaine Lady, reioyceth that her children walke in the truth, exhorteth them vnto loue, warneth them to beware of such disceuers as deny that Jesus Christ came in the flesh, praieth them to continue in the doctrine of Christ, and to haue nothing to do with them that bryng not thys learning.

A The elder to the elect lady and her childrē, whō I loue in the truthe, & not I only, but also al that haue knowē ẏ truth, for ẏ truthes sake which dwelleth in vs, & shalbe in vs for euer. With vs shal be grace, mercy, and peace from God the father and from ẏ Lord Jesus Christ the sonne of the father, in truthe and loue. I B reioyced greatly, that I founde of thy children walking in truthe, as we haue receiued a commaundement of ẏ father. And now beseche I thee Lady, not as though I wrote a new commaundement vnto thee, but ẏ same which we haue had Joh.xiiii.c. from the beginning: that we should *loue 1.Joh.v.a one another. And this is the loue, ẏ we should walke after his commaundement. This cōmaundement is, that (as ye haue heard frō the beginning) ye should walke in it. For many disceauers are entred into the world, which confesse not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh. This is a disceauer and an Antichrist. Loke on youre selues, ẏ we lose not ẏ we haue wrought, but that we may haue a full reward. Who-C soeuer transgresseth and bideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that indureth in the doctrine of Christ, hath both the father and the sonne. If there come any vnto you, and bryng not thys learning, him receiue not to house: neither bid him God spede. For he that biddeth him God spede, is partaker of his euill dedes. (Behold, I haue tolde you before, that ye should not be ashamed in the daye of the Lorde.) I had many things to wryte vnto you, neuerthelesse I would not write with paper and ynke, but I trust to come vnto you, & speake with you mouth to mouth, that our ioy may be full. The sonnes of thy elect sister grete thee. Amen.

The thirde Epistle of S. John.

He is glad of Gaius, that he walketh in ẏ truth: exhorteth them to be louing vnto the poore Christē in their persecution, sheweth the vnkinde dealing of Diotrephes, and the good reporte of Demetrius.

A The elder vnto the beloued Gaius, whom I loue in the truthe. Beloued, I wish in all things ẏ thou prosperedst, and faredst well, euen as thy soule prospereth. For I reioyced greatly, when the brethren came and testified of the truthe that is in thee, how thou walkest in the truth. I haue no greter ioy, than for to heare how ẏ my sōnes walke in veritie. Beloued, ẏ doest faith-
B fully whatsoeuer thou doest to the brethren, and to strāgers, which beare witnesse of thy loue before the congregation. Which brethren if thou bring forwardes of their iourney (after a Godly sort) thou shalt do well, bicause that for his names sake they went forth: and toke nothing of the Gentiles. We therfore ought to receiue such, that we might be helpers to the truth. I wrote vnto the congrega-C tion: but Diotrephes which loueth to haue the preeminence among them, receiueth vs not. Wherfore if I come, I will declare his dedes which he doth, iesting on vs with malicious wordes, neither is therwith content. Not only he himselfe receaueth not the brethren, but also he forbiddeth them that would, and thrusteth them out of the congregation.

Beloued, folow not that which is euill, D but that which is good. He that doth well, is of God: but he that doth euil seeth not God. Demetrius hath good report of al men, and of the truth it selfe: yea, and we our selues also beare record, and ye know that our record is true. I had many thinges to wryte: but I wyll not wyth ynke and pen write vnto thee.
I trust I shall shortly see thee and we shall speake mouth to mouth. Peace be vnto thee. The louers salute thee. Grete the louers by name.

The Epistle of S. Jude.

He rebuketh such as being blynded with their own lustes, resist the truth. He exhorteth vs to edifie one another, to pray in the holy gost, to cōtinue in loue, to loke for the comming of the Lord.

A Iudas the seruaunt of Jesus Christ, the brother of James. To them which are called and sanctified in God ye father and preserued in Jesu Christ.
Mercy vnto you, & peace and loue be multiplied. Beloued, when I gaue all diligence to write vnto you of ye common saluation, it was nedeful for me to write vnto you, to exhort you that ye should continually laboure in the fayth, which was once geuen vnto ye Saintes.
For there are certaine vngodly mē craftyly crept in, of which it was wrytten afore tyme vnto such iudgement. They turne the grace of our God vnto wantonnesse, and deny God (which is the only Lord) and our Lord Jesus Christ. B My minde is therefore to put you in re-membraunce forasmuch as ye once know thys, how that the Lord (after that he had deliuered the people out of Egipt) destroyed them which afterwarde beleued not. The Angels also which kepte not their first estate, but left their own habitation, he hath reserued in euerlastīg chaines vnder darkenesse vnto the iudgment of the great day: * euen as Sodom and Gomor, and the cities about them Ge.xix.e.
(which in like maner defiled themselues with fornication, and folowed straunge flesh) are set forth for an ensample, and suffer the paine of eternall fier. Likewise these being disceaued by dreames, defyle the flesh, despise rulers, and speake euill of them that are in auctho ritie.
Yet Michaell the archangel when he C stroue against the deuill, and disputed about the body of Moses, durst not geue railing sentence, but sayd: the Lorde rebuke thee. But these speake euil of those thinges which they know not: and what thinges they know naturally (as beastes which are without reason) in those thin-

¶ The Reuelation of .S. John the diuine.

Happy are they that heare the word of god, and kepe it. He writeth to the seuen congregations in Asia, seeth seuen candlestickes, and in the middes of them, one like vnto the sonne of man.

A The reuelation of Jesus Christ, which God gaue vnto him, for to shew vnto his seruauntes things which must shortly come to passe. I was in the spirit on a Sonday, and heard behinde me a great voice as it had ben of a trompe, saying: I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last. That thou seest, write in a boke, and sende it vnto the .vii. cōgregations, which are in Asia: vnto Ephesus, and vnto Smirna, and vnto Pergamos and vnto Thiatira, and vnto Sardis, D

The fourth Chapter.

He seeth the heauen open and the seate, and one sitting vpon it, and .xxiiii. seates about it, with .xxiiii. Elders sitting vpon them, and foure beastes praising god day and night.

AFter this I lo-

in heauē: and the first voice which I heard was as it were of a trompet talking with me, which sayd come vp hither, and I will shewe thee thynges which must be fulfilled here after. And immediatly I was in the spirit: and behold, a seate was set in heauen, and one sat on the seate. And he that sat, was to loke vpon, like vnto a Jaspar stone, and a sardine stone. And there was a raine bow about the seate, in sight like to an Emerald. And about the B seate were .xxiiii. seates. And vpō the seates .xxiiii. elders sitting, clothed in white rayment, & had on their heades crownes of golde.

And out of the seate proceded lighte-ninges, and thundringes, & voyces: and there wer .vii. lampes of fier burning before the seate, which are the .vii. spirites of God. And before the seate there was a sea of glasse, like vnto Christal, and in ẏ mids of the seate, and round about the seate wer foure beastes ful of eyes before and behinde. And the first beast was like C a lion, and the second beast like a calfe, & the third beast had a face as a man, and the fourth beast was like a flying Egle.
And the foure beastes had eche one of thē .vi. winges about him, and they were ful of eyes within. And they had no rest day Esa. vi. b neither night, saying * holy, holy, holy, Lord God almightie, which was, and is

And when those beastes gaue glory D and honor, and thankes to him ẏ sate on the seate (which liueth for euer and e-uer) the .xxiiii. elders fel down before hym that sate on ẏ trone, and worshipped him that liueth for euer, & cast their crownes before the trone, saying: thou art worthy O Lord (our God) to receiue glory and honor, and power, for thou hast created al thinges, and for thy wils sake they are, & were created. ¶

The fifth Chapter.

He seeth the lambe opening the boke, and wherefore the foure beastes, the .xxiiii. elders, and the Angels praise the lambe, and do hym worship.

AND I saw in the right A hand of him ẏ sate in the trone, a boke writtē with in, and on the backside sealed with .vii. seales.
And I saw a strong Angel, which preached with a loude voice: Who is worthy to open the boke, and to loose the seales therof? And no man in heauen nor in earth, neither vnder the earth was able to open ẏ boke neither to loke theron. And I wept much bicause no man was founde worthy to open, and to read the boke, neither to loke theron. And one of the elders sayd vnto B me: wepe not: Behold, a lion of the tribe of Juda, the rote of Dauid, hath obteined to open the boke, and to loose the .vii. seales therof. And I beheld, and lo in the middes of the seate, and of the foure beastes and in the middes of the elders, stode a lambe as though he had bene killed, hauing .vii. hornes and .vii. eyes, which are the .vii. spirites of God, sent into all the world. And he came and toke the boke out of the right hand of him that sat vpon the seate. And when he had takē the boke, the .iiii. beasts, and .xxiiii. elders C fell down before the lambe, hauing euery one of them harpes, and golden vials ful of odoures, which are the praiers of Sain-tes, and they song a new song saying: thou art worthy to take the boke, and to open the seales therof, for thou wast killed, and hast redemed vs by thy bloud out of al kinreds, and tonges, and people, and nations, and hast made vs vnto our God kinges and Priestes, and we shal reigne on the earth. And I beheld, and I heard ẏ voyce of many Angels about the trone, and about the beasts and the elders, and D I heard thousande thousandes, saying with a loude voice. Worthy is the lambe ẏ was killed to receiue power and riches, and wisdom, and strength, and honor, and glory, and blessing. And al the creatures which are in heauen, and on the earth, & vnder the earth, and in the sea and al that are in them, heard I, saying: blessing, honor, glory, and power, be vnto hym that sitteth vpon the seate, and vnto ẏ lambe for euermore. And the .iiii. beastes sayd: Amen. And the .xxiiii. elders fell vpon their faces, and worshipped him that lyueth for euermore.

had opened the fourth seale I heard the and as it were a great mouñtain burning with fier was cast into the sea, and the third part of the sea turned to bloud, and the third part of the creatures which had life, dyed: and the third part of ships wer destroied. And the third Angel blew, and there fel a great starre from heauen, burniñg as it were a lampe, & it fell into the third part of the riuers, & into fountaines of waters, & the name of the starre is called wormewood. And the third part was turned to wormwood. And many men died of the waters, bicause they were made bitter. And the fourth Angel blew, & the D third part of the sunne was smitten, and the third part of the mone, and the third part of starres: so ye the third part of them was darkned. And the day was smitten, that ye third part of it should not shyne, & likewise the night. And I beheld, & heard an Angell flying through the middes of heauen, saying with a loude voyce: Woe, Woe, to the inhabitors of the earth, bi-cause of ye voices to come of the trõpe of ye thre Angels, which were yet to blow.

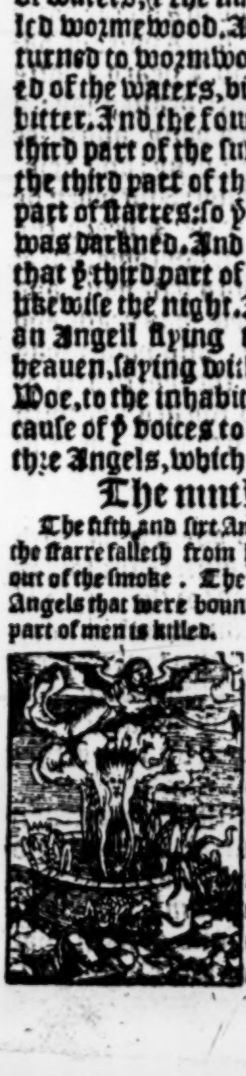
The ninth Chapter.

The fifth and sixt Angell blow their trompets: the starre falleth from heauen: the locustes come out of the smoke. The first woe is past: the foure Angels that were bounde are loosed, and the third part of men is killed.

A The.viii. figure



AND the fift Angel blew, and I saw a starre fall from heauen vnto the earth. And to hym was geuen the key of the bottomlesse pit: and he opened ye bottomlesse pit, & ye smoke of the pit arose, as the smoke of a great fornace nace. And the sunne, & the ayre wer dark-ned, by the reason of the smoke of the pit.

And there came out of the smoke locustes vpon the earth, and vnto thē was geuen power, as ŷ scorpions of the earth haue power. And it was commaunded them that they should not hurt the grasse of the earth: neither any grene thing: neither any tree: but only those men which haue not the seale in their foreheades.

And to thē was commaunded, ŷ they should not kil them, but that they should be vexed fiue monethes, and their paine was as the paine that commeth of a scor-

Ose.x.c. in those dayes shal men seke death, and Luke. shal not fynde it, and shal desire to dye, & xxiii.d. death shal flye from them.

And the similitude of the locustes was B like vnto horses prepared vnto battayle, and on their handes were as it were crownes, like vnto golde, and their faces were as it had bene the faces of mē. And they had heare as the heare of woman.
And their teth were as the teth of lions.
And they had habbergions, as it were habbergions of yron.

And the sounde of their winges, was as the sounde of Chariots when many horses runn together to battaile. And they had tailes like vnto scorpions, and there were stinges in their tailes. And their power was to hurt men fiue monethes. And they had a kyng ouer them, which is the Angel of the bottomlesse pit whose name in the Hebrew tong, is Aba-don: but in the Greke tong, Apolliō, that is to say a destroyer. One wo is past, and behold two woes come yet after thys.

And the sixt Angell blew, and I heard a voice from the foure corners of the golden aulter, which is before God, saying to ŷ sixt Angel, which had the trompe: Loose the foure Angels, which are boūd in the great riuer euphrates. And the.iiii. Angels were loosed, which were prepared for an houre, for a day, for a mo-neth, and for a yeare, for to sley the third part of men. And the number of horsemē of warr were twenty. M. tymes. x. thousand. And I heard the number of them: & thus I saw the horses in a vision, & them that sate on them, hauing firie habbergions of a Jacinct couloure, & brymstone: & D the heades of ŷ horses wer as the heades of liōs. And out of their mouthes went forth fier & smoke, & brimstone. And of these three was the third part of men killed: ŷ is to say, of fier, smoke, & brymstone which proceded out of ŷ mouthes of thē.
For their power was in their mouthes, & in their tailes: for their tailes were lyke vnto serpētes, & had heades, & with thē they did hurt. And the rēnaunt of the mē which were not killed by these plages, repēted not of the dedes of their handes, ŷ they should not worship deuils, & images of gold & siluer & brasse, & stone & of wood which neither can see neither heare, neither go. Also they repented not of theyr murther, and of their sorcery, neyther of their fornicatiō, neither of their theft.

And when the dragon sawe that he was cast vnto the earth, he persecuted the woman, whiche brought foorth the manwinges of a greate Eagle, that she might flie into the wildernesse into her place, serpente. And the dragon caste out of hys mouth water after the woman, as it had ben a riuer, because she should haue bene caught of the floude. And the earth holpe the woman & the earth opened her mouth and swalowed vp the riuer, whiche the dragon caste oute of his mouthe. And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and earth and them whiche dwell therein, to

of the earth, for her grapes are rype.
And the angel thrust in his sharp sickle

And the fourth angell powred out his heauen from the seate,saying:it is done.

And there folowed voyces,thundringes, and lightnynges,and there was a greate earthquake,suche as was not since men were vpon the earth,so mighty an earthdeuided into thre partes,& the cities of al her the cup of the wine of the fearcenes of his wrath. Euery yle also fled awaye,and

And the spirite caried me awaye into the wildernesse. And I saw a woman sit vpon a rosecoloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, whiche had .vii. heads, and .x. hornes. And the woman was arayed in purple and rosecoloure, and decked wyth golde, precious stone, and pearles, & had a cup of golde in her hand, full of abhomynations and filthinesse of her fornicatiō. And in her forehead was a name writtē, a mysterie, greate Babilon the mother of whoredome & abhominations of ŷ earth. And I saw the woman dronken wyth the bloud of sainctes, & with the bloude of the witnesses of Jesu. And when I sawe her, I wondred with great marueile. And the

B angell said vnto me: wherfore marueylest thou? I wil shew thee the mysterie of the woman, and of the beast that beareth her, which hath seuen heads and ten hornes. The beast that thou seest, was and is not, and shal ascend out of the bottomlesse pit, & shal go into perdition: and they ŷ dwell on the earth shall wonder (whose names are not written in the booke of lyfe from the beginning of the worlde) when they behold the beast that was and is not. And here is a mynde that hath wisedome. The seuē heads are seuen mountains,

C on whiche the woman sitteth: they are also seuen kinges. Fiue are fallen, and one is, and another is not yet come. And whē he commeth, he muste continue a shorte space. And the beast that was, & is not, is euen the eighte, & is one of the seuen, and shall goe into destruction. And the tenne hornes whyche thou sawest, are tenne kinges which haue receiued no kingdom as yet, but shall receyue power as kinges at one houre with the beaste. These haue one mynde, and shall geue theyr power & strength vnto the beast. These shal fight with the lambe, & the lambe shal ouercome them. *For he is lord of Lordes, & kyng of kinges, & they ŷ are on his side are called I.Ti.vi.c and chosē & faithful. And he said vnto me:

D the waters which thou sawest, where the whore sitteth, are people & folke, & natiōs & tonges. And the ten hornes, which thou sawest vpon the beast, are they that shall hate ŷ whore, & shall make her desolate & naked, and shall eate her flesh, and burne her with fier. For God hath put in theyr heartes to fulfill his wyll, & to do with one consent, for to geue theyr kyngdome vnto the beast, vntil the wordes of god bee fulfilled. And the woman which thou sawest is that great citie, which reigneth ouer the kinges of the earth.

The louers of the worlde are sory for the fall of Babilon, but they that bee of god haue cause to reioyce at her destruction.

A The.xviii figure.

AND after that, I sawe another angel come from heauen, hauing great power and the earth was lightened with his brightnesse. And he cried mightely with a strong voice, saying: Greate Babilon is fallen, is fallen, and is Esa.xxi.c Iere. l.a become the inhabitation of deuyls, and ŷ holde of all foule spirites, and a cage of all vncleane and hatefull byrdes: for all nations haue dronken of the wyne of ŷ wrath of her fornication. And ŷ kings of ŷ earth haue cōmitted fornication with her, & the

B marchaunts of the earth are waxed ryche of ŷ aboundance of her pleasures. And I heard another voice from heauē, say: come away frō her my people, ŷ ye bee not partakers of her sinnes, & that ye receiue not of her plages. For her sinnes are gone vp to heauen, and God hath remembred her wickednesse. Rewarde her euen as she rewarded you, and geue her double according to her workes. And powre in double to her in thesame cup which she fylled vnto you. And as muche as she glorifyed her self & liued wantonly, so muche powre ye in for her, of punishmēt & sorow, for she Es.xlvii.d said in her selfe: *I sit being a Queene, &

C am no widow, & shal see no sorow. Therefore shall her plagues come in one daye, death & sorow, & hunger, & she shalbe brēt with fier: for strong is the lord god which shall iudge her.

And the kynges of the earth shall be-wepe her, and waile ouer her, which haue committed fornication with her, & haue liued wantonly with her, when they shall see the smoke of her burnyng, and shal Iere.li.a stande a farre of for feare of her punyshe-mente, saying: * Alas, alas, that greate citie Babilon, that mighty citie: for at one D houre is thy iudgement come.

And the merchauntes of the earth shal weepe and wayle in themselues, for no manne will bie their ware any more, the ware of golde and siluer, and precious stones, neither of pearle and raynes, and purple and scarlet, and all thinne woode, ner vessels of moste precious woode, and of brasse, and yron, (and marble) and synamon, and odours, and oyntmentes, and frankensence, and wine and oyle, and fine floure, and wheate, beasts, and shepe, and horses, and charrettes, and bodyes, and soules of men.

And the appels that thy soule lusted after, are departed from thee. And all thin-ges whiche wer deintie and had in pryce, are departed from thee, & thou shalt finde them no more. The marchaunts of these thinges whiche were waxed ryche, shall stande a farre of from her, for feare of the punishment of her, weping and waylyng Iere.li.b and saying. * Alas, alas, that great citye C that was clothed in raynes and purple, and scarlette, and decked with golde, and precious stones, and pearles, for at one houre so great riches is come to nought.

And euery shippe gouernour, and all they that occupyed shippes, and shypmen which worke in the sea stode a farre of, & cryed, when they sawe the smoke of her burnyng, saying: what citie is lyke vnto this great citie? And they caste duste on their heades, and cryed weping and wai-Iere.li.b ling, and sayd: * Alas, alas, that great cy-F tie wherin were made ryche all that had shippes, in the sea, by the reasō of her costlinesse, for at one houre is she made desolate. Reioyce ouer her thou heauē, and ye holye Apostles and Prophetes: for God e hath geuen your iudgement on her. And a mightie angell tooke vp a stone lyke a great mylstone, and cast it into the Sea, saying: with such violence shall that great citie Babilon be caste, and shall be founde no more. And the voyce of harpers, and G musitions, and of pypers, and trumpeters, shal be heard no more in thee: and no craftes manne, of whatsoeuer craft he be, shalbee founde any more in thee. And the sounde of a myll shall be heard no more in thee, (and candel lighte shall be no more burning in thee) and the voyce of the brydegrome & of the bride shalbe heard no more in thee: for thy merchauntes were the great men of the earthe. And with thine inchauntement were deceyued all natyons: and in her was founde the bloude of the prophetes, and of the saincts, and of all that were slayne vpon the earth.

Prayse is geuen to God for iudgyng the whore, and for auengyng the blond of his seruauntes. The angel wil not be worshipped. The foules and birdes are called to the slaughter.

AND after that, I hearde a greate voyce of muche people in heauen, saying: Alleluya. Saluation and glory and honor and power be ascribed to yͤ lorde our god for true and righteous are his iudgemētes, for he hath iudged the great whore which did corrupt the earth with her fornication) and hath auenged the bloude of his seruauntes of her hande. And agayne they sayde: Alleluya. And smoke rose vp for euermore.
And the.xxiiii. elders, and the.iiii. beastes B fell downe and worshipped God that sat on the seat, saying: Amen, Alleluya. And a voyce came out of the seate, saying: prayse our lord god al ye that are his seruaunts, & ye that feare him, both small and great.

And I heard the voice of much people, euen as the voice of many waters, and as the voyce of strong thundringes, saying: Alleluya, for the lord our god omnipotent raigneth. Let vs be glad & reioice & geue honor to him: for the mariage of the lamb is come, and his wife made her self ready.
And to her was graunted, that she should be arayed with pure and goodly raynes.
For the raynes is the righteousnesse of Mat.xxii.a saincts. And he said vnto me, wryte: * Lu.xiiii.a happy are they whiche are called vnto the supper of the lambes mariage. And he C said vnto me: these are the true sayinges of God. And I fell at his feete, to worship him, And he said vnto me: see thou doe it not. For I am thy felow seruaunt, & one of thy brethren, euen of them yͭ haue the testimony of Jesus. Worship god. For yͤ testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.
And

The .xix. figure.

And I saw heauen open, and beholde a white horse: and he ẏ sat vpon him was called faithfull and true, and in righteousnesse he doth iudge & make battaile. His eies wer as a flame of fier: and on his head wer many crownes, & he had a name writtẽ, that no man knew but he
Esa. lxiii. b himselfe. * And he was clothed with a vesture dipte in bloude, and his name is called the worde of God. And the warryors whiche were in heauen, folowed hym vpon white horses, clothed with whyte & pure raines: and out of his mouth wente a sharpe two edged swearde, that with it he should smite the heathen.

And he shal rule them with a rod of yron: & he trode the winefat of fearcenesse and wrathe of almighty God. And hath on his vesture and on his thyghe a name written: kyng of kynges, and Lorde of D Lordes.

And I sawe an angell stande in the sun and he cryed with a loude voyce, saying to all the foules that flye by the myddes of heauen: come and gather youre selues together vnto ẏ supper of the great God, that ye may eate the flesh of kynges, and E the fleshe of hye captaines, and the fleshe of myghtye menne, and the fleshe of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the fleshe of al free menne and bond menne, and of small and greate. And I sawe the beaste, and the kynges of the earthe, and their warriors gathered together to make battaile against him that sat on the horse, and against his souldiors.

And the beaste was taken, and with him that false Prophete that wroughte miracles before him, with which he deceiued them that receyued the beasts mark, and them that worshypped his ymage. These bothe were cast quicke into a pond of fier burning with brimstone; and the remnaunte were slayne with the sweard of hym that sate vppon the horse, whiche sweard proceded out of his mouthe: and all the foules were fulfylled with theyr fleshe.

The .xx. Chapter.

The [illegible] bounde for a thousande yeares. [illegible]

And I sawe an Angel com down from heauen, hauing the kaye of the bottomlesse pit, and a greate cheine in hys hande. The .xx. figure

And he toke ẏ dragon that olde serpent whiche is the Deuyll and Sathanas, and he bounde him a thousand yeres, and cast him into the botomlesse pit, and he shutte him vp, and set a seale on him, ẏ he should deceiue the people no more, till the thousande yeres were fulfilled. And after that he must be loused for a litle season.

And I sawe seates, and they sat vppon B them, and iudgement was geuen vnto them: and I sawe the soules of them that were beheaded for the witnesse of Iesu, and for the worde of God, and which had not worshipped the beast, neyther his ymage, neither had taken his marke vppon theyr foreheades, or in their handes and they liued and reigned with Christ a thousand yeare: but the other of the dead men liued not again, vntill the thousande yere were finished. This is the firste resurrection. Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection. For on suche shall the seconde death haue no power, but they shall bee the priestes of God and of Christe, and shall reigne with hym a thousande yere. C

* And when the thousand yeres are expired, Sathan shall be loused oute of his prison, and shall goe out to deceyue the people which are in the foure quarters of the earthe, Gog and Magog: to gather them together to battaile, whose number is as the sand of the sea: & they wẽt vp in ẏ plain of the earth, & compassed ẏ tents of the sainctes about, and the beloued citye. And fier came down frõ god out of heauẽ & deuoured them: & the deuil ẏ deceiued thẽ was caste into a lake of fier & brimstone, where the beast & the false prophets shall be tormẽted daye and night for euermore. Ezek. xxxviii. c xxxix. a

D And I saw a great white seat, & him that sat on it, frõ whose face fled away bothe ẏ earth & heauẽ, & their place was no more found. And I saw the dead both great and small stand before god: & the bokes wer opened, and an other booke was opened, which is the boke of life, and ẏ dead were iudged of those thinges which wer wrytten in the bokes according to their dedes

and the sea gaue vp her dead, whiche wer in her, and death and hel delivered vp the dead which wer in them: and they were iudged euery man according to his dedes.
And death and hell wer cast into the lake of fier: this is the second death. And whosoeuer was not founde wrytten in ẏ boke of life, was cast into the lake of fier.

The .xxi. Chapter.

In this chapter is descrybed the new and spirituall Jerusalem.

A .xxi. es. .xlv.c xvi.b. Je.iii.a — AND I sawe a new heauen and a new earth. For the firste heauen, and the firste earth were vanished awaye, and ther was nomore sea.
And I John saw that holy citie newe Jerusalem, come down frõ God oute of heauen, prepared as a bride garnished for her husbande. And I heard a great voyce out of heauen, saying: beholde, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them. And they shalbe his people, and god himselfe shalbe with them, and bee theyr B God. * And God shall wype away al tea-.xxv. res from their eyes. And there shalbe no more death, neither sorowe, neither crying, neyther shall there be any more pain, for the olde thinges are gone. And he ẏ sat vpon the seat, said: * Behold, I make a.xliii. all thynges newe. And he sayd vnto me: Cor.v.d wryte, for these wordes are faithfull and true.

And he sayd vnto me: it is done, I am Alpha and Omega, ẏ beginnyng and the ende: I will geue to him that is a thirst of the wel of the water of lyfe, free. He that ouercommeth shall inherite all thynges, and I will be his God, and he shalbe my son. But the fearful and vnbeleuing and the abhominable & murtherers, & whore-C mongers & sorcerers, & ydolaters, and all liers shal haue their part in the lake which burneth with fier & brimstone, whiche is the second death. And there came vnto me one of ẏ .vii. angels, which had the .vii. vials ful of ẏ .vii. last plages: & talked wyth me, saying: come hither. I wil shewe thee the bride, the lambes wife. And he caryed me away in the spirit to a great & an hye mountain, & he shewed me the great citye holy Jerusalem, descendyng out of heauẽ frõ god, hauing ẏ brightnes of God. And her shining was lyke vnto a stone moste precious, euẽ lyke a Jasper clere as Cry- D stal: & had walles great & hye, & had .xii. gates, & at the gates .xii. angels & names written, whiche are the names of the .xii. tribes of Israel: on the East syde .iii. gates and on the North side thre gates, and to-wardes the South, thre gates, and from the West, thre gates, and the wall of the city had .xii. foundations: and in them the .xii. names of the lambes .xii. Apostles.
And he that talked with me, had a golden reede to measure the citie withal, and E the gates therof, and the wal therof. And the citie was built foure square, and the length was as large as the breadth, and he measured the Citye with the (golden) reede .xii. M. furlonges: and the length and the breadth, and the height of it, wer equall. And he measured the wal thereof, an .cxliiii. cubites: the measure ẏ the angel had, was after the measure that mã vseth.
And the building of the wall of it was of Jasper. And the citie was pure gold, lyke vnto clere glasse, and the foundations of the wal of the citie wer garnished with al maner of precious stones. The firste foundation was Jaspis, the seconde Sa- F phire, the thirde a Calcedony, the .iiii. an Emeralde, the .v. Sardonix, the .vi. Sardeos, the .vii. Crisolite, the .viii. Beral, the .ix. a Topas, the .x. a Crusoprasos, the .xi. a Jacinct, the .xii. an Amatist.
The twelue gates were .xii. pearles, e-uery gate was of one pearle, & the streete of the citye was pure golde, as through shynyng glasse. And I saw no tẽple therin: for the lord God almighty & the lambe are the temple of it. * And the citie hath Esa.lx.d.
G no neede of the sũn neither of the moone to lighten it. For ẏ brightnesse of God did lyght it, and the lambe was the lyghte of it. And the people which are saued shal walk in the light of it. And the kynges of the earth shal bring their glory (and honor) vnto it. * And the gates of it are not shut Esay.lx.c by daye. For there shalbe no nighte there.
(And into it shal they bring the glorye and honor of the nations.) And there shall enter into it none vncleane thing, neiher whatsoeuer worketh abhomination, or maketh lyes: but they onely whiche are wrytten in the lambes booke of lyfe.

The .xxii. Chapter.

The riuer of the water of lyfe, the fruitfulnesse and light of the citie of god. The Lord geueth euer his seruauntes warnyng of thinges to come, the angell will not be worshipped. To the worde of god may nothyng be added nor minished.

And he shewed me a pure [illegible] of water of lyfe, clere as Christall, proceadyng out of the seate of God and the lambe. In the myddes of the streete of it, and of [illegible] syde of y ryuer was there a tree of lyfe, which bare twelue ma-ner of fruites, and gaue frute euery mo-neth: and the leaues of the wood serued to heale the people withall. And ther shal be no more curse, but the seat of God and the lambe shalbe in it: and his seruauntes shall serue hym. And they shall se his face, and his name shalbe in their foreheads.

And beholde, I come shortly, & my rewarde is with me, to geue euery mā accordyng as his dedes shalbe. I am Al-pha and Omega, the beginning and the ende, the first and the last.
